Energy Awareness Week

Globe File Report

What is Energy Awareness Week? Energy Awareness Week, Oct. 24-28, is a time for every American to think about energy: Where it comes from, How it's used, How it can be conserved or used more efficiently, and it's importance to our national security and economic prosperity.

Our energy bill at Camp Lejeune exceeded $21.6 million for fiscal year 1988.

Electricity	$15,150,000
Coal	$1,360,000
Fuel/oil	$5,157,000

Total $21,667,000

An integral part of Camp Lejeune's Energy Conservation Program is the Energy Monitoring and Control System (EMCS) and the Load Management System located in the UMACS office at Base Maintenance. The EMCS computer system operates using the temperature set point control to monitor and control air conditioning and heating systems via telephone lines in approximately 125 buildings base-wide. The Load Management System has a controller which transmits its commands via radio waves to over 10,000 radio control switches on heat pumps and hot water heaters in all housing areas and some industrial areas.

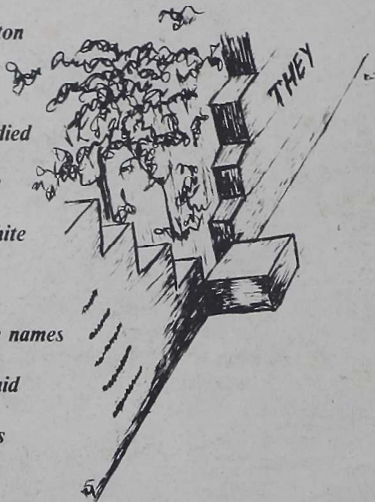

Another way the base conserves energy is through projects which provide more insulation, weather stripping and caulking to our facilities. Some simple tasks we all can take part in are:

- ✓ Turning off unnecessary lights
- ✓ Limiting electrical usage during on-peak hours
- Oct. 1-Mar. 31
- *6 a.m.-1 p.m.
- *4-9 p.m.
- April 1-Sept. 30
- *10 a.m.-10 p.m.
- *M-F
- ✓ Minimizing hot water usage
- ✓ Keeping doors and windows closed while using heating and cooling systems
- ✓ Keeping heating and cooling system filters clean
- ✓ Keeping thermostats set at 70 degrees in winter and 78 degrees in summer

This campaign for Energy Awareness is a Camp Lejeune community effort as well as a national effort. Every employee, Marine, Sailor and dependent aboard Camp Lejeune must do their part to conserve energy for a successful Energy Conservation Program, not only during Energy Awareness Week, but throughout the entire year.

The Other Wall

*It does not stand in Washington
By others of its kind
In prominence and dignity
With mission clear defined
It does not list the men who died
That tyranny should cease
But speaks in silent eloquence
Of those who came in peace.
This Other Wall is solemn white
And cut in simple lines
And it nestles in the splendor
Of the Carolina pines.
And on this wall there are the names
Of men who once had gone
In friendship's name to offer aid
To Beirut, Lebanon.
They did not go as conquerors
To bring a nation down
Or for honor or for glory*

*Or for praises or renown
When they landed on that foreign shore
Their only thought in mind
Was the safety of its people
And the good of all mankind.
Though they offered only friendship
And freedom's holy breath
They were met with scorn and mockery
And violence and death
So the story of their glory
Is not of battles fought
But of their love for freedom
Which was so dearly bought
And their Wall shall stand forever
So long as freedom shines
On the splendor and the glory
Of the Carolina pines*

Health Watch: AIDS Task Force highlights education, understanding

By Debbie Corson

Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome is a disease plaguing our nation. Due to a severe lack of understanding and knowledge of the disease, many people are reacting with fear and even panic. "People are afraid," said Capt. Mary Kerdus of the Camp Lejeune Naval Hospital, "and that's to be expected."

"Our (the Onslow County AIDS Task Force) goal is to help people to be afraid in a smart way in order to prevent the spread of the disease," continued Kerdus, Naval Hospital representative to the Task Force.

In observance of National AIDS Awareness Month, the Onslow County AIDS Task Force recently held a memorial service at Riverfront Park in honor of the seven county residents that reportedly died from the AIDS virus since 1981.

