SALE—Some of the 765 units sold at the W.A. automobile held here last week are loaded aboard a trailer in the store. The sale brought the highest prices of any automotive sale in the United States to date. The original combined cost of the was $1,300,000 and the actual cash realized was well over $1,000,000. The word was released prior to the sale that anyone could be a representative from Washington caused the plans to be at the last minute, enabling only licensed dealers and buyers such as veterans to bid. Marines should note that whether still in service or not, is considered a veteran if his discharge dated any time between September 16, 1940 and

Income Tax Exemptions End In '49

(SEA)—Effective 1 Jan 1949, enlisted service personnel will pay income tax in the same manner as civilians, under Public Law 384 (80th Congress).

The present exemptions—all pay of enlisted personnel and $1,500 of officers' service pay—will remain effective through the calendar year 1948. Withholding tax also will be levied on service pay starting 1 Jan 1949.

The automatic deferment of income tax payments or returns for personnel at sea or on foreign service duty will be terminated not later than 31 Dec 1947. Members of the armed forces in this category have an automatic deferment until the 15th day of the sixth month following their return to the U. S. Personnel have been advised to file federal income tax returns for which they may be liable for all back years not later than 31 December.

Citizens of the U. S. serving in a possession of the U. S., either as a member of the armed forces of the U. S. or as an employee, when taken POWs or interned, shall be considered to have been within "a possession of the U. S." during their confinement by the enemy. This is true, even though the place of confinement may have been outside of a "possession of the U. S.," making them exempt from paying taxes.

P. L. 310 (80th Congress) stipulates that any compensation received by such POWs or internees during their imprisonment will be considered as compensation received "outside the U. S.," and will be exempt from tax. This can be applied to all taxable years after 31 Dec 1941.

Ping Pong Contest Tonight At USO

The ping-pong champions of the Jacksonville USO will battle it out for the top title tonight at the Federal Building.

All men who have won in the past are asked to be present and to compete. Prizes will be awarded

Courses Merged, New MCI School Is Organized

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Because of a rapidly expanding curriculum, and to merge a group of related courses and sub-courses under the guidance of a well qualified officer in charge, a new department, the Geographical-Investigation School, was recently organized by the Marine Corps Institute to provide special attention for the many Marines enrolled in language, area, investigation, and special courses.

The new school, divided into three sections, handles 34 courses at the present time. The largest, the Geographical Section, deals with French, Spanish, and foreign area courses, while the Investigation Section is concerned with fingerprinting, investigation, security and photography courses. Instructors in the Special Studies Section teach journalism, radio speaking and writing, psychology and anthropology.

Twenty-one qualified instructors have been assigned to the school to assure accurate and efficient handling of the student's incoming papers, sometimes numbering over 200 a day. Nearly 100 course completions were reported for the month of July.

FOREIGN SERVICE EMPHASIZED

The Geographical Section, formerly the foreign service section of the Academic School, has continually pointed out the attributes of foreign service careers. Secretary of State George C. Marshall's recent participation in the Rio De Janeiro Inter-American Conference and the forthcoming Conference on Economic Affairs at Bagota next January lend new emphasis to the opportunities in the foreign service and foreign trade fields. This cooperative attitude towards the consolidation of hemispheric relations is a forecast of the business intercourse contemplated between the U. S. and the countries of Central and South America.

Personnel directors have often borrowed from Horace Greeley's coined a phrase, "Go south, young man," citing the many openings in foreign service work. Some of the positions open are in: State Department representation, business corporations which maintain foreign branches, banks with foreign de-

Congress Extends Helping Hand To Gallant Lady Of The Sea

By SGT. HENRY JENKINS
It is a pity that there does not exist in American letters an Oliver Wendell Holmes in 1830, paid a rare tribute to the ship, the frigate U.S.S. Constitution. The child, what adult in the United States know Holmes's memorable accolade "Old Ironsides?" Few fail to recognize the ship: "Aye, tear her tattered ensign down!"

It is a pity that no such like-minded versifier of the other venerable seagoing craft of the past are consigned to relative obscurity. The lady is the last square-rigger under way, the Joseph Conrad.

Old Ironsides, was relegated to the limbo of history. Although no one has chanted praise of her, Congress must have a Holmes or another poet to pass an act making the vessel a national monument to the Maritime Historical Association.

Plans to use her as a base for a program for the Sea Scouts, Girl Scout, and other organizations. When the ship is launched next summer, the 65-year-old ship will serve principally as a hotel for the officers, who will study maritime subjects in the Association's museum.

The little (110 feet long) lady of the sea is a floating hotel. Although, if she is still seaworthy, she may be used for

A school-ship is nothing new to the world. The ship she was built, in 1832 in Denmark,

The last of its kind, The Conrad she was the first school ship in maritime history. For 52 years she served the Danish navy, training cadets.

In 1934, deemed to have out-lived her usefulness, she was discovered by Alan Villiers, noted British sea story author. He bought her and renamed her the Conrad.

She was a stout ship, as strong as a sperm whale in the ocean. Villiers longed to see what she could do in a real battle against elements. For two years he sailed her nearly 60,000 miles over the Atlantic and Pacific, through tall seas and howling gales. The Conrad proved as tough as the tales of the man for whom she was named. Theodor Josef Konrad Korzenowski, the famous Polish writer of sea stories, her bow bears the carved head of the bearded writer.

When Villiers concluded his world junket in New York harbor, he hauled down the British flag and sold her to George Huntington Hartford, who shortly thereafter turned her over to the Maritime Commission.

The young men of the Merchant Marine who trained on her during the war years will remember her. For months, the Conrad was a familiar sight in Florida's Tampa Bay as trainees took her out for short cruises. Many are the men who climbed through her rigging, who swabbed her decks, who spit and polished her at the Maritime Training Station. Under their hands the venerable little ship took on an air of pride in her years.

In the winter of 1945-46, Maritime Commission officials decided that men training for the modern merchant marine no longer needed sail-handling experience. The Conrad belonged to the past. So she was deactivated.

It is a pity that someone has not written great words for the future about a great ship of the past. It is a pity that there is no Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Second Regiment

By PFC. J. J. FENNEL

Little Creek, Virginia, which lies about eleven miles west of Norfolk on the shore line of the Atlantic Ocean at the outlet of the Chesapeake Bay, is a familiar hunting ground for Marines of the Division. Early in September members of this Regiment who will be known as the Advance Party will leave Camp Lejeune, traveling by way of Morehead City, board the U. S. S. Cambria and set sail for the U. S. Naval Base at Little Creek.

On 10 September, 1947, approximately 2650 more men, consisting of the Second Marines, the First Battalion, Fourth Marines, units from the 2nd Pioneer Bn., the 2nd Medical Bn., the 10th Marines, the 2nd Combat Service Group (Med.), and the Assault Signal Co. will arrive at Morehead City to be transported on other APAS: the U. S. S. Okaloosa, U. S. S. Noble, U. S. S. New Kent being present.

Indoctrination of the Regimental Combat Team in amphibious warfare is the classification of the training to be received under the direction of the Troop Training Unit, Atlantic Fleet. This training will cover a period of about six weeks with landings (extensive operations in the area around Virginia Beach) mock-up drills, training films, and other types of work needed to complete a course in amphibious training. The most interesting part of the indoctrination most likely will center around the classroom where all hands will undergo extensive study in the make up of an amphibious operation.

