

Freedom Bond Drive Week Starts Aug. 13

Camp Lejeune officials have started the week of August 13 as "Freedom Bond Drive" involving military personnel and civil service employees.

L. C. R. LaPlant, Drive Chairman, has expressed hopes for hundred percent participation year's drive, based on the past efforts of Marines in campaigns during 1961.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury William H. Neal and North Carolina Drive Director, Walter R. H. Smith, are expected to arrive on the 13th to speak to over 10,000 Marine workers.

LaPlant has stated that no goal will be established for the drive, however, maximum participation is desired.

Chairmen for the drive are: S. Shockley (Marine Corps, phone 2-2119); 1st Lt. J. D. Santonio (2d Marine Division 7-3636); 1st Lt. G. B. (Force Troops, phone 7-7-7); Lt. P. C. Brown (Marine Air Facility, phone 06-302); M. Leadford, USN (U. S. Hospital, phone 4-4302) and J. Tallman (Civil Service, phone 2-2106).

Further information pertaining to the drive contact one of the above or your unit Bond Officer.

Marines Will Coach Tyro's Tyro School

Marines from Force Troops will leave for Camp Perry, Ohio, today to act as coaches for the National Rifle Association Tyro School.

Marines who will fly to Camp Perry are, Sgts. A. Becker, L. McClure, Hq. Co.; Sgt. J. L. Lauthier, 2d Tank Bn.; and J. Wall, J. W. Montgomery, J. L. Lauthier, and J. B. Durkin. All of the Marines are members of Force Troops Rifle and Team.

WET CROSSING—Patrol activity was an almost daily routine throughout the entire campaign. Here a Division patrol leaves a friendly position and moves into enemy territory on a reconnaissance mission.

CMC Adopts Suggestion Made By Sergeant Doyle

MSgt. John F. Doyle, Career Advisory NCO of Force Troops received a letter from the Commandant approving his proposed certificate to be presented to enlisted Marines upon completion of 20 years service.

Upon assuming his present duties, Doyle became aware that when enlisted men transferred to the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve they received no more than six-month trainees do upon release from active duty.

In the past certificates of retirement were presented only to Marine officers who retired after 20 years of service and to Marine enlisted who retired after 30 years.

In April, 1962, Doyle sent the following letter to the Commandant:

"At the present time, Marines being transferred to the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve, receive no more documentary evidence of their long and faithful service than do six-month trainees, i.e., DD 214.

"It is recommended that a certificate similar to the Certificate of Retirement be considered for presentation to these Marines. I believe that this can be accomplished by changing a few words on the format of the Certificate of Retirement.

"This certificate could be presented to the Marine as a memento of his Marine Corps service. It would serve as impressive documentation for display to prospective employers and as a proud item of display in the home or place of business. It would serve also as a treasured possession of the Marine's family in the unfortunate event of the Marine's death prior to completion of thirty years service."

The following letter was presented to Doyle by Brig. Gen. Wood B. Kyle, commanding general, Force Troops.

"Dear Sergeant Doyle,

"I am pleased to inform you that as a result of your suggestion, I have approved a certificate for issue to all enlisted Marines being transferred to the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve. The certificates will be provided by this Headquarters as soon as they are made available.

"I appreciate your interest in this matter."

The letter was signed, David M. Shoup, General, U. S. Marine Corps, Commandant of the Marine Corps.

Education Office Returns To Theater

The Base Education Office will move from their temporary location in the Holcomb School back to the Camp Theater, Bldg. 19, Aug. 6.

All testing scheduled for the week of Aug. 6 is cancelled until further notice. Regular testing for the week of Aug. 13 will commence on schedule, in the testing room of Bldg. 19.

For further information, interested persons may call 7-5572 or 7-5121.

'Canal Reunion Set For Hadnot Annex

A buffet luncheon will be held in the Hadnot Point Staff NCO Annex beginning at noon Aug. 7 to commemorate the 20th Anniversary of the United States' first major offensive against the Japanese forces in the Pacific during WWII.

On this date, 20 years ago, the reinforced, 1st Marine Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Alexander A. Vandergrift, invaded the obscure Japanese infested islands of Tulagi, Florida and Guadalcanal.

Never in Naval history has a military effort been launched with so slim a chance for success. Throughout the five month campaign, victory was never assured.

Disease carrying insects, extreme heat, fever and impenetrable jungle were as equally as menacing a factor to the Marines as the tactics employed by the cunning Japanese defenders.

By mid-day of Aug. 7, Marines secured the area surrounding the prime target for the Solomon's operation; the all-important Guadalcanal airstrip later named, Henderson Field. While on the neighboring island of Tulagi, Marines faced three days of fierce fighting killing 1,500 Japanese.

With Tulagi under Marine control, previously deployed Marine forces gathered on Guadalcanal for five months of desperate jungle warfare.

As Marines held ground against fanatical Japanese attacks around the Henderson Field perimeter, the nese destruction of one division and elements of another during continuous fighting with artillery, air, and naval gunfire.

Not until Dec. 9, 1942 was the Japanese resistance broken. On this date, Marine Maj. Gen. A. A. Vandergrift passed command of troops ashore to Army Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch.

Better than 1,500 Marines gave their lives during the five-month struggle. Nearly 3,000 were wounded in action while Malaria casualties rose to a staggering 3,213.

Historians point out that the Japanese poured too much into the battle for the 'Canal, which to them was nothing more than an outpost.

Shortly after the end of the operation, the Division was awarded the Presidential Unit Citation. Five men were awarded the Medal of Honor and 113 received the Navy Cross.

Helicopter Rescues Set 12-Year Mark

Twelve years ago the first military helicopter was used for air evacuation of combat casualties, as four Sikorsky HO3S-1 'copters lifted the first wounded from front line positions in Korea.

Marine aviators did it on Aug. 4, 1950 after delivering rations and water to infantrymen on a Korean mountain.

The following day, five more seriously wounded Leathernecks were brought out — three of these taken from hillside too steep to be reached by jeep. Even the return trips from Pusan weren't wasted, as the choppers delivered blood plasma to a field hospital.

Before the Korean conflict ended, Marine helicopter squadron pilots evacuated nearly 10,000 personnel while the craft remained RECOMMENDATION APPROVED—MSgt. John F. Doyle, Career Advisory NCO of Force Troops, is congratulated by Brig. Gen. Wood B. Kyle, Force Troops commanding general, following presentation of a certificate of retirement similar to the one he originated, which will be presented to enlisted Marines who complete 20 years' service.

COURT T. NORRIS

Navy Doctor's Son Now Marine PLC

"It's the man that counts in the Marine Corps, not so much the school he attended."

This was the reason given by Court T. Norris, who departed here, last week for Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., to attend the first increment of Platoon Leaders Course.

An explanation was in order, for Norris, a junior at the University of North Carolina is the son of Captain Frank T. Norris, USN, Commanding Officer, U. S. Naval Hospital, here.

Following this six-week period of the PLC program Norris will complete the senior course in the summer of 1963, after which he will receive a reserve commission as a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

Training and Test Regiment at Quantico combines training features of Marine boot camp, an accelerated physical fitness program, classes in basic military subjects and unit infantry tactics with daily sessions of close order drill.

This extensive training assists in eliminating those candidates who are unable to adjust to military discipline, with a well-rounded Marine officer as an end result.

Born in 1942 in Kinston, N. C. while his father was serving at Camp Lejeune, Norris has returned to this area for the fourth time and states this also may have been a deciding factor in his decision to enter the Marines.

With only a few sessions of SCUBA diving to his credit, but a desire to gain experience in the sport, Norris hopes to be assigned to a reconnaissance unit following his commission.

"I feel that this type of training will assist me in the future with guerrilla warfare situations becoming so frequent in these times," he stated.