On display was a three-foot by six-foot quilt panel bearing the name of one area resident who was lost to AIDS.

The panel is only a small part of the national AIDS memorial quilt, according to a fact sheet distributed by the North Carolina Human Rights Fund. It is composed of 11.18 miles of canvas edging five miles of walkways and covers an area equivalent to eight football fields. The national memorial was recently on display in Washington.

The 16-ton quilt, represents 22 percent of the AIDS related deaths in the United States, according to the fact sheet. For each panel in the quilt, 4.5 other people have supposedly died.

The Onslow County AIDS Task Force is composed of representatives from the Human Services Directorate's Office, Camp Lejeune; The Naval Hospital, Camp Lejeune; and NAVCARE; also several following Onslow County organizations.

Seven of 10 reported Onslow County residents have died from AIDS since 1981, although members of the Task Force agree that the data is inaccurate and that the actual number of cases is much higher.

Also not considered in the current Onslow County AIDS statistics are those who have Human Immunodeficiency Virus, (HIV). These people do not necessarily have the AIDS disease, but do have the infected red blood cells.

The AIDS disease is caused when HIV enters the red blood cells and infects DNA structure, causing a breakdown of the body's immune system. This leaves the body weak and defenseless against normal infections that a healthy person resists.

HIV carriers can, however, infect others, says Kerdus. HIV carriers are the number actual AIDS victims about 5 percent, according to Task Force members.

Symptoms of AIDS disease are weight loss, fever, night sweats, diarrhea, tiredness, white spots on tongue, mouth, swollen lymph glands in the armpits and groin, dry cough, red, or purple blotches that look like bru-

People who have only had a sexual relationship with one partner since 1978 and who have not received blood transfusions are fairly safe, according to a fact sheet. However, they are now safer. The people who take blood donations are well-trained and always use new needles to draw blood, notes Kerdus.

As of 1985, recipients of blood transfusions at almost no risk now, due to blood testing methods, notes the report.

PAO guidance

The 2nd Marine Expeditionary Force is currently conducting a Combined Arms Operation through the area, designed to test the ability of its units to conduct combat operations over extended distances. The exercise is designed to provide training opportunities for ground, air and service support elements of the Marine Air-Ground Task Force.

Units from the 2nd Marine Division and 2nd Force Service Support Group, along with those of the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing, will participate in the operation which involves; a tactical movement from Camp Lejeune to Fort Pickett, Va.; field exercises at Fort Pickett and; a tactical movement back to Camp Lejeune.

Rest and bivouac sites along the designated routes of march between Camp Lejeune and Fort Pickett have been coordinated with local authorities and state citizens.

Marines participating in the exercise are reminded that safety and common sense are primary concerns. Due to the fact that military vehicles will be using local and state roads throughout eastern North Carolina and southern Virginia and private properties being used, Marines should take every precaution, both to protect the public and to avoid any damage to civilian property.

Marines in the field are reminded to notify the nearest Marine civil affairs team if any problems with civilians or private property should arise during the exercise.

Marines may encounter civilian media along the routes of travel and should have them contact respective G-1 section or the PAO office. Any comments or concerns with regard to the exercise should be referred to the Public Affairs Office, Camp Lejeune (919) 451-5882.

Birthday prayer breakfast

The annual Marine Corps birthday prayer breakfast will be held at 6 a.m., Nov. 8 at the base cafeteria. Last year, nearly 400 Marines and Sailors packed the cafeteria for the prayer breakfast. Why would anyone get up that early and pay for a special breakfast?

One frequently give explanation is that a prayer breakfast just makes you feel special. It feels good to sing "Oh Beautiful for Spacious Skies" along with the band. It feels great to pray along with the private, staff sergeant or colonel who happens to lead the prayer.

It is refreshing to read the scriptures with a fellow Marine or Sailor. And it feels good to listen to a general talk about the spiritual aspects of life.

One Marine said, "Just like I try to keep myself physically fit, I like also to keep myself spiritually tuned up. And when I do, I feel good about myself."

