Reserves Arrive Here Ready And Rarin' To Go

The first contingent of the Organized Marine Corps Reserves arrived at Camp Lejeune midst the hustle and bustle of pick-up activities. The first group to disembark at the Marine's Most Complete Amphibious Training Base was the 1st Battalion from Cumberland.

Cumberland unit, which reset a new attendance record of 99.63 for the participation in the Summer Training exercises conducted here in stepped smartly from the bus and after a quick and orderly march, departed for their assignment in a swirl of dust.

Following close behind, was the 2nd Battalion from Washington, D. C., which has a history dating back to the First World War. It was commanded by Colonel "Heinie" H. H. H., who was at the station in to bid them "Good luck." The unit was given a grand send-off by Colonel John E. Pondahl, former Commanding Officer, and now the Inspector of the Metropolitan Police in Washington in charge of the Marine Defense, was also there to bid the boys farewell.

The United States Marine Band, under the capable direction of Major Santelman, the organization in their line march up Constitution avenue down Delaware avenue from the Marine Armory at 3rd and C, to the depot from which they were entrained.

The arrival of the Washington unit at Camp Lejeune became a family affair for five of the active members, as the five first cousins, Daniel and Lynn, brothers, of East Lyn Church, Va.; Charles and Fortney, brothers, of

Two British Air Officers On Duty At Cherry Point

Cherry Point, N. C.—British Royal Air Force Officers, Squadron Leader J. R. Gardner and Flight Lieutenant N. Poole, arrived at the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N. C., yesterday for assignment to duty with one of the Night Fighter Squadrons operating from this huge air station.

The British Officers are here under the new policy of having members of the various services train at other than their own organization's bases. This gives the men an opportunity to familiarize themselves with equipment they may be called upon to use in the future and also to take back information to their fellow servicemen.

Squadron Leader Gardner reported from the RAF, West Malling, Kent, England where he was commanding officer of a Night Fighter Squadron. His wife, Ghita and daughter Carolyn Jane now residing in Kent, England and will join him in the future when transportation to the United States is available.

Women Contingent Arrives For Duty At Camp Lejeune

Almost four years to the day after the last WR left here, women reservists returned to Camp Lejeune for duty.

It became official at 10:10 a.m. on Tuesday when TSgt. Josephine R. Gibson arrived at the Camp Bus Station with a detail of seven women reservists from Washington, D. C.

They were:
SSgt. Elsie W. Hutchinson;
SSgt. Myrtle I. Seavey; SSgt. Stella Uharczuk; Sgt. Mildred E. Eaker; Sgt. E. Grogan; Julia M. Pierce; and Cpl. Virginia S. Kegel.

Farewell From The CG

The outstanding spirit of cooperation and the speed with which all members of this command have executed this difficult task of mounting out elements of this Division on extremely short notice leave nothing to be desired. I am highly impressed with the diligence and one hundred percent loyalty shown and extend my thanks and congratulations to all hands for this splendid effort.

To those of you who are leaving my best wishes and good luck. I know that you will be a credit to your new organization and to the Corps.

Maj. Gen. Ray A. Robinson.

Message From CG FMFLANT

Please convey to the units of the Fleet Marine Force Atlantic departing for the West Coast my personal wishes for their future success. I am proud of all units of the Fleet Marine Force Atlantic and I am sure we will continue to remember and to be proud of the units being transferred to the West Coast. Rest of luck to all of you. Hope we can all get together again someday.

Lt. Gen. Leroy P. Hunt.

Pusan, Strategic Port For Our Troops

The largest port in South Korea, Pusan, is also the third largest city in Korea. Defense Department officials have indicated that it is through this port that the bulk of men and supplies to UN forces fighting in South Korea are being moved.

The port is a bastion defended by nature, as well as by the democratic armies and navies of the United Nations.

The city itself is situated in a narrow pass and is surrounded by bare, steep hills. From the waterfront, the commercial district can barely be distinguished because of the rugged screening terrain. As for the harbor, it too is located so as to facilitate strong defense operations.

Just outside the harbor's entrance is the island of Mok To, a mile and a half wide and four miles long. The two passes between the island and the mainland are narrow and are overhung with high rock formations.