When the Regiment returns to Camp Lejeune, sometime around 25 October, 1947, it is believed that the First Battalion (veterans of the Culebra maneuver) and the Second Battalion (veterans of a great many days of all-inclusive training at Camp Lejeune) will have become such well-trained Marines that the Second Marines will be known as a crack group of fighting men.

MAN OF THE WEEK—"East side, west side, all around the town" is a theme dear to Sgt. Albert T. Kuchinsky as it is to many other Marines who hail from . . . that's right, you guessed it.

Sgt. Kuchinsky has reason to be proud of N. Y. for he was born and raised there, attended Commerce High School and lived a grand 18 years in the city of tall buildings and beautiful women. Although not forced to enter the service by the draft, Sgt. Kuchinsky believed that he would indeed gain some good experience if he were to enlist in the U. S. Marine Corps. Joining in April, 1943, he received his basic training at P. I. and entered into the aviation branch of the corps working in an Air Engineer Squadron at Cherry Point. During the remainder of 1943 and including the year 1944, he saw duty in such places as Quantico, San Diego, New Caledonia, Bougainville. In 1945 he was discharged from the Service but within less than a month he reenlisted.

At this time Sgt. Kuchinsky joined the Second Marines having been for a short time at the USMC Air Station in Quantico. After working in the regiment in the Personnel Section he was transferred to the 2nd Bn., as payroll clerk. When asked to comment on what his plans for the future are he replied: "At one time I thought of being a twenty year man; at another time of joining the Navy; but now I know what my plan for the future is. There is a grand little woman back home and she and New York City are my future."

Corporal Crowley reports from "E" Co. that they came through the Divisional problem with flying colors and tick bites galore. Tuesday night's liberty list was packed with the names of all "liberty hounds" who wanted to get away from the base. They had enough of "good ole Mother Nature" and we can't blame them for that either.

Our gay man about Jay-ville, Pfc. Ramsbottom, that is, had a birthday and won the cake at the Tuesday night dance at the USO. I guess it is known that the fellows from "E" Co. who were down there crashed in on his good fortune. Happy Birthday and after all you can't have the cake and eat it too. Gunny West says that Corporal M. Caluso is back from leave and he said to tell everyone to hide his cigarettes. Higgins really took the cake a few weeks ago while on liberty in Wilmington. He woke up one morning without one cent to his name. So he wired to Indiana for $1.44 for the bus fare back to Lejeune. That's OUR man of the week.

partments, export-import houses, advertising agencies representing clients in foreign trade, commercial transportation agencies, investment houses, and foreign newspaper work.

QUALIFICATIONS CITED
These positions demand high caliber men with extensive qualifications. They should be accomplished linguists with a comprehensive knowledge of foreign countries, their histories, customs, mores, trade regulations, laws, buying habits, and standards of living. They should also be eminently qualified in their own professions or specialties.

The MCI, recognizing the intense desire of Marines for self improvement, offers some 22 courses to assist men in preparing for careers in this field. Although the facilities of America's educational institutions are now overcrowded, the MCI has no quota or restrictions on the size of its student body. Every regular Marine or organized reservist has the opportunity to fit himself for a useful career in the Marine Corps or in civil life.

Institute officials also point out that applications for enrollment may be made on the short, simple form provided by MCI, or by merely writing a brief letter, even a postcard will do, to the Director, Marine Corps Institute, Marine Barracks, Washington 25, D. C. Men stationed in the Pacific area will receive prompt attention by contacting the Pacific Branch of the MCI, Navy 128, Care FPO, San Francisco, Calif.

Thieves Captured With Unwitting Aid Of Marine

Lt. Col. D. N. Otis, Executive Officer of the Midwestern Recruiting Division was recently unwittingly responsible for the capture of a gang of car thieves who had stolen over thirty automobiles in and around the St. Louis area.

Some time before the same group of boys had broken into a cleaner's shop and stolen among other things, a Marine Corps cap, blouse, and trousers belonging to Lt. Col. Otis. The theft was reported to the police and some time later when an officer spotted a group of boys riding in a car and noticed that one was wearing a Marine Officer's cap he picked up the group for questioning. Subsequent investigation proved that they were the gang who had been responsible for the wave of automobile thefts in the area.

Second Combat Service Group

By PFC. JOE GAMBLE

Well men, we won a trophy shout. Our Golf Team came through with the Division Championship last week by taking the Pioneer Bn. down 10-2. The members of the team are LtCol. Todd, Cpls. Spencer, and Bellizzi, and Pfc. Lindsey. The alternates are Sgt. Miller and Pfc. Morrison. This proved to be the only Championship in our Group although three other teams were in there pitching. The Softball Team lost out on their Round Robin play-offs when they took a loss at the hands of the 1st Bn., 10th Marines by a score of 7-2. This left them with a 2-2 record while the 10th Marines were undefeated. The Volleyball Team also dropped out of competition by losing a twin-bill to the 1st Bn., 8th Marines. Although the Bulldogs were dropped from the baseball play-offs after losing the final game, the trophy may still come to our Group if Medium Depot Co. comes through. This series has been unavoidably delayed but will be played in the near future.

WO Benson has recently taken charge of the Smoker Boxing Team. He has had much experience in coaching and started off by getting the equipment and supplies shipshape. He will have the men on a training schedule soon in order to whip them into shape. The exact date has not yet been decided upon for the Smoker.

The grapevine has brought us news that 1st Sgt. Warner Lamirov of Service Co., H&S Bn. will be handing out cigars when January comes around. Congratulations to you and the Mrs. "Top."

A number of men have had the urge lately to form a skeet team and enter the local competition. If there is anyone who is interested in this, please contact the Special Services Office in Bldg. No. 127.

Here are some of the Mess Hall Characters whom you may recognize:

1. The fellow who says, "Here comes the milk, I better drink mine now."
2. The guy who yells about the chow hounds at the table while he innocently grabs all morsels at hand.
3. The butter eater who thinks there are only two people at the table who eat it. (He believes in Buddahs but says there are advantages to Oleomargarine.)
4. The one who gives you that "I haven't had any look" while he quietly takes another slice of pie.
5. The disgusted type who sits at the wrong end of the table and misses all of the surveys. He quietly sits there planning gruesome deaths for the other men at the table.
6. The choosy man who sits and investigates each piece of meat before he decides he doesn't want any.
7. The clown who swears it was an accident when he spilled salt on your potatoes.
8. The nervous guy who puts syrup in his coffee and then laughs it off while he calmly stirs it with his fork.
9. The sly character who, as he slides down the bench to his seat, takes the main course with him so he will be sure to have some.
10. The man who just ate at the PX and has the urge to discuss his love-life.
11. The airhead who insists on putting his long arms to best advantage. He claps you with his elbows and then drags his sleeves across your plate.
12. The show-off who balances the peas on his knife and then accidentally drops a few of them in your tea.

Now fellows don't get me wrong I don't expect to see line type of manners used at West Point or Annapolis, just a little consideration.

Somebody, a long time ago, told me that it takes two to fight. It never worked out that way for me. Whenever I read myself into the mood, the other guy just didn't feel like it. Same token, whenever some guy figured he absolutely had to do of my blood; I wasn't in the mood.

I haven't had a good fight in a couple of years. Oh, a couldn't have, mind you. If you look hard enough you can get a midget with his arm in a sling or an eighty year old woman can settle a grudge with. But, on second thought, there is nothing as a "good" fight. No matter who wins—you both participate in the encounter.