Norris' elementary education began at Camp Lejeune in 1948 and continued through areas including Washington, D. C., Oak Noll, Calif., McClain, Va., Jacksonville, Fla., and finally Chapel Hill, N. C.

He attended Robert E. Lee High School in Jacksonville, Fla., and graduated from McClain High School in McClain, Va.

Marine Pilots Rescue Two Navy Flyers

Within seven minutes from time of ejection, two Navy flyers were rescued by two Marine HUS-1 helicopters from HMM-261 of the New River Air Facility.

The copters piloted by Capt. Marvin E. Peacock and David M. Knopic were flying a routine commitment out of NAS, Oceana, Va., when they heard a May Day broadcast from the Oceana tower.

The two pilots along with four other helicopters from the same squadron diverted from their mission to search for the two Navy flyers who had developed trouble in their F4H jet aircraft.

Capt. Knopic rescued Ens. K. F. Morrison, Airborne Intercept Officer after the downed aviator landed in a clearing. The Navyman walked to the helicopter after the craft set down near him.

Capt. Peacock spotted Lt. J. E. Bangert whose chute had hung in a patch of tall trees. Bangert had ignited a smoke flare to guide the chopper over his position.

The rescuing craft lowered a horse-collar to the downed aviator and pulled him safely into the helicopter.

Following the rescues, the remaining four helicopters in the emergency flight assisted in locating the wreckage of the downed F4H jet aircraft.

A message of appreciation for the fast work in the rescue has been received from NAS, Oceana by the Marine Helicopter Squadron.

Headquarters Company Is Division's Right Arm

A Marine joining the rolls of Headquarters Co., Headquarters Bn., 2d Marine Division, might be assigned to any one of 40 different sections.

The mission of Headquarters Company is to provide command, administration and security functions for the battalion, band support for the Division, and Chaplain's service to those units not having organic chaplains.

Maj. Albert O. Nelson, commanding officer, states, "We process the service records of a great many people. Joining and transferring is a constant administration function. In the length of a year, we transfer a total of men equal to the number carried on the company's rolls."

Major Nelson explained that many of our members are carried on a Temporary Additional Duty status. Personnel, who are students in various Division schools are carried on the rolls, sometimes as long as 17 weeks. In addition, permanent members are often TAD to Division units serving in the Mediterranean and Caribbean areas.

The Division Band, also a part of Headquarters Company, provides music for guard mounts, parades, concerts and sporting events. The Division Chorus has entertained on radio and television in the southeastern North Carolina area, and appeared before such personages as the President of the United States and the Queen of England.

Another part of Headquarters Company are those sections whose responsibility is to maintain and operate small bore ranges and administer indoctrination training in the Division gun chamber.

Still another Division activity calling for Headquarters personnel is the Division Postal Unit. This section is responsible for all postal service to the Division.

"Headquarters personnel must not only maintain a high state of efficiency in their regular duties," states Executive Officer 1st Lt. A. K. Kelly, "but must also fulfill the requirements of a rigorous training schedule."

Some men in infantry units look on Headquarters Marines and think of them as Marines with soft jobs. In this regard, 1st Sgt. Howard D. Paschal states, "Nothing could be further from the truth."

"SUN AND SURFERS"—A group of sun and sand worshippers engage in a little activity while attending Carolina Beach, approximately 75 miles from Camp Lejeune, this beach as well as many others are of easy access for the weekend Marine.

North Carolina Beaches Offer Fun For Everyone

(Editor's Note: This is a series of three articles on North Carolina beaches in the area for the Marine who plans to take the weekend trip to the seashore. Each week, three beaches within a hundred miles radius of Camp Lejeune will be reviewed.)

Some of the finest beaches in the United States form an eastern boundary for North Carolina's Variety Vacationland.

Within driving distance for the weekend Marine traveler, the beaches are not only a source of recreational fun and relaxation for the "Sun and Surf" crowd, but they also offer a veritable paradise for the outdoor sportsman.

The beaches attract thousands of persons each day during the summer months yet are rarely so crowded that they become unpleasant or uncomfortable to the user and his family.

Surf City

One of the best beaches in the area is Surf City, located east on a paved highway from U. S. 17 at Holly Ridge, 15 miles over the Surf City bridge, and approximately 10 miles from Camp Lejeune.

Here there is ideal swimming, fishing, crabbing, shrimping, clam and oyster fishing and duck hunting. Four fishing piers extend into the waters. It also provides fishing with mackerel and fish dominating the catch.

One of the most attractive features of Surf City is the amount of space, where parties may enjoy the sun and bathe in the comparative seclusion.

Wrightsville Beach

Wrightsville Beach is one of the most well known beaches in North Carolina, located just north of Wilmington. It is different in that it is a place of distinction that places it in the foremost in popularity among vacationists.

Carolina Beach

Carolina Beach has the distinction of achieving a blend of a thriving, well-known beach resort and at the same time providing all the conveniences of a modern American city.

The beach offers an ideal vacation in a modern city, complete with a gaily lighted amusement area and recreation time recreational facilities.

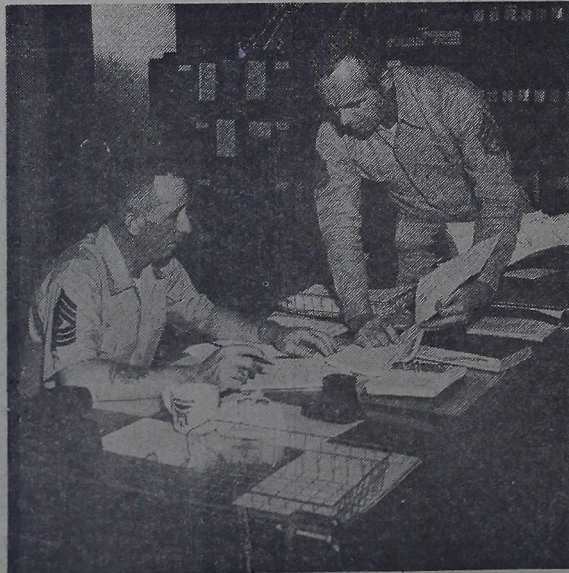

The entire area is a fishermen's heaven with three fishing piers extending well into the Atlantic Ocean. The catches of fish in the area offer bluefish, channel black drum, flounder and mullet.

In addition, the town has a canal connecting it to the Intracoastal Waterway, where harbormasters are available to the yachtsmen at the municipal dock as the only land-locked area in the city limits of the coastal Waterway.

Located as it is, Carolina Beach is ideal for a vacation on wheels for anyone, the family group, its small children, teenagers, young folks with all their energy and high spirits, the man with his desire to catch the fighting game fish, the Marine who wants to enjoy military life. Facilities are available for all.

Attention!

The Staff Aides and Ladies will hold an important meeting on Monday, August 12, at 10 a.m. in the Red Cross Ward 8, in the U. S. Naval Hospital. All members are urged to attend.

TRANSFER ORDERS—1st Sgt. Howard D. Paschal (left), checks transfer orders with Chief Clerk James E. Rickmon. Marines reporting for duty with Headquarters Company, 2d Marine Division, may be assigned to one of 40 various duty sections.

Beach Facilities Will Be Secured On August 6-9

Onslow Beach and facilities will be closed to all units, personnel and dependents on Aug. 6 and 9, from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Persons occupying officer beach houses and enlisted cabanas must evacuate these facilities prior to 10 a.m. on these dates.

Highways will be opened each day until 1:30 p.m. to permit re-entry to the Beach and facilities.

Highway 172, Sneads Ferry Road, Lyman Road and Marines Road will be closed to all traffic except emergency vehicles on Aug. 1, 3, 6, 7, and 9 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

For further information and hourly status of roads on dates stated above call Marine Corps Base Range Control at 7-5730, 7-3554, 7-5138 or 7-3920.