In addition to its docking and shipyard facilities, Pusan is a major industrial city. There are factories which produce textiles, gas, rubber goods, matches, soap and other products. Also Pusan boasts of an oil refinery.

The port city of 300,000 is a mere 135 miles across the Korean Strait to the Japanese port of Shimonoseki.

There are three other South Korean ports which can handle light shipping. They are Masan, Yosu and Mokpo. These, however, haven't the deep draft or the excellent rail facilities to compare with Pusan. (AFPS)

Hey! Is You Is,

With U. S. Forces in Korea. (Delayed) (AFPS)—As American troops moved forward following a recent assault landing they talked over the chances of hand-to-hand fighting.

A lanky Texan, his face wrinkled with concern, asked his buddy: "How we gonna tell a South Korean from a North Korean?"

The answer: "Easy, brother. If he's a South Korean he'll walk up to you and say 'Hello, you all.' If he's a North Korean he'll shoot you daid from a tank."

ree-clad Marines loaded box car after box car with equipment brought to railway sidings by an endless stream of trucks. Neither night nor frequent drenching thunder storms showed the feverish preparations for departure.

A ceaseless stream of jeeps, ambulances, trucks, and heavy rolling equipment moved up the long concrete loading ramp and onto waiting flat cars. As fast as the cars were loaded and the vehicles battered down with rope and wooden chocks, engines switched them onto sidings and moved up empty.

Strings of loaded flat cars were seen to stretch for hundreds of yards, and more were added every hour as vehicles continued to pour across the loading ramp.

Feeding the movement to the railway were dozens of store-rooms, each an island surrounded by packed equipment and clamorous with the sound of hammer and saw as boxes were nailed together and filled.

Huge green-painted trucks backed up, were loaded, and roared away to the waiting box cars every minute. They gave wide berth to the dozens of tractor-trailer units plastered with red-lettered "EXPLOSIVES" signs which rolled slowly under the weight of tons of ammunition.

As night came on, the loading operations continued under the glare of hundreds of electric lights. White-capped cooks worked all night in the mess halls to keep hot coffee and sandwiches moving to the loading crews.

Men not occupied in packing and loading operations formed long lines to draw last minute issues of clothing and equipment. Others used the little time available to them to jam the local express office with trunks, suitcases, and string tied cardboard boxes, containing the civilian clothing and personal belongings they were shipping home.

One grim faced young Leather-neck spoke for all as he wrestled a trunk into the express office. "Looks like I won't be needing civvies for a long time to come," he said quietly.

As word of the movement spread, families and relatives rushed here to say goodbye to the departing Marines. Hundreds arrived daily by car, train, bus, and plane; reports indicate that every hotel and rooming house within a radius of 30 miles was filled to capacity.

Apology

Apology . . . Due to the late arrival of The Women Reserve contingent from Philadelphia, and the inability to obtain the roster before press time, the omission of the names of the Philadelphia unit from the story on page one was necessary, we regret. The names of members of this unit will appear in next week's "GLOBE."

Now Is The Time . . . . .

Once upon a time, not so very long ago, there was an old man who had little to do but keep his house squared away. Twice weekly he would go into the village for supplies. He had his garden and his trees to take care of and maintenance work on his car. For the most part was happy but sometimes he found the routine galling. Then one day his wife told him that it was too bad they didn't have a little guest lodge on their place, where friends could stay and visit. The old boy turned-to. He got up before sunrise and worked until dark. He was happier with these extra duties than he had been for many years.

Here at Camp Lejeune we are witnessing a similar phenomenon. For several days the grapevine hummed with scuttlebutt: Certain units are moving out! Not long after, the word came; it was true—men began to receive their orders for the West Coast. Morale, which is always high here, became even higher.

Day and night the base has pulsated with activity. In the long watches of the night, sentries could hear the creaking of freight cars getting under way. Special details worked around the storerooms, when necessary under arc lights, rolling bed rolls, cleaning weapons, packing gear to go. And everywhere the men were happy. They whistled as they knocked crates together, sang as they loaded the trucks which rumble through the post constantly. Certainly the watchword was "We're back in business again!" It is easy to recognize the men that are leaving; there is an extra spring in their step, an added strut to their walk.