Who sells the tickets? Check with your sergeant major or master chief. He may even help you find a ride to the breakfast.

Who will speak this year? The speaker is a man who can be seen every Sunday in church on base. A man who fellowships after church with the Marines, Sailors, and their spouses who attend church. That man is Brig. Gen. Donald R. Gardner, our commanding general.

Come to the prayer breakfast and appreciate the spiritual side of the Corps.

Project officer for the breakfast is LCDR J.S. Lineback. He may be reached at 451-2630/3773 for information or coordination.

1st AAV Bn. tries its hand at infantry role

Staff Sgt. Ernie Carter

Gimbaru Training Area, Okinawa, Japan — The patrol didn't see the incoming grenade or the enemy who had thrown it. But that scarcely mattered to the Marine it took out.

Lance Cpl. Hector Rivera, 2nd platoon, Charlie Co., 1st AAV Bn., was "killed" in the raid but returned later for additional missions during the two-day exercise here. The Camp Lejeune-based company, assigned to 1st AAVs in the Unit Deployment cycle, took advantage of Gimbaru, Aug. 9-10, to refresh their infantry skills.

Capt. Marshal Perry, company commander, said his company was in the field to practice basic patrolling techniques. "This is strictly an internal company operation," Perry remarked, "and the platoons are evenly matched."

The company fielded two platoons which were both "friendly" and "enemy." Both set up base camps with necessary defensive perimeters. Each sent out partols to locate the opposing force's CP or ambush "enemy" patrols.

Because neither platoon could make contact with their opponent until evening, both spent the day learning how to establish defenses. In addition, they practiced patrolling along the many trails through the forested terrain.

Lance Cpl. Adam Engel, who joined the company seven months ago after bootcamp, said the training served to increase his infantry knowledge.

Third platoon's 3rd Team Leader,

Lance Cpl. Scott Szaban, said the infantry training gave him another opportunity to exercise his leadership abilities.

Maintaining combat readiness was the company's goal at Gimbaru, and infantry training is an aspect the company commander does not plan to overlook.

In spite of a myriad of training and operational commitments, he is scheduling another session. He plans to challenge Alpha Co., 3rd AAV Bn., when they arrive for their cycle in the UDP.

7th Motor T Bn. ready following SAAD shoot

By Lance Cpl. James A. Manner

Camp Pendleton, Calif.—Butcher, baker, candlestick maker: they must all be combat ready; 7th Motor Transport Battalion certainly will be.

Recently, the 1st Force Service Support Group battalion, was on the range practicing Small Arms Aircraft Defense (SAAD). The crest of the sandy ridge was lined with M16A2s, Squad Automatic Weapons and .50 caliber machine guns.

The Marines spent the morning listening to classes in preparation for their SAAD shoot. The classes focused on firing methods to bring down small aircraft as well as the flying maneuvers of the Warsaw Pact countries.

"The SAAD program was created because of the threat of the Warsaw Pact," said Douglas D. Habel of Continental Remotely Piloted Vehicles. "We show the Marines different flying scenarios such as climbing turns, diving turns and pop-up diversions in preparation for what they will encounter during wartime."

The planes at which the Marines of 7th Motors fired were 1/9th scale model replica drones of MiG-27s about five feet in length. The radio-controlled drones are constructed of foam, fiberglass and balsa wood fitted with a standard model airplane engine.

"The shoot gave us an idea of how SAAD works with knocking out aircraft," said Lance Cpl. Charles Rudolph, 23, who manned one of the .50 caliber machine guns. "You learn how to lead an aircraft so he flies into your shooting."

"We get the Marines out here to familiarize them with the weapons and techniques used to engage the enemy," said 1st Lt. Steve M. Byrnes, company skills coordinator for 7th Motor Transport during one of the breaks from manning the firing line and barking instructions to the gunners. "We prepare them to defend themselves and with means to shoot down the enemy."

Lance Cpl. Charles E. Love, brought down a MiG with a .50 caliber machine gun. "The training was worthwhile. It gave us practice and knowledge of how the enemy comes. Fire discipline was emphasized, too. We prepared us to go to war," he said.