Identification Cards Needed All Buses

Inspection recently conducted of personnel being transported by buses noted that a number of persons checked did not have identification cards on their person. Of these, five were ordered to be aboard the reservation.

According to Base Order 100-1, "Personnel who possess a valid duty or retired military identification card, military employee identification card, or orders to active duty will be exempted from this reservation. Any person without these is disqualified."

Personnel to whom 'Civilian Identification Cards' or Military Identification Cards have been issued are required to have them in their possession at all times while aboard this reservation.

Bus drivers have been instructed to check identification cards of all military personnel (not including dependents) prior to boarding regular bus runs. Persons under the age of 10 must be accompanied by a person holding a valid Base or Government identification card as required in the Base Order.

Camp School Band Program Starts Monday

The school band program will start Monday at the Camp Lejeune High School to organize a band for the coming year and to acquaint new students with the instrumental program.

Students may register for individual and group participation on both the elementary and high school level.

Students in grades 8-12 are eligible for the marching band program. High school students begin with an instrument in a modern band.

Information may be obtained at the school during registration by calling the director, K. Griffin at the High School.

1918 — The 1st Marine Force landed at Brest.

Attention! Staff Aides will hold an information session on Monday, August 6, in the Red Room, 1st U.S. Marine Corps. All members are invited.

Dependents' Information

Infections of the ear, nose and throat in most cases can be prevented by following simple rules, says Dr. Blair N. Webb, Lt. Cmdr., USN, Officer-in-Charge, ENT Clinic, Naval Hospital. The GLOBE hopes that by running the following suggestions made by the doctor that some child at Lejeune will be spared this misery.

To prevent infection of the ear canal, or so-called "fungus" of the ear:

- Never clean the ears by using cotton-tipped applicators in the ear. Clean ears by wiping the excess wax from the outer part of the canal with a damp cloth (not soapy). Never place the fingertip in the ear passage. "A good rule to follow is to put nothing but your elbow in the ear canal."

- If the ears become wet, from any cause, place a few drops of ordinary rubbing alcohol in the ear passage. Do not dry the ears with rolled tissue paper or cloth.

- If the ears itch refrain from scratching. Place a few drops of rubbing alcohol in the ear. If itching progresses to pain, consult the medical officer.

Infections of the nose, ears, tonsils and throat are a real problem, especially in children. It should be understood that removing the tonsils and adenoids is not a solution in the majority of cases of infection to these organs. There are more and direct and far safer methods of controlling these diseases. About half of these infections can be prevented by following these simple rules:

- During the summer, do not allow your children to run in and out of air-conditioned environments. A steady temperature without rapid changes is a much healthier situation.

- During the winter months, or as soon as the heat is turned on, it is important to keep a vaporizer going at all times in the children's room. An attempt should be made to keep the whole house well humidified. In general, the homes heated by hot air vents normally run a humidity below 20 per cent, and the hot water heated homes are not much better. An ideal humidity is 50 per cent.

- All parents should observe the simple courtesy of not allowing children to attend school if they have even early symptoms of a cold or other upper respiratory diseases.

Cherry Point Pilots See Artillery Static Display

Artillery and airplanes are two of the main factors infantrymen depend on to help insure victory in combat. However, without teamwork which is so necessary to coordinate these two supporting elements, there would be no victory or, for that matter, any effective combat support.

The importance of artillery-air teamwork was brought home to more than 50 officers from Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point when they visited the 10th Marines, recently.

Following a briefing by Col. Wade H. Hitt, the "Flying Leathernecks" were escorted to a "Static Display" of weapons.

At the display, the Marines were shown through the Fire Support Coordination Center (FSCC) and a Battalion Fire Direction Center (FDC). At the two Centers, the officers were shown how each center operated, what its responsibilities are, who controls them and the types of equipment utilized.

Next, the visitors were shown the various artillery "pieces" employed by the Regiment. They were given explanations of the weapons and their capabilities by enlisted artillerymen who work with the guns. After they had been shown the weapons, the officers were shown the types of communication equipment which are so vital to artillery support and control.

After the tour of the "Static Display," the visiting Marines went to an artillery range for a firing demonstration.

Violator Pays, Is Permanent Hooper Now

Another week and another staggering traffic court report. One driver is now a permanent pedestrian at Camp Lejeune, and one for two years, one 18 months, and three more Marines for one year.

The following Marines have lost their Base driving privileges for 30 days or more:

Cpl. Leonard F. Fournier, CoA, 8th EngrBn, FT, speeding 45/35; driving under suspension, permanent.

Cpl. John L. Pipki, H&SCo, H&SBn, no license; speeding 60/45; reckless driving, driving under the influence, two years.

LCpl. Frederick E. Hatley, 2d Land Spt Co, 2d SerBn, careless and reckless driving, driving under the influence; overloading vehicle, 18 months.

LCpl. Leroy Matson, 3d LSI SupCo, 2d SerBn, no form 400; driving under the influence, one year.

LCpl. Arthur Carroll Jr., 2d MedBn, 2d Div, driving under the influence, one year.

Sgt. Max E. Rhoades, H&SCo, 1st ITR, driving under the influence, one year.

Pfc. David M. Trump, H&SCo, 3d, fraudulent use of CG's pass, six months.

Cpl. Richard R. Labrecque, 2d Bridge Co, FT, reckless driving; no operator's license, until license obtained plus 90 days.

Pfc. Roger A. Bourdon, FCO, 2/10, exceeding posted speed 40/25, three months.

Pfc. Natale A. Minucci, SerCo, H&SBn, 2d Div, failed to see intended move could be made in safety; no OL; unauthorized use of a government vehicle, six months.

Pfc. Lewis W. DeVore, SerCo, 8th EngrBn, FT, failed to yield right of way, six months.

Helicopter

invaluable as a means of observation, liaison, troop-carrying and transportation of supplies.

In September, 1951 the helicopters again made history by transporting the 1st Division's Reconnaissance Company, to the front lines, the first unit to do so.

Twelve years have gone by and the helicopter is here to stay. Gen. Gerald Thomas summed it up in one sentence, "Helicopter combat techniques and procedures were unquestionably the foremost tactical innovation of the ground conflict in Korea."

LONG COLD TREK DOWN—Marines of the 2d Force Reconnaissance Company are marching off a glacier which is situated near the northern border of Yosemite National Park. The Lejeune Marines received three weeks of rugged mountain combat and cold weather training at Marine Corps Cold Weather Training Center near Bridgeport, Calif.

Recon Unit Ends Mountain Training

Dissatisfied with the heat?

Marines of the 2d Force Recon Co., Force Troops, have the answer.

While across the nation for training at Marine Corps Cold Weather Training Center near Bridgeport, Calif., the Recon unit climbed to one of the United States' few glaciers to climax three weeks of mountain warfare instruction.

"It was cold," said the Marines.

After a five-hour climb to the ice-pack, they set up camp and bedded down for the night. They woke the next morning and found four inches of new snow.

Capt. Stanley Wawrzyniak, acting commanding officer of the company and a former instructor at CWTC, said he welcomed the snow storm because it gave his men experience in nature's changing ways.

"After all," said the Captain, "as Recon Marines we may be called upon to land and operate in any area or climate. This training has given us confidence that we can live and fight at high altitudes, in cold weather, and over a treacherous ice field."

The glacier covers the northern slope of Little Matterhorn Peak, elevation 12,281 feet, near Yosemite National Park. It is one of the many rugged training sites employed by the Cold Weather Training Center in summer and winter.