The slopschutes have a carnival air about them. Men smile at each other, even the eternal juke box is drowned out by singing—some of the old songs are coming back: "They asked for the Army at Tulagi . . .", "When my thirty years are over, Oh, how happy I will be, When my thirty years are over, No more soldiering for me." Before the news came, some of the troopers felt slighted, overlooked—wallflowers maybe. Now they know they will have their part.

"Take over and move out!" a voice cries loud and clear—"Come on back, come on back; HOLD IT," an assistant driver shouts. "We worked all night loading," a man will say, not complaining. It is a good feeling to "move out," and certain Second Division units are feeling good.

Women

5th Infantry Battalion, Organized Marine Corps Reserve, and volunteered for active duty following the recent call for former WRs.

The women reservists will relieve eight men for possible combat duty, according to Capt. F. L. Churchville, Camp Adjutant.

For the women reservists, the return to Camp Lejeune was a homecoming. All received their recruit training here during World War II. They exclaimed over familiar landmarks, but discovered that something new had been added in their absence.

"Lejeune's a lot different than what it used to be during boot training days," TSgt. Gibson admitted, adding, "It seems strange to be in charge of a unit instead of having someone in charge of me!"

"It's like old times again," Cpl. Kegel said happily, "but it's a pleasure not to have to undergo boot training again."

Major Pauline B. Beckley, USMC-W, met the reservists at the bus station and escorted them to their quarters in Barracks 63.

The major arrived here last week with two enlisted Women Marines to make arrangements for billeting, messing, and assignment of women reservists reporting here for active duty.

A week to 10 days will be required to process the women and determine their duty assignments. During this period, they will perform clerical duties with the Reserve Training Battalion, Capt. Churchville said.

During World War II, WRs did everything from typing to truck driving. More than one combat-hardened communication man got the shock of his life when he returned to find diminutive WRs stringing wire and wearing heavy climbing irons.

Top officials and players in the football world will preview the 1950 mid-summer grid classic between the College All-Stars and the National Professional Football League champions of 1949, the Philadelphia Eagles, during a special Mutual network sports broadcast scheduled for Thursday evening, Aug. 10, from 9 to 9:30 p.m., EDT.

The special program will be presented on the eve of the 17th annual game, which will be exclusively aired over the coast-to-coast Mutual network on Friday, Aug. 11, beginning at 9:30 p.m., EDT, from Soldier Field, Chicago.

Harry Wismer and Harold "Red" Grange, who will broadcast the play-by-play description of this year's game, will co-emcee the preview show. Featured on this hot-stove sports session will be Arch Ward, father of the All-Star Football classic series; Commissioner of Football Bert Bell; Tug Wilson, high commissioner of the Big Ten; coach Greasy Neal, of the Eagles; George Halas, of the Eagles; Bears; Bob Voigts, of Northwestern; Fritz Crisler, of Michigan; Tom Hamilton, of Pittsburgh; Jim Tatum, of Maryland; Eddie Anderson, of Holy Cross; and Bobby Dodd, of Georgia Tech. Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler also will be heard as a guest of honor, as well as many of the players who will be facing each other on the gridiron the following day.

Wismer and Grange will interview the players and officials and will discuss the chances of victory for both teams on the Soldier Field gridiron.

Chaplain's Corner

The story is told a certain father who after a hard day's work was trying to relax in his parlor with his pipe and newspaper. His young six-year old son had also chosen that particular time and place to stage his favorite game of cops and robbers, using his father as the victim. Finally in desperation the father hit upon a plan to keep his young son quiet for at least an hour. Taking the cover from a magazine which was a map of the world, he cut it into a hundred or more pieces, making it into a jigsaw puzzle. Then give it to his son, the father told him that upon its being put together again, there would be a quarter for his troubles.

Now, thought I father, I can finish my smoking and reading in peace. But to his bewildered amazement, the lad was back in a very

2 Local Golfers Compete In Sixth NavDist Tourney

Naval Air Station, Jacksonville, Fla., captured the Sixth Naval District golf tournament held at the Naval Air Station course in Pensacola, Fla., last Thursday, Friday and Saturday with a team score of 1259.