The guy that showed me the light was a little New Zealander. He stood about five feet nine inches and was somewhere around one hundred and seventy five pounds. I exactly a good looking guy. As a matter of fact, he was almost right ugly. But the horrible part about it was that, when the cleared away, I looked a lot uglier than he did.

Nobody ever knows how these things start. The first that I was saying, "What are you—tough or something?" And he in the expected manner, "Yes, O'm tough!" So into the ring we go. He had two coppers with him who were giving him all the way into the alley. I thought to myself at the time that probably begging him to apologize before I killed him. As it they were probably saying, "Wot'll we do with the blighter after you're through with 'im?" When we got to the end of it started doing press-ups and rippling my flabby little muscles give him an idea of how rough I was. He didn't seem impressed, "Look 'ere, Marine! O'm just back from Crete and you and O'i 'ad planned a bit of a Go tonight. If O'i go getting all 'it'll spoil the 'ole bloody show!" I decided to give him a said, "We'll forget about it for the time being if you'll agree here at this same place at 12:00 tonight so we can settle 'Goodo," he says. So we parted.

I went on to a party that I'd been invited to. If the thing as good as we'd expected, I might have forgotten the whole but it wasn't. It dragged along and by 11:00 o'clock I and all Marines there were looking for some excitement. I told a couple buddies about this appointment that I had at midnight. They I take a cab and go down there and wait. They said if you with him, to come back and get them and we'd all have a nice all. It was agreed upon. At ten minutes to twelve my cab and I parked off for my rendezvous.

I parked directly across the street from the alley and was about two minutes late but there he was coming down the alley alone! I knew my Spuds back at the party would be sore, was nothing I could do but run over there real quick-like. P. off, and scot back and explain. I told the cabbie to wait, over nonchalantly and he seemed almost glad to see me. We a greetings like gentlemen and squared away.

I struck the first blow—I remember that much! The new knew I was ricocheting off a mail box, a lamp post, a G.I. case side of a building. I finally stopped skidding about fifteen feet from the scene of the original explosion. I shook my head at myself, "What manner of man is this!" But I finally agreed with myself that it was a "lucky" punch. I decided to get up and try again from the beginning. The next thing I know, there I am in the prone! Get up, go down, up again, down again, right tonight! Finally, after repeating the same procedure about six he said, "See 'ere, Marine—aven't you 'ad enuff?" "Aha" myself, "He's mine—I got him now—he's TIRED!"

The next thing I knew, my head was cradled in his lap, a big sob. But I couldn't get up. He and the taxi driver got room where he swabbed me up and tried to make me propped left his room about four hours later after some much needed. I was leaving I remembered my gentlemanly upbringing—him for the lesson!—BARROW

Officers' Mess Program

Fishing Contest Started 1 Sept.; Prizes Offered

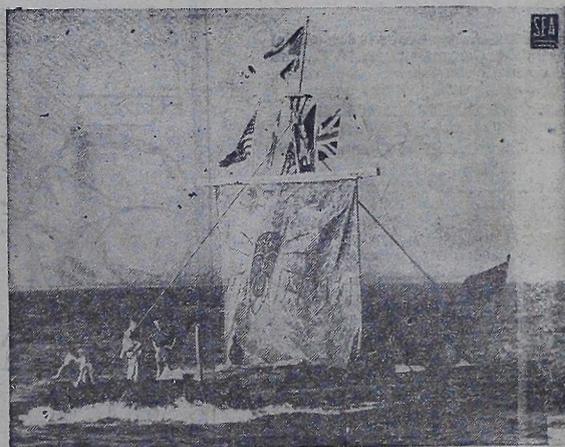

The Board of Governors, Wallace Creek Boathouse, has announced that the first of a series of monthly fishing contests started 1 September. All Marines and Navy personnel attached to this post are eligible to enter the contests.

There are two classes, fresh water and salt water, with prizes offered for the largest fish taken in each category. The type of prizes will be announced at a later date but there is no doubt but what they will be definitely worth getting.

The fish must be caught in Onslow County and an official record will be kept of any catch entered. The official weighing station has been designated as the Wallace Creek Boathouse and the fish will be logged by a member of the Board of Governors or a boathouse attendant.

The catch must be witnessed by another person.

The rules are simple and anyone can copy the prizes. It's a well-known fact that it's often the novice who comes home with the biggest fish and the expert who comes home with the biggest stories. There's tackle at the Boathouse—

ADRIFT ON A RAFT. Norwegian scientists carrying historical accuracy to the ultimate, landed on Raroia reef in the Polynesian Islands, after a trans-Pacific journey that began at Callao, Peru, 28 April. They landed on the reef on 7 August. The six men on the 'Kon-Tiki' expedition set out to prove that ancient peoples could have crossed the Pacific in rafts from South America to Polynesia. The huge raft had a sail as well as a tiller, but depended chiefly upon currents for propulsion.

INGTON, D. C.—August 14, 1947.—MSgt. Chester O. L., "old-timer" whose 39 years of service include 14 years at Naval Gun Factory here, is congratulated by Colonel H. S. M., Commanding Officer, MB, Naval Gun Factory, on the occasion of his retirement today. The veteran Marine, who first joined the Marines in 1911, has a record of no days lost from duty recently when he was treated in the Naval Hospital at Camp Lejeune for physical disabilities. Hanford, Sergeant Major of the Gun Factory, served three years in the U.S. Army before entering the Marine Corps. A parade and review by Marines at the Gun Factory will be held on September 14.

Christian Science Worker Appointed

Mrs. Allan Stewart has been appointed Christian Science Worker for this Camp by the Mother Church of Boston. It is planned that Christian Science Services will be conducted in the Camp Chapel during the month of November.

Christian Science literature can be obtained from the Camp Chaplain's office, Building 1, if requests are made either by telephone or writing for same. The Christian Science Monitor can be found in all branch libraries and the main library in the Industrial Area. There also has been put into the main library a complete set of works by Mary Baker Eddy. These can be drawn out like any other books for study and reading.

If you are a member of this church, it would be appreciated if you would send in your name and unit to which you are attached in this camp to the Camp Chaplain's office. This cooperation will help all concerned in promoting this religious group meeting for spiritual growth on the part of all who attend.

Anyone wishing to get in contact with Mrs. Stewart may call 6641. Mrs. W. H. Posey at 311 Marine Court, Midway Park, will be an assistant to Mrs. Stewart for that area, and will have literature for those who wish same. Her telephone number is 2878.

New Board Handles Scientific Research

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Intense exploration of the fields of science essential to military strength is the objective of the Research and Development Board established under the unification of the armed forces.

Money will be granted by the Army and Navy to various colleges and universities for research and the development of military applications of scientific discoveries and advances.

'Guardian In Peace' Will Feature Navy Day Observance 27 October

(SEA) — On 27 October this country, along with its possessions, will celebrate by parades, dinners and open houses at naval shore establishments and ships in port, NAVY DAY, 1947.

Marine Pilot Sets World's Speed Record

MUROC, Calif. (AFPS)—Flying the Douglas "Skystreak" 650.6 miles an hour on August 25, Marine Major Marion Carl of Hubbard, Ore. established a new world's speed record. Racing four times over a three kilometer (1.8 mile) course, Maj. Carl shattered a record set five days before by Navy Commander Turner F. Caldwell in the same plane.