On the glacier the Recon Marines practiced various military maneuvers and cold weather mountain tactics. Training in such specialized subjects as crevasse rescue, casualty evacuation, practice falls and self-arrest measures rounded out the four rugged days.

on the ice pack.

Much of the time for the Lejeune Leathernecks in California was spent in mountain climbing and survival. At "Demonstration Rock," a broad, almost vertical cliff, the troops practiced tested methods of climbing and descending.

In ascending, the Marines employed the principles of balance-climbing, as individuals or in two-man teams. Ropes, pitons (hooks that are driven into the rock), and hammers are used in the most difficult climbs.

Though going up the cliff is dangerous and arduous, the Marines found the methods of coming down more exciting. All of the Recon men became proficient in the fastest and simplest method of descent — rappelling. In this, they descend a sheer cliff with a single rope, hopping down the side as they release short lengths of line.

At the Training Center the Recon Company also participated in an exercise designed to teach them how communists treat prisoners of war.

After an early morning "capture," the men were herded on trucks and transported to an isolated "prisoner compound" where they were questioned and indoctrinated in the communist manner for two days.

All the Marines were instructed to act in accordance with the Code of Conduct for prisoners of war. In addition, according to Capt. Wawrzyniak, they were expected to intelligently resist their captors and to recognize the intrigues employed by the communists in securing military information.

STEADY—Three Marines of the 2d Force Reconnaissance Company are doing a stretcher evacuation by means of a "rappel" method during training at Marine Corps Cold Weather Training Center. The Recon Marines received three weeks of rugged mountain and cold weather training at this High Sierra training site. The Marines are LCpl. Robert C. Dicomandrea, in stretcher; 1st Lt. Peter J. Johansen, left rappell; and Cpl. Joachim H. Brill.

Lunch Hour Scholars Deserve 'Well Done'

Congratulations are certainly in order for the eleven Marines, including four Woman Marines, who gave up their lunch hours to learn a foreign language. Certificates of Achievement for completing the six-week course in Spoken Spanish were presented to: 1st Lt. J. L. Shelton, Sgt. H. R. May, Cpl. J. E. Halsey, Pfc R. R. Robinson, WO N. J. Angelo, Cpl. H. Frau, SSgt. J. W. Pratte, SSgt. G. C. Novinski, Pfc's J. L. Parker, N. R. Kubilius and L. S. Staver.

These scholars from H&S Battalion, Marine Corps Base, worked hard for eight weeks, attempting to improve their minds, add to their education, and be of increased service to the Corps. We know that the Commandant would certainly add a "well done" to this acknowledgment from the GLOBE.

Lack of textbooks didn't keep the students from their driving ambition to learn Spanish conversation. It just goes to show what a little enthusiasm and self-determination can do.

This is a program that deserves serious consideration here. Think of the advantages a basic language program can have for you Marines who go to Puerto Rico each year, yet can't even say "hello" in Spanish. Think of the tremendous boost to our goodwill program this training will have. Can you imagine 70 or 80 per cent of a BLT speaking Italian, Spanish and French, when they leave for a Mediterranean cruise? It would be an asset for people-to-people programs and one noticed immediately in those countries.

Marines, get in the swing of things and begin cracking the books!

As for the language pioneers of H&S Battalion . . . they're already trying to begin a study of French.

UHURU, by Robert Ruark. "Uhuru"—freedom—is the one word most used and abused in Africa today, and it is upon the many highly contradictory individual interpretations of "Uhuru" that Robert Ruark has based this novel. Against a vast, turbulent background of present-day Africa, Mr. Ruark tells his gripping story of a white colonial, Brian Dermott, and his gradual disintegration in the face of the tensions and horror now tearing that continent apart. By the author of "Something Of Value."

THAILAND, by Robert L. Pendleton. An illustrated volume presenting a comprehensive view of the varied aspects of the life and landscape of modern Thailand—Southeast Asia's most modern, yet most exotic, land. Written under the auspices of the American Geographical Society by a distinguished scholar and long-time resident of the country, it presents a clear analysis of Thailand's geography and resources, its agriculture and industry, its technology and commerce.

THE WIND OFF THE SEA, by David Beaty. Gavin Gallagher, key man in the British antimissile program, disappears, and investigators conclude he was murdered. The reader of this novel, however, has access to Gallagher's private thoughts and knows that his death is of a piece with his life. Early in his training as an RAF pilot, Gallagher discovers a fatal tendency to confuse left with right. By rigorous self-discipline he overcomes this disability and becomes known as an officer who cannot tolerate the least mistake. Not until he nearly precipitates disaster by turning a firing key in the wrong direction does he review his life. A convincing depiction of a man molded by circumstance rather than purpose.

If You Ask Me:

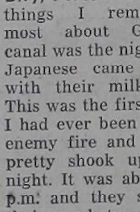

WHAT WAS YOUR MOST MEMORABLE EXPERIENCE WHILE ON GUADALCANAL?

GYSGT. CHARLES E. ATKINSON, Communications Chief, 3rd Bn., 10th Marines — I guess August 7, 1942 was somewhat of an intrusion by U.S. Marines to the Japanese on Guadalcanal.

At least to one Japanese officer in particular. We found him taking a bath in the Officers quarters at the air strip. The rest of the Japs left in pretty much of a hurry, for their breakfast was still warm. It consisted of rice, fruit and fish heads. We ate the rice and fruit.

MAJOR L. E. WALTON JR., CO, 8" How Btry, Force Troops — I think one of the things I remember most about Guadalcanal was the night the Japanese came down with their milk run. This was the first time I had ever been under enemy fire and I was pretty shook up that night. It was about 10 p.m. and they started their run between Tulagi and Guadalcanal and began shelling our positions. They were trying to knock out the air strip which was about 1/2 mile away but we seemed to be getting all the gunfire.

MSGT. WILLIAM A. COLLINS, Mess Management Chief, HqsCo., Pioneer Bn. —

Like all the island campaigns that followed, the 'Canal had its tragic side and its humor. I was a crew chief in AmTracs at the time and I remember one of the guys had a calf. We planned a big feed and each of us gave part of our rations to get the animal fattened up. The night before the planned feast, men in Charlie Company invited some of us over to a similar shindig. It wasn't until the next day that we learned we had enjoyed bits of our own beef.

GYSGT. OSWALD ISBISTER, 2d AmTracs, Force Troops—My most memorable experience came on the third day while over on Guadalcanal. We had been shooting shadows for the first two days and on the third day, we moved to the Tena River. Upon arriving, we began setting up machine guns in the rain. There was no outlet to the sea for the rain to escape to and one day while I was sitting in my foxhole, the water started getting higher and higher and pretty soon it was almost up to my nose. By that time, I decided it was time to leave so I crawled on top of the embankment over the foxhole and sat there till the next morning. Since everything was pretty well flooded, no moves of any kind were made, the lieutenant came up with the idea to take some entrenching tools and make a narrow ditch to let the water drain out. A few hours after the ditch commenced, the Army had to fill the bridge across in order to transport troops.

CAPT. FRANK T. NORRIS, USN, U. S. Naval Hospital — I suppose my memorable experience on Guadalcanal was waking up on the morning of Aug. 9 and looking out to sea. The only Naval vessel in sight was the USS Elliott which was burning in the harbor. Of course we all wondered what happened to our ships. We had no way of knowing about the great raging far out at sea between our vessels and the Japanese Navy.

Chaplain's Corner

"Why be old-fashioned? Have a new time," is the advice frequently given by those who would persuade the herd instinct and follow the crowd. "Everybody is doing it." "When do as the Romans do!"

Of course, everybody is not doing it and even if they were it would not necessarily be wise and true and right. Fortunately, there has always been a minority who have insisted that the most people seem to be doing things, the majority can be, and are, almost always been changed by people who have had the moral courage to stand up and be counted, and if necessary, for their convictions they considered to be right in the eyes of God.