Teams from 11 Navy and Marine Corps stations participated in the three day event. Among the entries were: NAS, Pensacola; NAS, Jacksonville; NAS, Memphis; NAAS, Suffley Field; NAAS, Whit- MCRD, Parris Island; NAS, Green Cove Springs; Receiving Station, Charleston, and Marine Base, Camp Lejeune.

Four men who finished in the top 12 in last year's AllNavy finals returned for the District tourney. They were TSgt. Altoni E. Greer and MSgt. Robert F. Bisset from Camp Lejeune, Lt.(jg) Anthony Greco from NAS, Jacksonville, and Cdr. E. K. Allis from NAS, Memphis.

Lt.(jg) Greco swept the field with his score of 305. Running close behind with a 306 was Commander Allis. W. H. Foulk, AOC, placed third with a 311, and Lt. Cdr., E. H. Peck of Whiting Field placed fourth with a score of 313.

The four winners will represent the Sixth Naval District in the South Central play-offs to be held at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola this week.

.. Warmin' The Bench..

Where and how did the term, "bull pen," as applied to baseball, originate? Students and followers of the game have pondered that question many times. Here is an interesting slant offered by Braven Dyer, of the Los Angeles Times:

"In the early days of the game, ball parks in some cities were in uncomfortable proximity to the stockyards and abattoirs. It is quite likely as a result of this nearness, a certain analogy was discerned. Over in the stockyards were the bulls, who for the sake of propriety, were fenced in while awaiting slaughter. Down in another place were the pitchers warming up in the spot to which they were restricted. Some of these pitchers, it was rightly reasoned, would be "slaughtered" before the day was done. Sports writers began referring to this analogy, probably to the delight of the readers and to the disgust of the pitchers. It has been a part of baseball's lexicon ever since."

Certainly a logical explanation of the term.

What part do ball players' wives play in winning pennants? They don't hit home runs, they don't twirl shutouts, they don't steal bases and their RBI average isn't high. But keen students of baseball will tell you they win and lose more championships than all the Stan Musials, Ralph Kiner, Ted Williams and Warren Spahns combined. They are the real power behind the throne.

A few years ago a prominent member of the Brooklyn Dodgers was having a tough time. Everything seemed to go wrong and a group of male fans in the first base stands were on him. "Get the bum out," they shouted. Soon, as is always the case in mob psychology, other fans took up the chant. The entire stands booed when he came to bat. Naturally his work slumped, both afield and at bat. His pretty, young wife noticed it and tried to cheer him up. It was no use. "Those guys in the first base stands are sure after me," he told her glumly one night.

The next afternoon a chic little article took her seat in the first base stands. The crowd gave her the eye and smiled. She smiled back. When the particular player came to bat, they booed. She didn't. "Come on, lady, give that bum the razz," they said. She smiled, shook her head. "I think he's a nice boy," she said. The next day she was in the same spot with the same group around her. The same thing happened, but when the player got a hit, she applauded. This went on for several days and it wasn't long until the first base stands, instead of booing, were cheering and applauding the player. One afternoon he made three hits, driving in two runs. That night he came home, carrying a box of candy. "Had a big day," he beamed. "And you should hear the fans. I made 'em like me. They're cheering me now. I showed 'em. I got 'em off me."

His wife went to the kitchen, tears of happiness rolling down her cheeks. Then she carried a steaming steak into the dining room. "You're wonderful, darling," she declared. "You did it." (AFPS)

Track Star Joins Second Marines

First Lieutenant Connor Hollingsworth, long-time track star with the Quantico thinclad aggregation, reported for duty at Camp Lejeune last week and was assigned to the 2nd Marines.

Lieutenant Hollingsworth holds the All-Marine Corps record in the pole vault, 120 yard high hurdles, and the broadjump. He has cleared 11'8" in the vaulting event, hurdled the 120 yard highs in 15.3 seconds and broadjumped 23'3 1/2" to remain the only triple title holder in the Marine Corps today.

At the recent All-Marine Corps Meet, Lt. Hollingsworth took a first place in the pole vault and broadjump events. He did not enter the hurdle events.

If Lieutenant Hollingsworth remains at Camp Lejeune he will bolster the 1951 Varsity Track squad considerably.