The top speed attained by Maj. Carl was 652.64 m.p.h. in his first run across the Muroc sands. The new official record is an average of his speeds in his four flights across the course.

Maj. Carl was in the air approximately 18 minutes, during which time it is estimated that he flew 180 miles. It was necessary for him to take the jet plane miles from the runway in order to turn properly and get ready for the next run.

The "Skystreak," in which Comdr. Turner had set a record of 640.7 m.p.h. less than a week before, is jet-propelled and has a wing-span of only 25 feet. The world mark held before Comdr. Turner and Maj. Carl flew the Douglas plane was 623.8 miles an hour, set by Army Colonel Albert Boyd in a Lockheed P80R.

In making the four runs demanded by international rules, Carl poured his ship into the course from 1,000 feet in dives which brought him as close as 25 feet above the ground. The motor trouble which had hampered Caldwell in his tests the previous week was corrected by the adjustment of a faulty governor in the small, blood-red ship.

waited offshore for the attack. They peered over the large island studded with volcanoes. Their landings were up and down on the island. Suddenly, the signal to land was given by the commander. Several Pacific viceregal troops in amphibious gear landed on the island. His name was Kamehameha.

MSgt Petersen, Sunday Artist, Leaving Corps

"I'm just a Sunday artist" answered M-Sgt. Emil L. Petersen, competent craftsman of Camp Lejeune's Reclamation and Salvage Department, when queried on his plans to return to civilian life after 28 years with the armed forces, the last of which were spent in the Marine Corps. Pete's ability as an artist and expert cabinet-maker has made his name familiar to many at Lejeune.

Though 'Pete' assured us he will pursue art strictly as a hobby and nothing more, after retirement, we somehow got the impression that this hobby might someday turn into a full-time job.

However, his only claim to fame does not rest on the fact that he is handy with paints. Sgt. Petersen has aided Reclamation and Salvage no end, in its work of saving the government a great deal of money by putting old, worn-out material back into the bloodstream of everyday usage.

Sgt. Petersen has been with various Reclamation and Salvage Departments since 1935. He came aboard at Lejeune in 1943 and has served at every large base on the East Coast in his 25 years in the Corps. After enlistment in Chicago, Ill. on June 22, 1922, he toured Parris Island, Quantico and various other sections besides chasing bandits in Nicaragua for two years. From 1924 to 1933, the Marine was continually attached to General Harry Lee's command, acting as his personal orderly at times.

After more than 28 years of continuous service, Petersen will be discharged on October 20 of this year.

He killed the Oahuans broke wildly for the badlands. The Hawaiians followed, mopping up as they went. 300 Oahuans were later pushed over cliffs by the invaders.

Later, the Gazette states, Kamehameha set sail for Kauai and Niihau, but was smashed by tropical storms. Again he made the attempt, this time suffering an epidemic of cholera. Kamehameha himself nearly died from the disease, but he later recovered to extend his empire over all the Hawaiian Islands.

Three Down, Six To Go

ITHACA, N. Y. (AFPS)—Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Haxton identified their seven-toed pet cat George, lying dead on a highway, three times. Each time the cat had seven toes and looked exactly like George, who mysteriously returned after each "death." That gives him six lives to go.

It Can't Be Erased

A Brand

Separation from the Marine Corps under any other conditions than honorable brands former service men with a mark that can never be erased. Marine Corps Headquarters is in constant receipt of pathetic letters from former servicemen expressing their regret for the foolhardy and thoughtless action during their time in the Corps.

They earnestly request that the records be changed to enable them to accept Civil Service positions and other responsible jobs, to say nothing of clearing of their own consciences.

A discharge from the service under any other than honorable conditions almost universally bars a man from employment in the modern business world.

Deserters who have been convicted by a general court martial cannot expect to receive an honorable discharge. Any discharge effected from the results of a court martial is final and cannot be revoked or changed.

A release from the service under conditions other than dishonorable is a prerequisite to veteran's benefits under the Service Man's Readjustment Act of 1944, more commonly called the "G-I Bill of Rights."

Any unfavorable discharge bars a man from reenlisting in the Marine Corps or entering any other service.

Surely if a man would realize just what he is doing to his future when he takes a shady step, he would reconsider and retrace his steps before it is too late.—El Toro Flight Jacket.

Help In Disaster

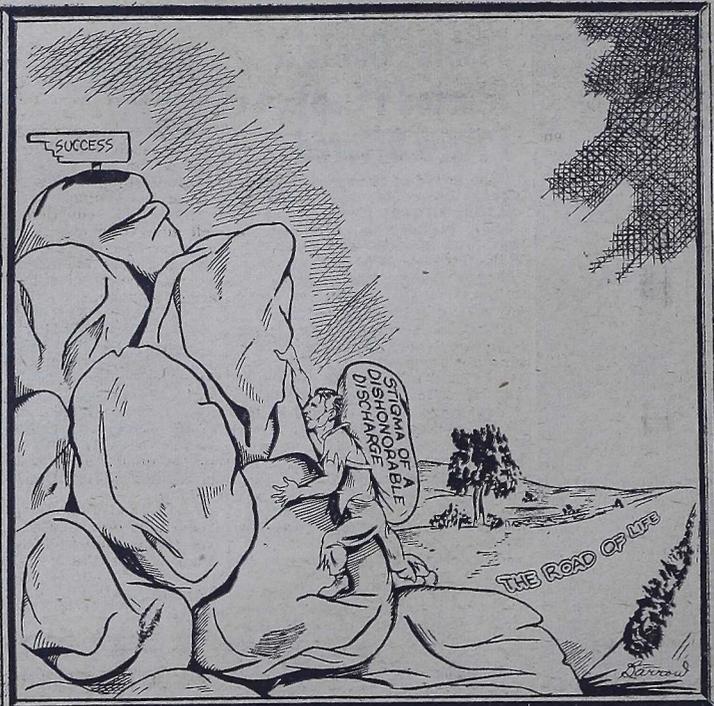

Red Cross

Nearly $110,000,000 has been expended by the American Red Cross for domestic disasters since the close of the first World War. From the date of its founding in 1881, the national organization has assisted in more than 4,000 disasters. It is today recognized as having primary responsibility for coordinating and directing the resources and sympathy of the country in time of disaster.

Red Cross disaster assistance is given on the basis of need, not loss; is a gift, not a loan; is provided on an individual family basis; and always is extended without political, religious or racial discrimination.

Chaplain's Corner

Ring True

A short time ago we had installed in the Camp Chapel a set of Electronic Carillon Bells. From the earliest time of church history, bells have been continuously connected with church and religious ceremonies down thru the ages. These bells at first were rather crude and their tones were faulty but with the advancement in metallurgy and acoustical improvement of musical instruments the bells were improved. So great was their influence that church architecture was built in such a manner as to accommodate itself to the installation of bells. Sometimes there was a separate bell tower. All this was for the purpose of having the bells sounded in such a manner that they would be pleasing to the human ear far and near. Many poems and stories have been written in connection with the sounding of the Angelus Bell which is portrayed in a famous painting by Millet.