No one wants to be unpopular, must learn that popularity may be worth the price—especially if it is bought at the price of principle.

Some may say, "But I don't want to make enemies." Neither did Jesus. He obeyed God. We will never see the kind of world He died to give us, we have at least a minority of people who would rather be right than popular.

Abraham Lincoln once proposed we "have faith that right makes and in that faith let us to the end do our duty as we understand it."

"Minorities, since time began, have shown the better side of the coin. And often in the lists of the One man has made a cause."

Guadalcanal...The Beginning Of

THE LONG CLIMB—The ridges surrounding Henderson Field were scenes of some of the bitterest fighting during the campaign. Here members of the 1st Marine Division's Raider Battalion move atop one such ridge.

MUD HOLE—Japanese forces and disease were not the only enemies encountered by Marines on Guadalcanal. Weather at times hampered operations. A good example is this stranded threesome awaiting help to get their mired Jeep moving again.

CARLSON'S RAIDERS—The 1st Marine Division's Raider Battalion was one of several leap-frog movements during the campaign.

August 7 will mark the 20th anniversary of the first American ground offensive action in the Pacific during World War II.

At 9:10 a.m., on that fateful day in 1942, Marines landed on an obscure island in the Solomons—Guadalcanal.

For the Japanese, Guadalcanal marked the beginning of the end for their plan to rule the vast regions of the Pacific.

For Americans, Guadalcanal provided a much needed lift to morale which felt the tragic effects of the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor and the series of island conquests that followed. Within a few weeks following December 7, 1941, Japanese forces were within sight of Alaska in the north, within striking distance of Hawaii in the east, and threatening Australia in the south.

For Marines of the 1st Division, Guadalcanal was a test of their tenacity and will to win.

Possibly never before in the history of U. S. military campaigns, and certainly not since Guadalcanal, has a military operation been launched with such a marginal chance for success. Throughout the entire campaign, victory was never assured.

When the 1st Marine Division got the word it was headed for action in the Solomons, it was just getting set up in New Zealand for six months of intensive combat training. With but one month's notice, the Marines girded for battle, loaded aboard transports with the barest of essentials, and sailed for combat.

Awaiting them at Guadalcanal was an enemy superior in numbers, and of even more importance, an enemy superior in air and naval support.

Initial landings were made on the island adjacent to a prime target—an airfield, which when taken, would be named Henderson Field and provide facilities for the Marine aviation units gathered for the assault.

On the morning of August 7, a landing was also conducted on the nearby island of Tulagi. Three days of fierce fighting followed during which 1,500 Japanese defenders fought to their death.

With Tulagi secured, the Marines gathered forces on Guadalcanal and settled down to five long months of desperate jungle warfare. Overcoming adversity in every quarter, the men of the 1st Marine Division and 1st Marine Aircraft Wing soon established a reputation for being able to accomplish the impossible.

While the Marines were holding their own ashore, helped along by faulty reinforcement strategy of the Japanese, the American Navy was suffering the worst series of reverses in its history. The Japanese and Americans, bolstered on occasion by Australian and New Zealand ships, fought repeated battles in the waters off Guadalcanal. The main channel in the Solomon Sea was given importance title, the Iron-Bottom, in dubious tribute to the number of ships that were there during frequent costly night battles.

November, 1942, a critical month in which the issue was decided. Around the clock fighting, of continuous fighting, artillery, air and naval fire all playing a vital role, saw the virtual destruction of one Japanese division and elements of still another.

On December 9, the command of the 1st Marine Division was transferred from Maj. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift to Maj. Gen. M. Patch, commanding general of the 1st Marine Division and senior officer present.

On February 8, 1943, the 1st Marine Division reported to the Joint Chiefs of Staff that the Japanese forces on Guadalcanal had been destroyed.

Marine losses in the capture of Guadalcanal amounted to over 1,500 officers and men killed, and 23,800 wounded in action. The Japanese lost 23,800 during the campaign, together with other thousand taken prisoners.

In the air, the battle weighed heavily in the Allies who accounted for 600 enemy planes and lost less than half as many in return.

An accounting of the comparative losses during the battle for Guadalcanal was given by D-Day.

THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY

WASHINGTON

4 February 1943.

The President of the United States

THE FIRST MARINE DIVISION, REINFORCED

Under command of Major General Alexander A. Vandegrift, U.S.M.C.

CITATION:

"The officers and enlisted men of the First Marine Division, Reinforced, on August 7 to 9, 1942, demonstrated outstanding gallantry and determination in successfully executing forced landing assaults against a number of strongly defended Japanese positions on Tulagi, Gavutu, Tanambogo, Florida and Guadalcanal, British Solomon Islands, completely routing all the enemy forces and seizing a most valuable base and airfield within the enemy zone of operations in the South Pacific Ocean. From the above period until 9 December, 1942, this Reinforced Division not only held their important strategic positions despite determined and repeated Japanese naval, air and land attacks, but by a series of offensive operations against strong enemy resistance drove the Japanese from the proximity of the airfield and inflicted great losses on them by land and air attacks. The courage and determination displayed in these operations were of an inspiring order."

Frank Knox
Secretary of the Navy.

PRESIDENTIAL UNIT CITATION—This is a facsimile of the Presidential Unit Citation awarded to the 1st Marine Division, Reinforced, for action during the period Aug. 7 through Dec. 9, 1942.

CACTUS AIR FORCE—Less than one month after the invasion of Guadalcanal, Headquarters of the 1st Marine Aircraft Wing arrived and took command of the composite organization that came to be known as the Cactus Air Force.

RAINY SEASON—During the rainy season on Guadalcanal, areas were often flooded, such as this camp situated in a coconut grove.

RECRUITED GUIDES—Some were used as guides during the battle for Guadalcanal.

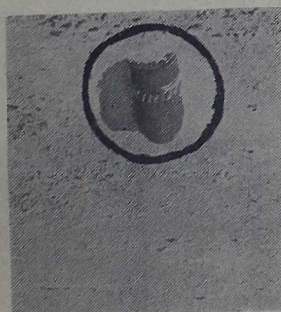

DANGER SIGNS as depicted are posted on the beach area around Brown's Inlet as well as Brown's Island. These areas are restricted to all military and civilian personnel.

Brown's Island Is Unexploded Ordnance Arsenal; Avoid Serious Injury, Keep Off

BIG FISH—This 106mm shell fired from a recoilless rifle on range G-7 lies unexploded on the shore of Brown's Island near one of the better fishing areas. If you fish here you may catch one, but chances are you won't land it.

TANK SHELL—This 90mm high explosive tank shell is almost covered by sand on the beach at Brown's Island. Unexploded shells such as this are killers.

TOUCH AND TELL—Can you touch this 90mm high explosive shell and tell if it's a dud? If you do and it's not, you most likely will never tell.

Are you flirting with death? If you swim, fish or go boating near Brown's Island or the Brown's Island Inlet areas, you certainly are. This area is a target and bombing impact area for the Marines of Camp Lejeune, and is virtually an arsenal of unexploded ordnance. Many times invisible to the human eye, deadly projectiles are embedded in the sand of the island or in the surrounding marshland. Others are concealed by water and shifting sands. Due to inaccessibility of many portions of the swampy tidelands in the impact area, local explosive ordnance experts are able to remove or neutralize only about 10 per cent of these live shells. Several days ago experts discovered a huge 250-pound bomb that had been uncovered, near the island, and placed in an upright position on the beach. This bomb was fully charged and could have killed those tampering with it.

The Base Range Officer stated, "Persons should realize that the area has been used for target practice since 1941, and the hazards existing to life and limb should certainly become obvious."