PARADISE POINT

Mrs. Franklin Hart of Quantico, Va., is staying at the Senior Guest House, with her son Franklin, Jr., who has just completed his reserve training period. They plan to return to Quantico on Tuesday.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. J. T. Selden entertained their son, Lt. (jg) Claiborne T. Selden this past week end. Lt. Selden is stationed at Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. G. F. Good, Jr., have returned to the Senior Guest House after a motor trip through Canada.

Major and Mrs. James Callender have as their guests, Colonel and Mrs. Elliott N. Baldwin, parents of Mrs. Callender.

MIDWAY PARK

Gary Stinecifer, son of SSgt. and Mrs. Robert Stinecifer was one year old on Friday. Gary's mother entertained with a party honoring the day. Guests were Tommy Simmons, Jimmy Fugate, Barbara Bryant, Susan and Cheryl Morrison, Charles Shero, Larry, Ronnie and Michael Bardwell, "Butch" and Diane Page, Terry and Lynne Keatley, Ginger Deal, Terah and John Hunter, Janie Lanier, Kitty Ryser, Billy Swanson, Wayne Hammons, and Johnny Blockledge. Other friends of Gary's parents who came to wish him a happy day were Miss Margaret Deal, SSgt. and Mrs. H. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown, Mrs. Bea Harold, Mrs. Clyde Davidson, Mrs. Edith Callaghan, Mrs. Peggy Say and Miss Peggy Worthington. The children played a few games with Gary looking on from his high chair, and enjoyed cake and ice cream, and baskets filled with candy.

SSgt. and Mrs. M. L. Wiles have returned from about three weeks visiting relatives in Chanute, Kans.

Mrs. C. C. Girvin from San Diego, Calif., is a houseguest in the home of her daughter and son-in-law, TSgt. and Mrs. T. A. Craig, Jr. Mrs. Craig is leaving shortly to drive to California with her mother.

Gary Sanman, of Columbia, Miss., who is visiting his aunt and uncle, TSgt. and Mrs. V. A. Tolar celebrated his 4th birthday, Friday. The occasion was highlighted by a party given by Mrs. Tolar. Guests were Linda, Richard Ewing, Bryan, Jimmie and Maureen Cragg, Johnny Cotto, Vicky Miller, Judy Monks, Charlotte and Johnny Hawkins, Junior Sauter, Christopher Flanagan, Mrs. J. L. Ewing, MSgt. and Mrs. Monks, MSgt. and Mrs. J. M. Flanagan, and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Applewhite. Refreshments of cake, ice cream and lemonade were served.

MSgt. and Mrs. R. C. Gray and two children left last week for a short trip to Louisville, Ky. to visit Sgt. Grays family.

Larry MacElfresh is another little one, celebrating his 1st birthday. Larry's party, given by his parents, MSgt. and Mrs. N. V. MacElfresh was on Monday. Larry's friends were there to greet him, including Pat Leavy, Freddy and Jan Deal, Timmy and Cheryl Zborill, Willa McSwain, Joan and Carol Gelrude, Patty McCormick, Jimmy and Denny Tarlton, Kay Richardson, Joe Parker, and Shirley and Jody Stocks. The children were too young for games, but not too young for cake, ice cream and a soft drink.

SSgt. and Mrs. Earl H. Wilson had as recent houseguests, Sgt. Wilson's mother, Mrs. Mary A. Wilson, from Ypsalanti, Mich. and his aunt, Mrs. Margaret Patterson, from Walled Lake, Mich.

SSgt. and Mrs. James Chupps have returned from several days leave in Atlanta, Ga. On the return trip, the Chupps brought Mrs. Chupps' sister and brother, Betty and Jack Smith, from Atlanta.

The Butler Circle Wives Club held their 1st Anniversary celebration last Tuesday night. A large cake, bearing a legend of Congratulatory, was cut by the Secretary, Mrs. Ann Leavy. Ice cream, assorted nuts, pretzels, and punch were also served. Winners of games were Mrs. Arnetta Simmons, Mrs. Jeannine Morrison, and Mrs. Pauline Morrison.

NCO Wives Club

The Staff NCO Wives' Club wishes to thank the group of Reserves who so graciously donated $21.04 to the Wives Club Nursery at the beach supper.