Combat readiness doesn't apply only to the infantry Marine, it means all Marines. There can be no exceptions to calls of wartime, not even for butchers, bakers and candlestick makers.

'Recon Blast' drops from sky

Two Marines from 2nd Recon Bn., 2nd Marine Division, float to the ground during a session of 'Recon Blast.'

Marines of 2nd Recon Bn. make their way to an awaiting helicopter.

Story and photos by
Lance Cpl. E.V. Walsh

The afternoon sun gleamed down onto Tactical Landing Zone Falcon as the CH-53E 'Super Stallion' lifted off.

A blast of sand sprayed the Marines watching as the helicopter gradually climbed to an altitude of more than 2,000 feet.

The pilot's radio voiced the call, "You're clear to drop," and that's precisely what the cargo in the rear of the helicopter did.

About 45 jump qualified Marines from 2nd Reconnaissance Battalion along with Marines from 2nd Air Delivery Platoon took to the skies and dropped onto TLZ Falcon as part of the recent 'Recon Blast.'

As the helicopter made its way to the prescribed altitude, several of the Marines' dependents made their way to a high grassy area overlooking the landing zone. The anticipation was evident as wives and children squinted their eyes, hoping to pick out which 'chute carried "daddy" as the MCI-1B parachutes began to blossom from the rear area of the helicopter.

As the parachutes gently carried the Marines to the ground, cheers erupted from some of the dependents and Marines as well.

"That was just one aspect of our Recon Blast," said Lt. Col. M. E. Williams, commanding officer, 2nd Recon Bn.

"We also do Special Patrol Insertion and Extraction (SPIE) rigging, rappelling, fast roping, and boat work, in addition to the parachute jumps," he continued.

The 'blast,' as it is commonly referred to by the Marines of Recon, has a two-fold mission.

First, it gives the Reconnaissance Marines a chance to practice the insertion methods, leaving the rest of their duty time to their patrolling, reconnaissance, and intelligence gathering responsibilities.

According to Williams, the second part of the mission is to give some of the Headquarters and Service Company personnel the chance to experience the thrill of the many insertion techniques that are Recon Marines' claim to fame.

"It gives everyone in the battalion a chance to do the training and get some 'hands on' experience," said

An abstract shot displays parachutes in their state of deployment.

Williams, who made his 100th parachute jump that day.

The blast is scheduled for the last Friday of the month, and there is always a good turnout.

"This is the best thing for the battalion," said Cpl. Larry Flores, logistics officer.

"We've always been looking for something like this," he added.

After dropping 10 Marines safely to the ground from an altitude of 2,000 feet, the helicopter landed, picked up 10 more and repeated the process. Of those 10 had jumped, another detail boarded the aircraft for their jump, however, the altitude they jumped from was more than doubled.

Looking down to the ground, distinguishable figures became tiny specks as the helicopter reached 4,500 feet. By direction of the jumpmasters, the Marines hooked up their static lines and stood on the ramp of the aircraft as the cool wind ripped at their clothing. With a blink of an eye, the Marines jumped into the air and the static lines deployed their chutes.

"This was an outstanding jump," said Lance Cpl. Dave Brewer, Delta Co., 2nd Recon Bn.

"The 'blast' gives everybody a chance to see what we can do, and to do some of it with us," he added.

"Everything about the jump went great from here," said Staff Sgt. Rob Roberson, one of the jumpmasters.

"We sure were up there a long time before we hit the ground," he added.

Things were not great just from the air though, as the Marines and dependents on the ground were thrilled as well.

"This was the first time I ever came to see my husband jump," said Esther Gambale, a dependent.

"It's great because as dependents we don't see this kind of thing everyday," she said.

People may not see parachute jumps or other unique insertion methods displayed at the Recon 'blast' everyday, but to the Marines of 2nd Recon Bn. it was all just part of the job.

The Marines of 2nd Recon Bn. stand ready to fight in 'every clime and place,' and with the help of 'Recon Blast' they can have some fun doing it as well.