With the advent of electronics, there has been developed a new world of sound as to reproduction, perfection and accurate tuning. The electronic carillon bells which have been installed in the Camp Chapel are believed to be the last word in man's attainment of electronic reproduction and amplification at this time. Within the bell chamber there are actually little bells of the proper metal so constructed that when they are struck by a small hammer, released from magnetic control, and propelled by gravity, they give forth a pure tone which is picked up by a very delicate microphone and carried through an amplification of five stages which uses 38 electronic tubes. These tones are always in perfect tune and they will ring true in all kinds of weather and temperature because the source of them is protected and housed within steel walls behind masonry construction. Man has achieved this scientific perfection by long hours in laboratories over a period of years. The tones of these bells will ring true at the touch of the organist and the control of several very simple electric switches.

The Installation Engineer who put in these chimes, after he soldered many small wires and attached his keyboard, had one last adjustment to make. This was most important of all. After having attached his volt meter so that it would measure the voltage to be used for perfect tone amplification at all times, he tried each bell and read the voltage used. He desired a voltage showing of 35. In order to attain this he had to reduce condensers by shorting them out. This was rather a startling part of the installation for one who is uninitiated into the electronics of same. The Engineer took a long, slender screwdriver which made contacts with conductors at certain points to burn out condensers to the extent that the voltage immediately was increased. This was done

From Past Failure

Success?

By SGT. EDDIE FELDMAN

(AFPS)—The League of Nations is no more. On July 31 of this year, all of its assets—money, buildings and documents—were turned over to United Nations and its agencies. More valuable than its meager bank balance or Geneva properties was the bequest offered by the League's last president. "Its lessons," he said, "must now contribute to the success of the second experiment."

Unless they are learned, however, lessons are sights for the blind. Is it possible for us to study "the hope that failed" and see where it failed—and for what reasons?

In 1925, war threatened between Greece and Bulgaria, two nations that have always experienced difficulty agreeing on their common frontier. That October, Greece invaded Bulgaria, claiming a Bulgarian sentry had taken a shot at one of its officers. The Greeks had just time to bombard a town before Bulgaria appealed to the League. The League Council promptly issued an ultimatum ordering troops of both nations back behind their own borders. The League threatened economic and military measures if the order was not immediately obeyed.

Both nations accepted. A League commission was sent to the spot. Greece was declared guilty of an unjustified invasion and fined costs. When Greece paid up, it was thought the millennium of peace might be near.

In 1935, Fascist Italy decided to try her hand at carving an empire, and after a number of feints which convinced her that the League was weakening, jumped on Ethiopia. Although 51 of the 58 members of the League found Italy guilty and agreed to impose sanctions against her, this historical step was doomed by a sudden appeasement offer made by English and French political heads.

You can draw your own conclusions as to the inadequacies of the League's machinery. But in the placing of blame for its over-all failure, don't forget that Americans made political and journalistic capital out of ridiculing the vision and with each bell until all registered on the volt meter the desired reading, in order that tones would always have a consistent volume and ring true. This is the instrument that was installed and tuned to the greatest perfection attainable by mere man with the help of Electronics.

In living day by day, could you liken your life to the true tones of the bells or do you do things that cause discord? In other words, does your life ring true? If not, better get the Spiritual Engineer to short out some bad habit condensers, and other obstacles that are cluttering up your life.

Adapted from Robert Louis Stevenson's immortal "Ebb Tide," and filmed in color, "Adventure Island" deals with two beach rats (Paul Kelly and John Abbott) who team up with a victim of circumstances (Rory Colhoun). Aboard ship is Faith Wishart, ship owner, who supplies moments of action and romance. Two shorts with this one and they are "Wife Tames Wolf" and "Happy-Go-Lucky."

GREEN FOR DANGER

This is an English picture and was produced by J. Arthur Rank. It is a British murder mystery with an operating room setting; flashes of choice comedy amid melodrama. It is highly recommended by the great number of critics that have seen it; and, according to them, Alastair Sim gives a prize performance as a Scotland Yard sleuth. Even if you aren't a whodunit fan, you will most likely enjoy it. The News will be shown with it.

When the fugitive succeeds in locating the killer, however, the latter commits suicide. His last hope of clearing his name gone, he sets out for Peru, where the girl has promised to meet him. Of course this is a natural for the two stars; Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall. Also in the cast are Agnes Moorehead and Bruce Bennett.

The inside stories of activities within the motion picture capital and the uniquely Fidler presentation of the personalities who make the news will become a regular WJNC-Mutual Sunday feature when "Jimmie Fidler—Hollywood News" debuts over this station this Sunday on the 7:30 to 7:45 time slot.

One of the features of Jimmy's Hollywood news program is his annual poll to determine "Who is the Most Popular Living Person Today?" He will begin his 1947 poll on the debating aircast on Sunday. Other features forming a part of the Hollywood authority's motion picture newscasts are his weekly awards to "Americans In The News," his remarks based on "Intimate Notes From My Little Black Book," his "News Highlights of The Week In Review," his "Pick Of The Pix," and his open letters to stars and the motion picture in general, "One Man's Opinion."

The "Americans In The News" feature is based on the weekly selection of an American who, through some outstanding deed, has sky-rocketed himself above his fellow men. Persons so cited receive a $50 savings bond and a 21-jewel wrist watch from Brother James, with a motion picture celebrity making the presentation. The familiar "bells" toll his estimate of the merits of particular films in his "Pick Of The Pix" portion of the program.

This should be a must for you movie fiends.

Win Elliott, the nimble-tongued master of ceremonies who currently sparks several leading network shows, will add another to his list when he assumes the emcee role on the WJNC-Mutual "Quick As A Flash" series when it resumes on Sunday. The time being the same. What the story is on, why Ken Roberts, who did such a grand job last fall-winter and spring, didn't get the renewal, can't be paraphrased at this time, because I don't know. That's radio.

However, Win is a master at high-pacing audience participation type programs, on "Quick As A Flash" he should find another perfect medium for the nimble mental gymnastics and word phraseologies that sky-rocketed him to radio fame.

Originally Win started out as a radio newscaster. That was the niche in life to which he aspired. But one day, while working at a Baltimore, Md., station, Elliott, much against his will, was asked to fill in for the absent master of ceremonies on the station's afternoon variety show. He did, and the rest is radio history. He's now regularly heard on the Betty Crocker programs, the "Willie Piper" series, and has probably become the best known for his work on "Coun-

Gielow Captures All-Navy Swim Crown Labor Day Regatta Was Hotly Contested

RECEIVING final instructions from M/Sgt. Wright, coach, the Division diamond squad confidently groups around their mentor a few days prior to departing for Norfolk to compete in the All-Navy Tourney semi-finals. Division Nine Optimistic As They Enter All-Navy Semi-Final Round

Though a highly-vaunted Quantico nine defeated the Division diamond aggregation by a 6-4 score last week, the local athletes were in high spirits as they took to the field Monday for All-Navy play-offs between winners of the Group I, II and IV elimination Tourneys. The final winner at Norfolk, scene of the contests, will be declared Navy champion, East of the Mississippi.

The East will then face the West in the final play-off to decide the All-Navy title.

The entire Division squad was in fine form for the crucial tests with their highly-rated opponents. Optimism ran high and M-Sgt. Wright, coach of the squad, expressed hopes of walking off with the 'bacon.'

QUANTICO TRIUMPHS

A Quantico team with an impressive won-lost record behind them, took the field against the local diamondeers recently, with the impression that the game would be a bed of roses. A hitting barrage at the outset of the contest by the heavy Division bats, quickly snapped the Virginians out of their lethargy.