Staff NCO Club Activities

The huge success of the party that was given in honor of departing NCO's can only be guessed at. We're very happy that they received so much genuine enjoyment out of it. Not to be forgotten too quickly, we hope that its memories will be carried wherever they go, and that perhaps the thoughts may help in making it a little easier to bear the burden wherever they may find themselves performing the duties of a U. S. Marine. So good luck and hurry back!

Meeting of the Board of Governors Tuesday August 8, 1950 at 1700. All hands are urged to be present so an accurate count can be taken.

Membership cards for all Staff NCO's will be asked for and shown to the man on the desk. We ask your cooperation in this because it's getting to be a serious thing that can only be overcome by each member producing his card. Bonified guests are those clearly outlined in the By-Laws and any infractions reflect both on the club and the NCO.

Bingo Monday nite understandably, was not too popularly attended. However, those that came played with enthusiasm and seemed to get the maximum enjoyment out of the game. Winner of the Merchandise prize was Mrs. Helen G. Sedora. The coveted Jackpot was won by Mr. T. A. Cosgrove, the father of SSgt. T. A. Cosgrove stationed at M.C.S.D.

Bowling trophies are in and those who have not received them may do so by contacting the Club Secretary.

Jigger Bites.....

If you have been in this area for any period of and have not had any "jigger" bites, you are leading a very sheltered life or you have an extremely tough hide. Most of us have already made an acquaintance with this pest. Here is the story about it.

The offender is a very small mite, officially named Leptus autumnalis. Its more popular names are "jigger", "red-bug", or "harvest-mite". It has been called other names but they can't be printed here. It is fairly common thruout the world during the summer and fall months. The adult mites apparently are harmless, but their larvae will attach themselves for feeding purposes on the first human or animal that comes within reach. These larvae are commonly found on blades of grass, flowers, shrubs, or on the ground in flower and vegetable gardens. If you happen to walk thru an infested area, they will feed on your ankles or lower legs. If you are unlucky enough to sit or stretch out on a patch of infested grass, you will probably be very unhappy, as they are so small that they can go thru ordinary clothing with ease.

Once on your skin, they lightly attach themselves and deposit a very irritating liquid—a "tenderizer" which facilitates their feeding. They may not be noticed until 12 or 24 hours later when the first signs of inflammation begin to appear. By that time, the larval mite has probably fallen off, having had a good meal at your expense. Soon you will notice an intense itching, and on examination, you will find a small brownish-red spot which may be as small as a pin-head or as large as a dime. The more you scratch this lesion, the more intense the itching will become. The spot may be flat or raised and it may look like a small hemorrhage in your skin or it may form a blister. Aside from the discomfort, the skin lesions are not serious unless secondary infection sets in from your scratching.

Early treatment is important. If you suspect that you have been in infested area, you had better take a thorough scrubbing hot bath with soap and clean your clothes. This will remove any larvae before they have done much damage. Once the tell-tale lesions appear, weak ammonia or a baking soda paste often gives relief. Calomine lotion is also frequently of benefit. Medical attention is another time-honored remedy. If these treatments are successful or if the lesions appear to be infected, best see a medical attention.

Some measure of protection afforded by the wearing of boots, or by dusting the cum mixture on ones legs while walking in known infested areas. Insect repellent on the wrists, and neck and on clothing has been tried and to be an excellent preventive.

Newcomers to an infested area may have a bad time during the first season of their stay, as they build up immunity in most cases.

The name "jiggers" is confused with "chiggers" which is caused by sand-flea. This pest burrs your skin and has to be removed. They are fairly common in temperate zones so you likely to find them here

Hearst Trophy Match To Be Fired At N. J.

The 19th Annual International Police Pistol Tournament for the championship of the United States, Canada, Cuba and Mexico will be held at the 40-target championship range at Teaneck, N. J. The New York Mirror and the Teaneck Police, sponsors of this annual event, again extends a cordial invitation to all who are qualified to compete.

Besides the William Randolph Hearst Trophy and the James W. Gerard Award, more than 2,000 other prizes will be awarded to winners.

The matches will be fired August 17, 18, 19 and 20, depending upon the convenience of the shooter. Entries will close at 1200 Sunday, August 20. These matches will be fired regardless of weather conditions.