Lejeune student soars to the top in essay contest

Cpl. Juvonnie Z. Kinchen

Everybody has something special to remember about their high school days. Whether it's a boyfriend, a teacher or a place, there's always something that sticks out when it comes to looking back on school.

Though only a sophomore at Lejeune High School, Jennifer Schenk has something special to remember already. The daughter of Navy Capt. and Mrs. J. Schenk, recently won an essay contest sponsored by the Fleet Reservist Association of Jacksonville.

She won not only locally for the 10th grade, but on two other levels: regional-overall; and nationally for the 10th grade.

The quiet, soft spoken 16-year-old, entered the contest expecting to win on the local level. To everyone's surprise she swept the competition.

"The contest was open to all Onslow County students, grades 7-12," said Albert A. Allison, president, Fleet Reservist Association of Jacksonville.

"Somebody, I don't remember who, called and said I didn't do well at all," Schenk said.

Her topic for the essay was "What Memorial Day Means to Me," a topic chosen by the Fleet Reservist Association for all contestants.

Jennifer Schenk, a 10th grade student at Lejeune High School, accepts her award as the 10th grade national winner of an essay contest sponsored by Fleet Reservist Association.

"The Beirut Memorial and the Arlington Cemetery are what inspired me. When I saw them, I felt proud and thankful to be an American," she said.

Research for the paper started with a look into the history of Memorial Day and the soldiers who died for our country. The knowledge of what the soldiers went through to keep America free filled Jennifer Schenk with pride and understanding. She now understands what a great country America is and that it would be awful to live here if we didn't have our "Freedom".

'I wanted to express what I felt about Memorial Day. I wanted to express why our freedom, America's freedom should be important to all of us.'

"I wanted to express what I felt about Memorial Day. I wanted to express why our freedom, America's freedom should be important to all of us," she said.

In the future, the sophomore plans to become a psychiatrist or psychologist and help in the fight against drugs and alcohol. In achieving this goal, she will be involved in her own battle to help free America.

For now, her accomplishments in high school and the memories she will have will be stepping stones to her success.

The first phase of the memorial was the planting of 271 memorial trees along Lejeune Boulevard, one for each Marine and soldier killed in Beirut as well as for each of those who were members of the 24th Marine Amphibious Battalion.

In a dogwood and oak forest, on the 3rd anniversary of the Beirut bombing, the second phase was completed by the Jacksonville Beautification Commission. It was the construction of a granite wall at the entrance of Camp Johnson featuring a granite wall with the names of those killed in the Beirut bombing.

Ambulance Division races to save lives

Story and photos by
Lance Cpl. E.V. Walsh

As cars drive down Holcomb Boulevard, a set of flashing lights and the shriek of a siren pass. The cars pull over to the shoulder of the road and the zooming ambulance passes through traffic.

The ambulance scrambles down the road to a car accident. Noticing that Marines are hurt, two men leap from the ambulance, one Marine and one Navy corpsman, both determined to save the lives of the injured Marines. Confidently, they attempt to stabilize the wounded before loading them in the ambulance.

From the scene of the accident, a mangled clump of metal, the ambulance races to the Naval Hospital aboard Camp Lejeune.

These heroic life-savers are attached to the Naval Hospital's ambulance division. A division that shows the concept of Navy/Marine teamwork aboard here.

"We're two different services, but we're one big family," said Sgt. Fields W. Meadows, NCOIC of the ambulance division. "We're a team. It has to be that way in order to get the job done."

Teamwork is a key factor in how the ambulance division personnel handle their jobs.

In most cases, a Marine will drive the ambulance, and upon arrival at the scene, will draw all necessary equipment while the corpsman assesses the patient's condition and administers necessary medical attention.

"It's really important that the Marine understands the medical aspect of the job too," said Meadows.

The Marines, as well as the corpsmen are proficient in emergency medical treatment. They are all nationally certified Emergency Medical Technicians are a vital part of Camp Lejeune's medical community.

Having both members of the crew certified is helpful in mass casualty incidents as well as in a CPR situation when both are needed.