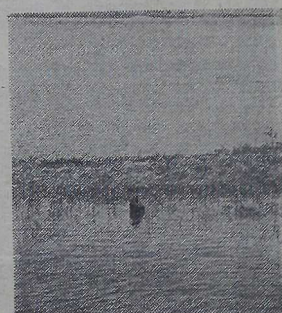

U. S. Federal Regulations, containing information concerning the Brown's Island area read in part: "All navigable waters between the south bank of Bear Creek and north bank of the north connecting channel between the Atlantic Intercoastal Waterway and Brown's Inlet will be closed to navigation at all times. There are highly sensitive explosive projectiles within the limits of this area. "Vessels may pass through the north connecting channel and the south connecting channel (Banks Channel) between the Intercoastal Waterway and Brown's Inlet to the ocean whenever the military is not using the area. Extreme caution is urged when using these waters. Unusual water turbulence could trigger the unpredictable explosives."

Base officials further report, "Warning of military use of the impact area and surrounding waterways is periodically inserted in the weekly "Notices to Mariners," local news media and Base firing bulletins."

In addition, large "Impact Area" warning signs are posted clearly in sight, throughout the danger area.

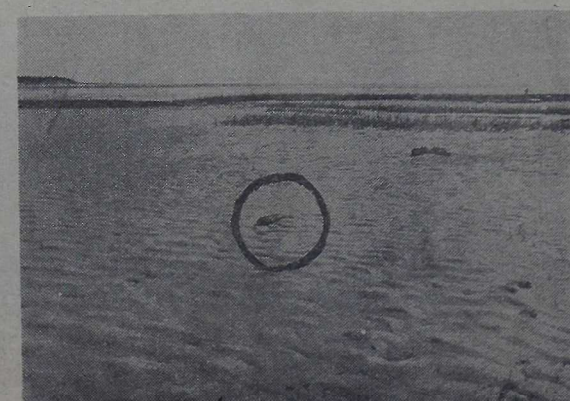

Regulations prohibit Marine personnel from entering any danger impact area, at any time, including that of Brown's Island. All other persons are urged to follow this advice and live longer.

ALMOST SUBMERGED — The marshland around Brown's Island is covered with unexploded artillery and tank shells such as this one.

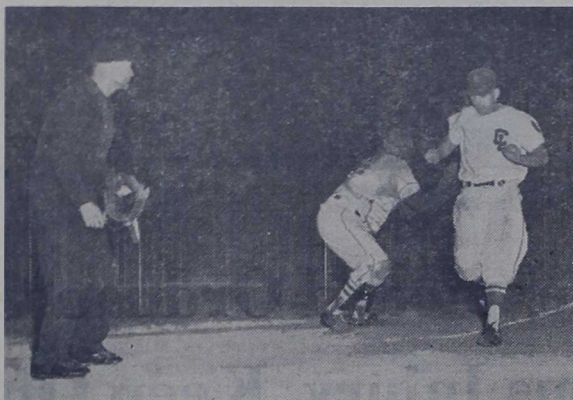

STILL ARMED—Note the nose fuse of this still armed and highly dangerous projectile. The shell was found lying in the marsh area between Brown's Island and Banks Canal.

LIVE DUD—This 75mm high explosive artillery shell was buried by tide water on the beach at Brown's Inlet.

Varsity Edges Raleigh To End Season

Bud Simpson Assures Win With Speed

Smart base running by Lejeune speedster Cliff Simpson proved a big difference as the Lejeune Marines climaxed their 1962 baseball season with a 10-inning, 4-3, triumph over the Raleigh Tigers Monday evening.

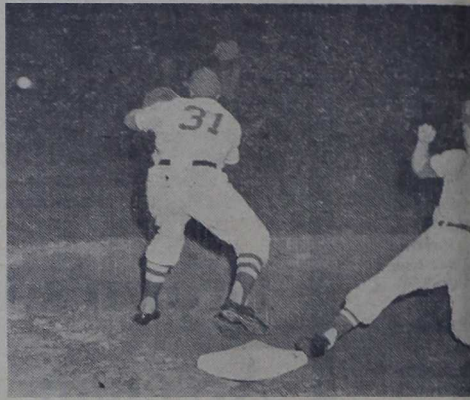

The victory gave Lejeune a final record of 45-16. They had closed out the ECIC schedule last week in second place with a 25-11 record behind Fort Lee. Lee still has 13 conference games to play.

Monday's game was a pitcher's battle all the way. Although Lejeune used four pitchers, only one was in a relief performance while the rest were pulled for pinch-hitters. Bill Herrington, the last Marine hurler, chalked up the victory.

The Marines broke into the scoring column with a run in the seventh and added two more in the eighth.

With Tom Mazzolini pitching for the Marines, Raleigh started to threaten in their half of the ninth when Bob Rice singled to left and stole second. With only one down and the winning run on second base, Mazzolini started to beat down and struck out both Willie "Sugar Boy" Campanella and Earl Westbrook to retire the side and stop the threat.

Simpson led off the last of the 10th with a walk. The next play was the turning point of the game as Curt Salyer followed with a well-placed bunt and moved Simpson to second. Instead of stopping there, the fleet-footed center-fielder hesitated for a second and dashed toward third base, where he slid in safely. With the runner on third and one down, Norton lofted a long fly to center. After the catch, Simpson tagged up and came across for the winning run.

BACK IN TIME—Marine shortstop Wayne Whitmore into first base with plenty of time to spare during the ninth. Lejeune got two men on base in this inning to score. They did the job in the tenth, winning the year, 4-3, over the Raleigh Tigers. (Photo by Pfc E. J. O'Neill)

Marine Lands Big Tarpon To Set Bogue Inlet Record

Eighty-two pounds of fish were hauled in from the surf early Saturday morning, July 21, when Cpl. A. J. Burlington, Jr., of H&S Bn., 2d FSR, caught a record size tarpon at Bogue Inlet Pier, Emerald Isle. It was the largest fish of this species hooked in the Morehead City area this year.

Cpl. Burlington, using a heavy rod and reel, with only a 30-pound test line, fought with the large fish for 15 minutes before it broke the water and leaped for the first time. In the next half hour, it made two more leaps, trying to shake the hook, but the skillful Burlington stayed with his quarry.

Finally, after 75 minutes of fighting, the tarpon was hauled up to the pier, gaffed and brought ashore by the fisherman and a few excited spectators, after giving Burlington quite a scare.

"The fish was too heavy to haul on the dock, so one of the spectators volunteered to gaff it. He missed the first three times and gave me quite a scare, but on the fourth attempt he hit home, and in it came," reported Burlington.

The fish was weighed and measured officially in Morehead City for the records, and it proved to be the biggest and heaviest caught so far this year, at 81½ pounds in weight, and 6 feet 1 inch in length.

When asked to comment on his record catch, Cpl. Burlington remarked, "This just goes to prove that there is always a surprise in store for any fisherman when he drops his line into the surf along the coast of North Carolina. I know I was surprised."

By LCPL. BILL GIERY

A Month Of Nothing

For the first time this year, Camp Lejeune has a varsity spectator sport and the regular fans will settle for intramurals until Oct. 6, the third game of the Lejeune football schedule.

Varsity football for Camp Lejeune begins on Oct. 6 with Fort Benning playing host to the Marines of the 1st Marine Division. The following week will see the Marines pitted against old nemesis, Pensacola, who seems to be for the time being the favorite of the Marines, a natural gathering place for major college football stars.

Last year's contest with Pensacola was one of the most thrilling of the year, only to be equalled by Lejeune's victory over Quantico.

In that contest with the Navy, an underdog Lejeune eleven rushed the star-studded Pensacola team feet in the first half and then fought off a furious attack to eke out a narrow 17-15 upset before an estimated 9,500 Lejeune fans.