Quantico was retired in order in the first. In the bottom of the same inning Frazee singled and took second on an overthrow. Skinner followed with a single but Artie Schmagel, lanky Quantico right-hander, got Messenheimer to pop out. Fairchild got on through a fielder's choice; then stole second to set the stage for Pittsley's towering four-master to deep right-center. Anderson struck out to retire the side.

The Bulldogs showed their teeth in the top of the second however, when they jumped on Lefty Hunter for 2 runs, wrapped around three hits.

Both teams then settled down until the top of the third when Quantico, still backing away at that lead, got another marker back.

Shortstop Russo had opened the inning with a base on balls and Johnson lashed a double into the outer gardens. Peiritsch popped to the pitcher, but Hunter momentarily relaxed and Hora walked. On the fourth ball, which was a wild pitch, Hora kept running. Latessa tried to peg down, but Fairchild was taken out and the ball went through with Russo coming home.

The Division got the run back in their half of the inning with See DIVISION NINE ON Page 7.

Army May Be Dark Horse Of Eastern Football Scramble

(AFPS)—Ever hear the story of the poor guy who grieved when the bartender told him that he had run out of his favorite whiskey? It seems that he happily discovered he could get just as drunk, or drunker, on other brands. Likewise, although barkeep Earl Blaik has drained the last ounce of his Davis & Blanchard Scotch, Army's coach has a new bottle. It hasn't completely aged, but it nevertheless may prove pretty potent stuff. In other words, don't give up on Army for Eastern football supremacy in 1947.

Penn and Navy will field teams little short of sensational. The forthcoming Eastern battle should be hell-for-leather right down to the wire, a far cry from the one-team-reign of the past three seasons. But when the last punt has been returned, don't be too surprised if Army sneaks in a step ahead of the others!

If you read the Sunday papers carefully each Fall, you should do well on this one-question sports quiz: are the following names familiar—Rip Rowan, Bobby Jack Stuart, Joe Steffy, Goble Bryant, Bill Gustafson, Jim Rawers, Bob Folsom, Bill Galiffa, Ray Durry, Joe Shelly and Bill Yoeman?

The point is obvious. When last year's regulars were out, these were the lads who rolled up those extra touchdowns and made the Army scores the fabulous ones that they were. Some of them—Steffy, Bryant and Rowan in particular—played most of the time. Steffy was an All-American. Cadet coaches believe Stuart is faster than Davis. At any rate, no coach can list so many experienced battlers, men unaccustomed to being beaten, and not have a sectional honor contender on his hands. Not even Earl Blaik. And so, believe it or not, Army just might once again be the best team in the East.

Gesser Repeats July 4th Win

Bill Gesser, winner of the July 4th Regatta and runner-up in the August 2 event, repeated his winning ways in the recent Labor Day "Lightning Class" sailing event when he staged a mad dash to the finish line with M-Sgt. Cosgell of Boat No. 4 who had previously veered off his course. Gesser's early lead proved too much for the Sgt. to overcome, however, and the plucky Marine annexed his second local sailing victory. Gesser's sailing mate was Pfc. Behnken.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. O'Halloran formed the winning crew of the "Town Class" race when they nosed out Col. and Mrs. Luckey under a broiling August sun.

The races did not get underway in the morning as planned, because of the calm which pervaded Morgan Bay. However all contests were successfully completed in the afternoon when a stiff breeze arose.

The Lightning race got away to an even start with M-Sgt. Cosgell and his crew of one, Pfc. W. W. Vincent, surging to the fore soon after the starter's signal. At the first buoy Cosgell still had the advantage with Gesser trailing right behind. Boats 1 and 9 were making a fight of it, but the rest of the field was spread out behind.

On the second buoy Gesser managed to slip ahead of his opponent when Cosgell became slightly confused as to the direction of his course. He turned on the power, but Gesser's craft went winging over the finish, a good 100 yards to the fore.

Col. O'Halloran's craft slipped away from Col. Luckey's on the second buoy and was never headed going down the stretch. Boats 33 and 28 both touched the channel marker going around the first buoy and were disqualified.

Eleven Lightning craft and eight Town Class boats entered the day's racing activities, making it the largest field ever to face the starting line of a local Regatta to date.

OTHER EVENTS

Pfc. Wade in canoe 57, took first place honors in the one man race while Cpl. Wirth managed to squeeze in second.

Wirth and Pfc. Stender teamed up in the two man canoe race to walk off with that prize, while Cpl. Steph and Pfc. Winkler came in second.

Miller took the measure of Harnish in the one man rowboat contest while Pfc's Bellamy and Carter copped first place in the two man rowboat race. Pfc's Miller and Harnish finished second.

The canoe tilts provided the comedy for the afternoon with the crowd getting belly laughs galore watching the contestants take a 'dip.' After all eliminations were finished, Gesser faced Pfc. Crovo in the crucial duel. Both boys displayed an excellent sense of balance with the canoes making at least five passes before Gesser tipped in. The winning paddler was Pfc. Slowick, while Pfc. Behnken paddled for Gesser.

Chatter From The World Of Sports

Babe Didrickson Zaharias, after banging around in the sports world for a couple of decades without making much more than a good living either as a pro or an amateur, will cash in for about half a million bucks doing movie shorts, representing a sporting goods firm and giving exhibitions as a pro. That will make her the best-paid as well as the greatest woman athlete of all time. Amateur tennis at Forest Hills lacks the crowd lure of former years without Pauline Betz and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke. But it is a safe bet they do not miss amateur tennis—not with estimated incomes of about $30,000 each this year as pros. Clint Hartung, most highly-publicized rookie of 1947, is changing early-season jeers to cheers by his performance of late.

Diamond Stars Get Victory Medals In "Joint Operation"

NERD PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — In the true spirit of unification, members of the Washington Senators and Philadelphia Athletics baseball players who served in World War II were presented with Victory Medals at a colorful "joint operation" of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps in Philadelphia.

Between the games of a double-header, the three services—an Army band, Marine Corps color guard, and Navy color guard—paraded on the field and came up to position facing home plate. "Ball players to be decorated" then came front and center and ranking officers of the three services presented the medals.

The Army band was from Valley Forge Hospital; Marine Corps and Navy contingents from the Philadelphia Naval Base.

PROGRAM WELL RECEIVED

Officers presenting the decorations were Rear Admiral John E. Wood, USN; Brigadier General Wayne C. Zimmerman, U. S. Army; and Colonel William H. Harrison, USMC, officer in charge of the Northeastern Recruiting Division.

Not only was the event well received by the 30,000 people in the stands, it also made good publicity copy. The ceremony was covered by the newspapers as well as radio and television.

Swimmer Scores Double Victory

Bob Gielow, erstwhile swimming star from the Marine Division competing for FMF Atlantic colors, racked two wins in the All-Navy Swimming and Diving Tournament at Jacksonville, Fla. recently, to come the first local athlete to win an All-Navy crown.

Young Gielow competed in events of which he returned winner in two, the 1500 Meter style and the 800 Meter Freestyle. He was defeated by 2 lengths in the 400 Meter Freestyle event, by Olympic and AAU champion John Higgins. Higgins is now swimming at the Pens. Fla. air station.

Gielow and Sanders, who fourth in the three meter board competition, also came in a Jacksonville, Fla. swimming tourney while All-Navy contest. Gielow was the only event in which he took the 400 Meter Freestyle. Sanders took second place in diving competition.