Payroll Savings

It is a pleasure to report that the Navy has retained its position of first place in the payroll savings program among all Federal departments and agencies, and that the Navy military bond allotment program leads the other two branches of the Armed Forces by a very substantial margin. This office wants to thank every bond officer for his splendid cooperation during the Independence Drive. Your continued interest in this important program is greatly appreciated.—Navy Department.

smooth as we are right now . . .
'cause right now, everybody's acting for a change like they should act all the time.

All the Colonial architecture and brick wells in the world can't make a good camp . . . but good people and tents can. So from now on, we'll forget our "dignity" and remember what we're hired for . . . O.K.?

And in parting, thanks a million to our Civil Service and Public Works personnel, who are finally acting like they are a part of Camp Lejeune instead of unwanted guests, or something.

See you all after the "police action."

Bastille Day Ceremonies

U. S. Marines and U. S. Navy men joined with over 400 French Army infantrymen and high French military officials in Bastille Day ceremonies in Nice, France. All parading troops were organized into a Provisional Battalion under the command of Capt. W. R. Earney, USMC, Commanding Officer of Company G, Third Battalion, Sixth Marines Reinforced.

Reserves

Manassas, Va.; and Clifton Gill of McLean, Va. Mrs. Marie Gill, Clifton's mother, is the sister of Mrs. Elizabeth Fortney and Mrs. Alice Lynn, the mothers of the other four. Daniel is the only one with previous military experience, as he fought with the 35th Infantry Division during World War II.

Another family affair, which adds to the unusualness of the group, is the father and two sons combination of the Theura family. A Sergeant, a Private First Class, and a Hospitalman First Class, who is a Corpsman assigned to the detachment.

The District of Columbia unit has many a tale to tell of its members. Such as one had seen getting off the train with his arm in a sling. A member of the Volunteer Fire Department in Washington, he was injured and was confined in the Naval Hospital at Bethesda when word arrived that his outfit was leaving for active duty. He requested a transfer to the Naval Hospital at Camp Lejeune, and it was granted so that he might accompany the detail to its destination.

Then there is the case of Chief Warrant Officer Pike, who through necessity resigned from the Reserves and went to the West Coast. He flew all the way from San Francisco to rejoin the organization and take his rightful place in the Assault Platoon when it reported for active duty.

There is also another Chief Warrant Officer by the name of Harry W. Warner, who has been with the Washington Reserves since 1929. He is the oldest man in the outfit and "proud of it." He enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1920, and has served his country faithfully and well. Loyalty such as the aforementioned, cannot possibly be surpassed.

There's Private First Class Casey also. A short, stocky, well-built specimen, who has been a member of the organization the shortest length of time. He will have a full month's time to his credit on the 5th of August. He may not hold his rank for long, however, as there are rumors that he may receive a court martial for pilfering, while aboard the train enroute to Camp Lejeune. The charges placed against him are, "Willfully and maliciously devouring approximately five pounds of hamburger." Even for an English Bull-Dog, Mascot, that's a lot of bull . . . (ground, that is).

The detail from Worcester, Mass., arrived full of vim, vigor and vitality, and appeared none the worse for their train ride. When asked how it felt to be back in harness, the majority gave the stock answer, "It's good to be back!"

It is said that there can never be a reporter who is not opinionated, and to carry on with that belief, it was a pleasure for many,

Used Articles

On Friday 4 August and Friday 11 August a truck will pick up any serviceable articles of clothing, furniture and household effects that would ordinarily be thrown away. These articles are to be turned over to the Navy Relief for the needy. Anyone having the above mentioned articles are requested to phone 6650 or 6318.

including Brigadier General John T. Selden, who met every train, to watch the "snappy" unit from Charlottesville, Va., file off the train, immediately form in ranks, stand stiffly at attention and report their platoons as "all present and accounted for, Sir!" Standing erect in full pack and equipment, they epitomized the long-standing belief that "Once a Marine, Always a Marine", and that no matter what the status, Reserve or Regular, they are proud indeed to be members of the United States Marine Corps, the "Nation's Finest."

Dallas, Texas (AFPS)—Madison (Matty) Bell, head football coach of Southern Methodist University since 1935—less three years in the Navy—has resigned. He was succeeded by H. N. (Rusty) Russell, his backfield mentor. Bell will be athletic director of SMU.