On a typical day, there are three units dispatched to cover the division, MCB and base housing's area of operation. One is responsible for the mainside area, one is dispatched at Marine Corps Air Station New River, and one is stationed at Courthouse Bay.

Sgt. Fields W. Meadows

"We divided the base into sectors," said Meadows. "We can respond to a call anywhere in the Camp Lejeune/MCAS area in eight minutes or less."

In addition to their normal commitments, the ambulance division assists civilian ambulance companies in their overflow.

"We help them when they need it and they return the favor when we need it," said Meadows.

Although the division's primary range is within the confines of the base and base housing, they are also responsible for transporting patients to other hospitals such as Bethesda, Md., and Duke University for further medical attention.

The ambulance division keeps themselves busy, as they answer more than 250 calls per month, of which 40 percent are serious conditions.

Of the remainder of the calls, many are not necessary, which poses a problem. "Misuse of the ambulances portrays a problem to us here," said HMC G.T. Sugg, leading chief petty officer of the emergency medical department. "We've had people even call up for sunburns and twisted ankles."

Another problem, a major one, ambulance division personnel encounter is that drivers fail to yield right-of-way to the ambulances—That's a violation of the law.

"The lights and siren request drivers to yield the right-of-way to us," said Meadows. "But in many cases, people aren't even paying attention. That's pretty bad, because we are trying to help people. They'd sure want people to pull over if they were in the back of the ambulance."

"In accordance with Base Order P5560.2J, a failure to yield to an emergency vehicle, can cause a driver to lose four points off their driver's license," said Cpl. Greg Finley, a military policeman assigned to the traffic code. "In addition, they could receive a 60-day suspension of on-base driving privileges."

To the ambulance division, the call is a code 1050, automobile accident, a code three emergency, put them to rest. They have to respond quickly, perform life-saving treatment, and transport their patients to the hospital.

Corporal R. S. Lee and Petty Officer Third Class K. Bendo unload a patient from an ambulance at the Naval Hospital. Both men are assigned to the Ambulance Division.

Dog-tags help find girl

Cpl. Mike Carr

Kennedy, the Ray's 18-month-old daughter was gone! For Kelli Ray, it was her parent's worst nightmare come true. Mrs. Ray was only going to be in the shower for a few minutes, and she had locked all the doors and sat Kennedy in front of the TV with her other child, Braden, age 3, and the family dog Miami. She repeatedly had told the children to stay there for her and not to open any of the doors. Returning from her shower ten minutes later, Mrs. Ray discovered that Braden was there. Kennedy and the dog were gone. The door leading to a screened-in porch was open. Questioning Braden, she learned that the 3-year-old had opened the porch door and was trying to get his younger sister to leave the house through a hole in the screen. A quick search of the yard produced no results, so Mrs. Ray phoned her husband, 1st Lt. Shawn Ray, the 2nd Marine Maintenance Management Officer. Lieutenant Ray told her he would be home shortly for lunch, and would use his family vehicle to help in the search for Kennedy. Eventually, Mrs. Ray prepared to leave the house to continue the search in the phone rang. Snatching the receiver from its cradle, she told the caller abruptly, "I can't talk, I have to go find my child!"

As she was hanging up the phone, she heard the voice on the line say "I have your child."

Relieved, but puzzled, Mrs. Ray soon learned how the good samaritan, a neighbor, was able to contact her.