Artie Hoag, also of the swimming squad, placed fifth in the 100 meter backstroke event, again facing some of the best in the Navy could offer.

Mike's Mirayes, of the Division, placed 4th in the 100 Meter Freestyle, turning in a time of 2:36.1. He also fell before onslaught of Higgins and AAU stars.

The entire tournament was a factory to all hands as far as management and food was concerned. The Navy furnished immediate transportation of all kind competitors and also threw in a silver cup, and a mous aquarium at Marineland. Food was of the best variety, what pleased the Marines was the special maid service furnished to each room.

Sports around the Globe

By Snyder

For the past month all racing fans have been agog over the fact that the nation's top thoroughbreds would face each other in a match race over the Arlington Park course in Chicago. Assault were to be the two principals, with both their trainers and jockeys stirring up personal feuds to liven the race which was already at fever pitch. Then Assault came down on foot and the match was off. In this column of July 23, I pointed out the lack of attention to leading horses and especially to the fact that it hurt racing. Here is a striking example of that. All students of the game will now have to cool their heads and Styxie against each other. However, this is a tute for a big money match race. As Dan Parker suggests, not a battle between Styxie and Armed. Remember, he leading money-winner of the American turf.

Regiate All-Stars faced the Chicago Bears in the opening game of the season recently and much to everyone's surprise, was slightly lopsided. Buddy Young, Jim Mello, George Charles Trippi and the entire line came in for their share of upset of the Big Bad Halas Bears. Unfortunately, we can't say Chicago Pros are as bad as all that. Halas keeps his squad lined up, it's just possible they weren't geared to go the full speed. Then again the Pros are a stand-out organization, speed, power and deception. Buddy Young was nominated as the colored boy of the game a few days after the contest began. The colored boy should really burn up the league when he goes with the Pro Yanks. Sinwich, Spec Sanders and Young are to be a coach's dream. Ray Flaherty has heard of these already. Needless to say he is still skeptical.

William and Bob Montgomery, principal participants in the championship Lightweight bout, signed to meet again next week. The second brawl measures up to the proportions of the first. The fight will be well-worth seeing. Ike and the Bobcat will be fighting to regain their stature in the eyes of the fans. The result will be purely on the head of the Trenton colored boy, with the champion challenger being the only worry which clouds his

Just as good a time as any to mention the Graziano-Zale better title might be 'newspaper talk.' As soon as the aging slugger's crown to the youthful Bronx slugger, everyone started to talk about another bout, especially those people who thought Zale up his title. The talk raged in the papers for a few days and the way of all flesh. It's just another example of what will print, just to fill up space, even on the large dailies in our country. Zale is just a wee bit too old for that strenuous task of being someone much younger than himself around the ring. Zale, one of the tennis 'greats' of the past few decades, is defending his title as such. Jack has just finished one of the most important matches in the men's National Singles Tournament. As he has written the Davis Cup matches have not been played. As this reads they will be past history. Last December, we went to Australia and saw Australia would successfully hold onto the Davis Cup. Zale is the size of the tennis world. They lost. This year we say Zale will not be able to defeat the US, nor anyone else for that matter. He'll probably be wrong. Anyway we have a lot of fun watching him. So here is a weak vote for the United States team. Ausubel is the chief challenger with Bromwich, Pails and the young boy for bear. Ted Schroeder will be along with tall Jake to defend the cup, and also add the ingredients for some bang-up matches. Since Kramer and Schroeder turned in such a fine recent defense, there is little reason why they should not be able to have cleaned up on the various circuits; both have a majority of the major tourneys. Here's hoping both can bring the Davis Cup back here where it belongs for at least another year.

Max Baucus's pennant hopes suffered a severe blow when Max Baucus, former Cardinal southpaw, deserted the club and returned to the States. Max came up missing when the Blues were to start their series at Monterrey and it was said the lefthander had returned to his country without even giving a hint to anybody that he was still in the States. Days after Lanier's disappearance, Fred Martin, also a former pitcher, received a letter from Max, asking him among other things to forward his mail to the United States. Martin was in Mexico, according to Roberto Ortiz, who saw the letter, that he had been in the Mexican loop, because of its lack of formality, referring to the amount of pay Lanier could not collect when he went to the States to get his money. Also, Max is reported to have said he was satisfied with Jorge Pasquel's way of talking things over.

Retired athletes and champions are prone to a common ailment when they quit, they do so with such decision and return after a few years they become flabby hulks, and dim reminders of their former greatness. Then, within a short span of years you pick up a newspaper and read they have collapsed. It's a sad sight. A living example of what a great athlete can do to preserve a magnificent body is 87-year-old Stanislaw Zbyszko, now living in retirement in Oak Orchard, Maine. He operates a chain of tourist cottages. Scarcely a day passes, no matter the weather, that old Zibby misses a three-mile run and his exercises, and if a wrestler happens to be in the neighborhood the old ex-champion loves nothing better than a joust. In the last ten years, Zbyszko has been host to a number of modern grapplers, and it is not our purpose to relate the names of everyone of them. But there is none who can boast to have defeated the old man around. Which brings up the question as to who is the best wrestler in the last 50 years. Many will agree that Gotch and Zbyszko were among the better grapplers and the best wrestler in the last 50 years. Many will agree that the 70-year old Jack Herman who managed both refuses to be as better. It might be best to leave the argument there, and let us say that any man who can preserve his body as long as Zbyszko has, is a credit to the sport world and a mark for the next generation to shoot at.

The Olympics are looming on the horizon and they are a bigger topic on the sports agenda of the servicemen since they allow us athletes to compete with the best in the nation. The selection of different coaches for various sports has led to a cry of sporting politics while other critics are lashing out at the ancient games and declaiming them as foster brothers of laziness and unrest. However, most Americans realize that these games are started to foster world brotherhood and good-will among nations. They may not always have succeeded but they have not totally failed. There have never been any riots or brawls at the Olympics of monumental proportions. There have been some incidents but never any great miscarriages of justice (they have had some, however.) Yet we feel that the Olympics have a special significance in our lives, given them an outlet for their energies. Anyway, no matter how your personal feeling is on the subject, let's all agree to give the 1948 Olympics a chance at proving themselves.

Mahoney Gains Nod Over Pitts In 8th Regiment's Smoker

By S/SGT. C. R. BARROW

Joe Mahoney took the measure of heavyweight Harold Pitts in the recent 8th Marines' boxing smoker held at Gym 401 last week, by outpointing the more inexperienced boxer over the three round route.