No Concern Now

We are not too concerned about what Pensacola's team looks like at the present. What we are concerned about is the fact that Lejeune fans will still be winning a sort of spectator sport for the next month.

It is too bad that baseball could not continue its season for another month, especially since the Army team conference have lost all their National Guard players called up by President Kennedy. Men like Jimmy Grant and Ron Hansen are no longer with Ft. Belvoir, Ft. Meade, respectively, but have returned to their tasks as ballplayers for the Cleveland Indians and the Baltimore Orioles.

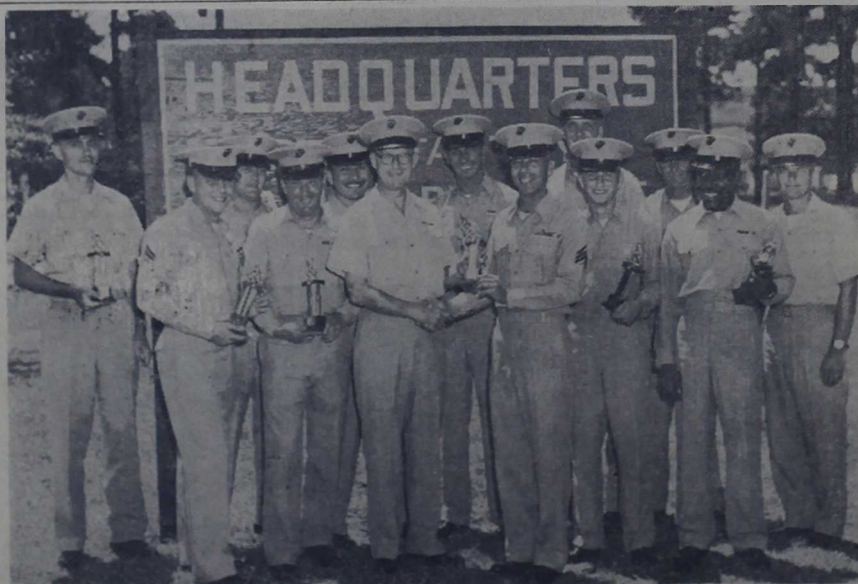

Without these reservists, Lejeune might have a first place right now, and if the schedule was continued could have proved themselves better. Lejeune fans would have proved themselves better. Lejeune fans would have proved themselves better. Lejeune fans would have proved themselves better.

Some feel that without the Army call-up, Lejeune would go untouched, but that might never be a reality. NEXT YEAR.

Don't Count Them Out

I hope that this column does not sound as if it is not a stitch of hope left. The Marines could still win the East Coast Interservice Conference crown. But they will win it the hard way, through the back door.

Lee has 13 conference games remaining on their schedule and currently boast a record of 16-6. With the losses, Lejeune will be in a first-place tie. Without the crown is ours.

REGIMENTAL CHAMPS—Lt. Col. L. W. Smith Jr., commanding officer of 1st Infantry Training Regiment, presents a first place trophy to Sgt. 4mer Takes Fourth Race Current Sailing Series

Jack Lardner moved closer to the lead for the six-race sailing series last Saturday by out-racing a fleet of boats to capture the fourth race in the series. The victory for Lardner moved him directly behind the leading point L. G. Prickett in the battle for the series trophy. Lardner, who was far behind at the start, fought his way back to take over the lead on the final leg of the race. Lardner took second place after trading the lead with Lardner several times, while Dr. Ed Wyman was close on his heels to place third.

Upsets Mark Boys League Playoff Tilts

A pair of upsets in the Major League's final day of play last Saturday have pitted the Pirates against the Cardinals as they began the best of a three game series Tuesday to determine the Camp Lejeune Boys League Championships in that division.

Due to GLOBE deadline the results of the first game were not available at presstime and will be re-capped in next week's edition. In last Saturday's big games, the Pirates shaded the Cards, 3-2, scoring a run in the final inning, while the Cardinals, scoring three runs in the fifth inning without a hit, and adding another in the sixth, downed the Cubs, 4-3, although getting only two hits throughout the game.

The eliminated Cards had finished the season with an 18-2 record, five and a half games in front of the second place Cubs. The Pirates completed the season in third place with a 12-8 slate, while the Cardinals finished fourth with 11-9.

In Minor League action, Gordon St. Amant pitched the Mets into the playoffs, by hurling a no-hitter as his team downed the Senators, 1-0. St. Amant faced only 22 batters in firing the no-hitter, while striking out 12.

The Angels also advanced into the playoffs by virtue of a 5-4 victory over the White Sox. The Angels trailed until the seventh inning when they tied the score at 4-4. They pushed across the winning run in the eighth.

The second game of the series begins at 5 p.m. today. If necessary, the third and deciding contest will be played this Saturday afternoon.

Service Bn. Wins Crown In 2d Division Intramurals

Service Bn., behind the one-hit pitching of Jim Brown, defeated Hqs., 2d Marines, Monday night, 3-2, to capture the championship in the 2d Division Softball Intramural Tournament.

This victory, coupled with an earlier Headquarter's loss, won for Service Bn. the honor of representing the Division in the FMF, Atlantic, Softball Tournament to be held at Cherry Point and slated to start Aug. 20.

The victors, who completed their season with a 16-1 won-loss record, garnered a large portion of their runs from the big bats of Jerry Hughes and Chuck Hancock, the most consistent hitters on the team.

John Enderly of Hq. 2, who had hurled a one-hitter of his own against 3/10 in the semi-finals earlier last week, drew the loss in the championship contest.

Strong pitching was the formula that the 1962 Division Softball representatives used for success during the season as Service Bn.'s Lynn Larrik and Jim Brown combined for five no-hitters and compiled an earned run average of 0.00 each for the season.

Service Bn. moved into the Quad-Command Tournament which started yesterday. Their first opponent was ASD Bn., champion in the Marine Corps Base tourney. Due to GLOBE deadline the results of this game were not available at presstime and will be re-capped in next week's edition.

Scouts 'On Their Way' To National Roundup

Sixteen excited senior scouts from surrounding areas boarded a train at Goldsboro, N. C., July 16. Destination: Button Bay Park, Vt. They are attending the National Senior Roundup to be held there July 18-31. This will be the third Roundup to be sponsored by Girl Scouts and the largest event for teenage girls in the free world.

Two of the 16 were Janet Waskom of Camp Lejeune and Diana Chambers, Marine Corps Air Facility. Janet is of the Friendship VIII Patrol and has been assigned as the group's photographer. Diana, Council of Coastal Carolina Patrol, is the scout snooper. She will send reports daily to the Jacksonville Daily News.

Purpose of the international encampment, often the culminating experience of a girl's scouting days, is to bring together girls of the various races, national origins and creeds to share in a rich camping experience and a wide selection of activities.

Over 10,000 girls and adult members are participating. The campers, 14 through 17 years old, from all 50 states of the Union and U. S. possessions are being joined by close to 200 Girl Guide Rangers from approximately 20 countries.

The girls are erecting a city of 6,000 multicolored tents in the 250-acre Button Bay State Park and adjacent fields and woodlands. The Roundup encampment, located approximately 25 miles southwest of Burlington, will temporarily be the sixth largest city in Vermont.

In addition to three major arena events, the campers are staging demonstrations illustrating typical features of their respective region or country. These include folk dancing, singing, cooking and demonstrations of local occupations and industries, from weaving to western branding. The North Carolinians have prepared plays depicting the history of the cotton gin and tobacco raising.

"Honor the Past — Serve the Future," the 50th Anniversary theme, is being carried out at the Roundup. A reconstructed Colonial Village Green in the center of the camp brings the past to life with its sugar house, bandstand, thimble factory, surreys, gigs and other mementos of by-gone days.

The role of women in the future is being discussed in the course of four youth forums on human relations and world affairs. As part of their service to the future, the girls have undertaken a conservation project by planting trees in the still undeveloped Button Bay State Park.

In addition to being of service to their country and community, in accordance with the Girl Scout Promise "...to do my duty to God," the campers may attend religious services of their choice. For the first time, the Roundup staff includes resident chaplains of the three major faiths — Protestant, Catholic and Jewish.

RD1—Boarding the train at Goldsboro, senior scouts from this area who were attend the 1962 National Senior Roundup in Bay Park, Vt. Over 10,000 girls and adult members are participating in this third Roundup sponsored by the Girl Scouts. It commenced July 18 and will continue until July 31.

Gala Hawaiian Luau Highlights Schedule For Local Teenagers

"Aloha, Hawaii! Aloha, Hawaii!" This is probably the topic of conversation among members of the Camp Lejeune Teen Club as they prepare for their gala "Hawaiian Luau" to be held on August 11 beginning at 7:30 p.m. in Marston Pavilion. Hawaiian attire is to be worn which includes clam diggers, lava-lava's, sarongs and moomoos.

Since this affair is to be as authentic as possible, favorite Hawaiian recipes have been made and the menu will consist of Hawaiian style chicken, baked ham, assorted salads, baked potatoes, peas and Hawaiian punch.

Entertainment for the floor show will be done on a voluntary basis from various members of the club or anyone wishing to show his or her talent. A well-known orchestra will provide the musical background. A King and Queen will be chosen by the group to reign over the festivities.

Local fathers have gotten together to make a large float which is to be put out on the water. At the designated time, the float will be ignited and a huge "bonfire" will throw out its rays over the area. This event is titled the "Wahine-O-Kai Sacrifice," which translated into English means "The Goddess of the Sea Sacrifice."

Teenagers between the ages of 13 and 19 desiring membership in the club are invited to attend. There will be a maximum of three guests allowed to each member. Ticket sales will be published in next week's GLOBE. For more information contact Judy Noren at ext. 6-6670.

Lejeune's Teen Club Elects New Officers

Al Kyle, outgoing president of the Camp Lejeune Teenage Club, in the absence of President Sharon McCabe, installed Zaney Thomas as vice-president and Marcel Boulangel as secretary in a short ceremony held recently at Marston Pavilion. Present treasurer of the club is Jim Rogers.

General elections of club officers and representatives-at-large are held quarterly with a one-half turnover each quarter. Term of office is for a six month period.

Newly elected representatives-at-large include senior girl, Pat Kelly; junior boy, John McKeon; sophomores, Larry Aycock, Mary Case and freshmen, Toni Price and Jack Strunk.

Only regular members who are in good standing are eligible for nomination for election to hold the office of an officer of the club or to be elected to the position of a representative-at-large.

Nominees for office of president and vice president are from junior or senior high school class groups at the time of nomination. This is provided they will not become ineligible for regular membership during their tenure of office.

After the meeting, officers met with Mrs. Selwyn Orcutt, Youth Community Director and the Teen Club director, Mrs. Doris Kanavel, to discuss tentative plans for a Hawaiian Luau.

The Teenage Club operates under immediate supervision of an Advisory Group approved by the Commanding General, Marine Corps Base. The Advisory Group is assisted in the discharge of its duties by the Director, Marston Pavilion Youth Center, a duty non-commissioned officer and an Executive Council elected from the club membership.

Sea-Rotors Probe 'The World Below'

Plunging into the chilly water of a nearby lake or the blue water of the Atlantic Ocean is a thrill enjoyed by nearly everyone on the Eastern seaboard. How many of these endless thousands of swimmers can say, that they have probed into the world down under?

Because of the growing interest in "SCUBA" diving, new clubs are being formed, both civilian and military. The Sea-Rotors, a group of well-trained Self-Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus (SCUBA) divers from New River Air Facility, are an example of the keen interest that has recently started.

The club was formed June 1, 1960 by Sgt. Toris Juneau, Jr., the club's first president, before being relieved of the post in June by Sgt. M. J. Ray. Cpl. R. L. Cheadle is vice-president. Three of the original five members, SSgt. Ralph J. Allen, Sgt. Toris Juneau Jr., and Cpl. R. L. Cheadle, are still with the club. At present, there are 36 members and the club is still growing.

The club has been a member of the North Carolina Skin-Diving Council since Nov. 1961. There are, at present, 17 skin-diving clubs in the council. Earlier this year, when the Council wanted information about the surrounding schools, so they might give classes on water safety, they asked the MCAF Sea-Rotors to help gather the information. Not only did the Sea-Rotors secure the information, but they also made a list of the equipment dealers and places where they could get air for their tanks.

With the hurricane season upon us, MCAF SCUBA divers have a three-man underwater rescue and recovery team standing by to aid the Jacksonville rescue squad and fire department. Their primary objective, during such conditions, is to rescue those who might have been swept into New River or the Atlantic Ocean. During this time the club is under control of the Provost Marshal's Office.

The club does most of its diving at Carolina Beach and Malhamate Rock, located at Onslow Beach. The Sea-Rotors also have the distinction of having divers in the Mediterranean and the Caribbean area, while on maneuvers.

The club holds swimming workouts every Tuesday night at 8 p.m. at the MCAF Training Tank. Here, all who wish to become members are tested on their ability in water. Meetings are held on the second Tuesday of the second month of each quarter.

BLT 2-6 Marine Tour Spain, Italy

WITH THE SIXTH FLEET IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, PALERMO, (Delayed) — The cities visited by Battalion Landing Team 2/6 when they pulled into Barcelona, Spain, might well grace the folders of any travel agency booking first class passengers on a Mediterranean cruise.

BLT 2/6, embarked aboard the ships of Amphibious Squadron SIX, is currently deployed in the Mediterranean as the landing force of the U. S. Sixth Fleet.

In addition to Barcelona, the ports of call include Naples, Italy, and Palermo, Sicily. While at Naples, many Marines took guided tours to Rome, Pompei, and Capri.

The favorite port for most of the Marines was Barcelona. This ancient city of guitars and flamenco dancers provided diversion and amusement for all tastes. Recreational opportunities included golf, bowling, swimming, horseback riding, boating, and sightseeing.

Many Marines took the tour of the Monastery of Montserrat. The Monastery, run by the Benedictine Order, perches near the crest of the 1,235-foot mountain that overshadows Barcelona. It is accessible only by a cable car that provides a breathtaking view as it climbs the sheer mountain face.

After two days at sea, the amphibious force anchored in the harbor at Naples, the third largest city and one of the most important ports in Italy.

Once the capital of the two Sicilies, the densely populated city has many historic buildings. Its opera is reputed as one of the best in the world.

Pompeii, a 40-minute bus ride from Naples, was buried by an eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in 79 A.D. Excavations began in 1748 and still in progress have unearthed a basilica, a forum, a theater, an amphitheater and houses decorated with pictures, statues, and mosaics. The antiquities tell the story of a way of life that had achieved surprising sophistication for this early age.

Capri is an island at the entrance of the Gulf of Naples. It is reached by a 90-minute boat ride from the city. This time was cut out for those Marines enough to get seats on the hydrofoil boat. The island is five miles wide and has a population of about 6,000.

Marines making Rome saw the Pope and grandeur of the city where the murals of Michelangelo adorn the walls of the Roman Colosseum itself has many of its former glory. The Coliseum and the forum.

The ships of the squadron left Naples at Palermo the following day. Palermo, the seat of government, is of Pagan origin and came under the influence of the Carthaginians in the fifth century B. C. about 590,000 people in all directions throughout with modern buildings.

Mondello Beach, playground of Palermo, is a gathering spot for Marines.