In the first bout of the evening Pete Thatcher got the nod over Bob Liebowitz in a close one. In the second bout Mel Steel's solid smashes to the head and midsection influenced the judges more than the clever footwork of young Sal Padillo. Padillo's a "cutie" and a return bout between these two might prove interesting. Clem Johnston took on Sgt. Walt Herrington in the third bout of the night. Johnston was leading on points when the bout was stopped because of a cut over his eye. Johnston was, to the approval of all those present, declared the winner. In the fourth bout Dick Smith and Clarence Rhodemyre went round and round and both of them were content with the judge's decision of a "Draw." They were both mighty tired. Mat Terronez tangled with Bert Sharp in the next bout on the program. The bout was stopped momentarily when the referee, in breaking the men, scored a clean overhand elbow to the eye of Terronez. It was purely an accident on the ref's part and it didn't hinder Terronez's efficiency too much. He got the unanimous decision of the judges. Sharp will be a boy to watch in future bouts. He acted as if he hadn't heard about what a rough fellow the "Chief" can be. There were brief flashes when Terronez didn't look so rough either. I think the less said about the "Battle Royal", the better. A kid named Haight won it after having been pushed practically into the ring by his buddies. I think if my buddies treated me like that, I'd get me some new ones. Haight fought McNeely in the wind-up of this lash-up. Joe Pinelli and Artie Levine then put on an exhibition. Both of them were in excellent condition and neither one got hurt. The final bout of the evening starred Joltin' Joe Mahoney and Harold Pitts. It was another case of where Pitts apparently hadn't read Joe's clippings, and so did quite well for himself. He was still there at the finish and in the horizontal position instead of the "prone" that Joe's opponents usually assume I've seen you look better, Joe.

Everytime I leave the gym after one of these boxing smokers which are held periodically here on the base, I swear I'm never going to another one. But I'm always right back for the next one. I guess I'm just a dyed-in-the-wool lover of the "sport." There's nothing I get a Finals of the Camp Lejeune Golf Championship Tournament will be held on the week-end of September 6-7. However, the Golf Committee has not definitely decided as to whether or not the day for the finals will be Saturday or Sunday.

All finalists will have a starting time which will be posted at a conspicuous place in the Golf Course Club House.

Spectators are cordially invited to attend this major event of the current local Golfing season. After the match, the enlisted men's clubhouse will be the scene of a buffet supper for all Flight winners and runners-up along with their guests.

Division Nine

Messenheimer tallying on Anderson's fielder's choice.

Quantic evened things up in the famed seventh inning and refused to let the game go into extra stanzas when they scored two runs on Division errors in the ninth. Russo opened the fateful last stanza with a walk. Johnson bunted and what followed could have been mistaken for Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors." Cosby threw to second and the ball went through to center field. Russo kept going and Frazee threw over Messenheimer's head at third. Russo put his head down and started for home, whereupon Messenheimer flung the pellet over Latessa's head and the run scored, the ball ending up in a nearby mud-puddle, splattering some of the spectators. Peiritsch struck-out but Hora singled to score the "insurance" marker.

bigger charge out of than seeing two guys pound each other around under hot lights. But it's never the fighters themselves I blow my stack about. It's those few flannel-mouths that crawl out of the woodwork and scream "Kill him," or "You got him tired now—let him have it," and the always-good-for-a-chuckle, "What are you two doin'—goin' steady"? That boxing smoker staged by Pvt. Casto over in Gym 401 the other night is a good example of what I'm chipping my ivory about. Casto, Lt. Boyd (who referred), and WO Houston who announced, put a lot of time and effort into getting these bouts organized and running swiftly and smoothly. The fighters themselves had nothing to show for their night's work other than pains in their backs and lumps on their heads. But to hear the screams and cat-calls from the cheap seats you'd think that they all met immediately afterward to divide and pocket the loot!

Division Battalion League Champions In 4 Sports Named

After five months of bitter competition the final victors in the Division Softball, Volleyball, Tennis and Golf Intra-Battalion Leagues have been announced. The Baseball title is still pending, awaiting a play-off between the 1st AA and 2nd Bn., Eighth. Winners of that contest will face Medium Depot and 2nd. Amtracs, in the battle for the crown.

1st. Bn., Tenth Marines copped the Softball title with a team composed of players entirely from "B" Battery. They went through the season with 13 wins and one defeat, snaring the title with wins over the 2nd Tanks and 2nd Combat Service Groups in the play-offs. The team was composed of Cook, Arnette, Young, Patton, Wilson, Kwillinski, Baroffio, Hoen, Goho, Labek, Grube, Leech, Kanikula, and Reilly. Arnette and Young provided steady pitching while Stawski was the slugger.

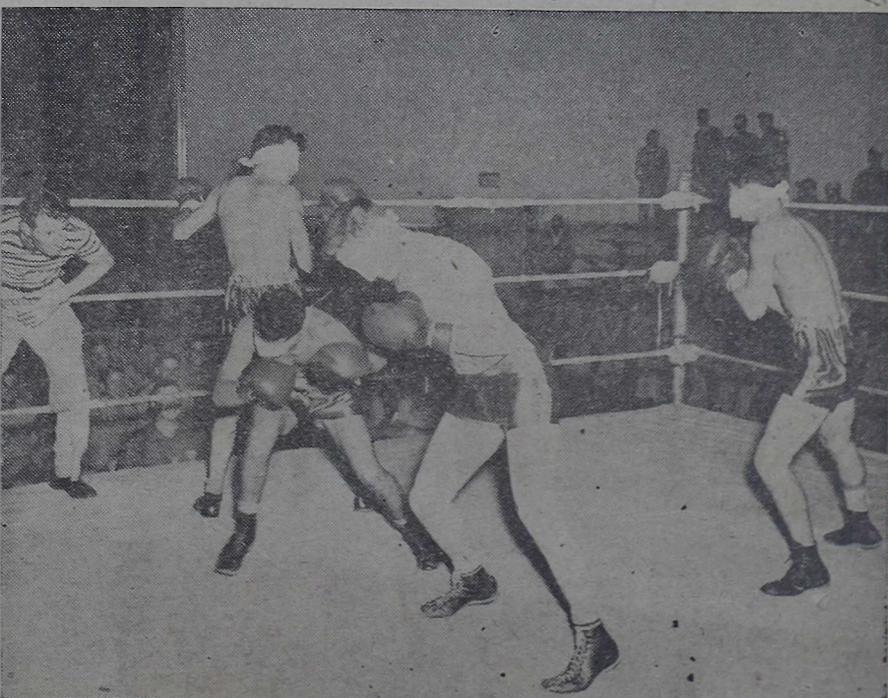

Second Combat Service Group took the Golf Championship with two play-off wins against the 2nd Pioneers. Scores were 7 1/2 to 5 1/2, and 10-2. Lt. Col. Todd, Cpl. Spencer, Cpl. Bellizzi and Pfc. Linsey composed the regular team with Sgt. Miller and Pfc. Morrison as alternates.

The 2nd Pioneers made a clean sweep of their 33 regularly scheduled games in the Tennis League, gaining top spot from the start and never being displaced. From about the middle of June, the team was composed of two men, Alan "Scotty" Farmer and Bobby "Pouch" Dockey. Major H. A. Hayes coached the boys to their amazing record and did a fine job of it. Don Eberle, Bob Hallman and Ken Jones had held the number four spot on the squad at various times.

Matt Stampalia, John Berning, Lloyd Oppen, Ben Weddie, Elliott Tyler and Ray Yox composed the 1st Bn., Eighth team which copped the Volleyball title, with two wins and a forfeit in the play-offs. 2nd Service Combat Group and 2nd Medical Bn. fell victims to the Eighth Marines' onslaught in the crucial games.

BATTLE ROYAL—A touch of comedy was provided at the recent Eighth Marines boxing smoker held in Gym 401, when five blindfolded contestants entered the ring in an attempt to slug it out with each other. The hilarious antics of the "blind punners" had the fans rolling in the proverbial aisles. The eventual winner, K. M. Haight, pictured at far right, was volunteered as the fifth contestant by his buddies, some Friends! (Photo by Pfc. T. G. Miller.)