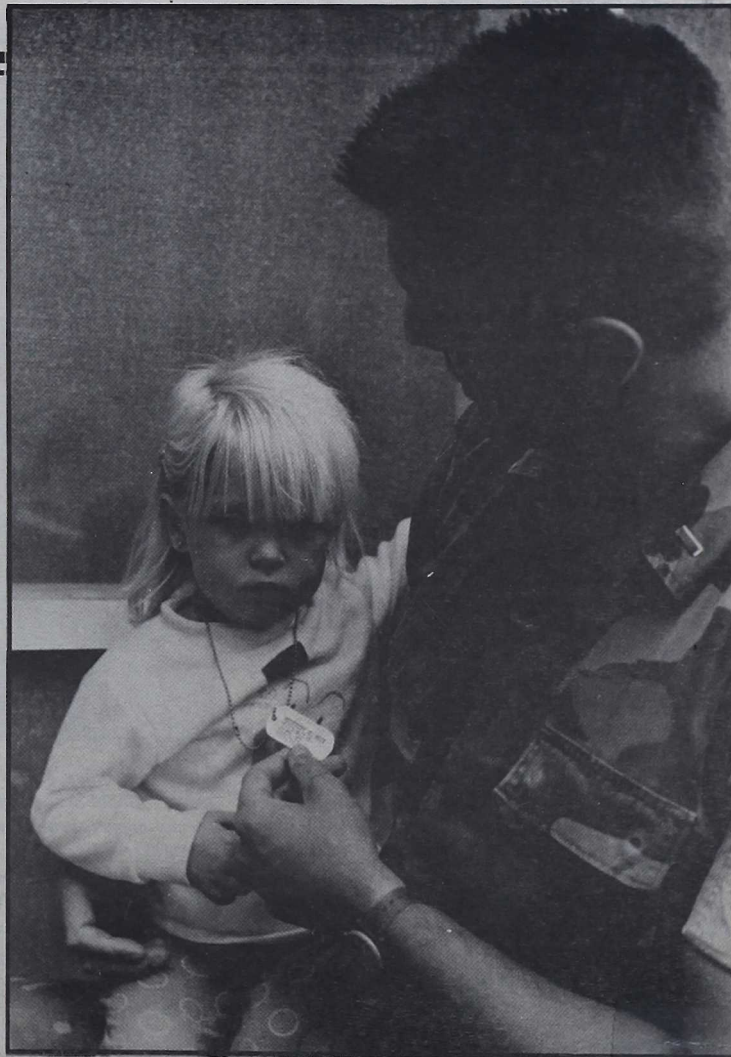

As a concerned parent, the lieutenant had bought dog-tags for each of his children at a military surplus store. Embossed on the tags were the children's names, address and phone number.

"It's a frightening thing to lose a child," said 1st Lt. Ray. "We go to the beach a lot, so I figured the tags would be better for my kids than sewing a label in their clothes," he added.

Ten minutes can seem like an eternity when your child is missing. Mrs. Ray realizes that she could have spent a much longer time in fear and uncertainty.

"Even though the situation turned out for the best, the dog-tags saved us from spending more time with the 'unknown,'" said Mrs. Ray.

Holding Kennedy in his arms, Lt. Ray spoke about the challenges of parenting small children. "Even with constant supervision," he said, "these little guys can slip away in a heartbeat. By sharing what happened to us, we hope other parents can gain something from our close call."

1st Lt. Shawn P. Ray displays the tag that helped find his daughter Kennedy.

Setting it straight

The GLOBE wishes to correct errors which appear in this newspaper. Readers wishing to point out errors, whether ours or those of our sources, should call the Managing Editor at 451-5655.

Corrections will appear promptly in this space.

In last week's "Super Stallion" refueling story it was incorrectly stated that no fuel was transferred. Two thousand gallons of fuel was, in fact, transferred in the operation. Also, the danger of the coupling operation is in the rotor blades severing the refueling hose, not the refueling nozzle puncturing the hose.

In last week's Big Shots column two people listed as high shooters in the week of Sept. 26-30 were incorrectly reported. It should have read Rifle Staff Sgt. M.A. Lafollete, H & H Detachment, with a 248; and Sgt. D.R. Farris, RR Detachment, with a 388.

Also, in Semper Fact, the informant source, World War II Super Fact, was printed prior to the death of Lee M. ...

MCSSS steam rolls over 6th Marines, 34-12

Story and photos by
Lance Cpl. M. E. McLean

Marine Corps Service Support School, rolled through an almost invisible 6th Regiment defense to thrash them in Intramural Football at Camp Lejeune on Oct. 12.

The crisp, clear fall evening was a perfect time for MCSSS to demonstrate an aggressive and well played plan of action. The 6th Marines boom-kickoff to the awaiting MCSSS team, charged forward to their own 20 being brick-walled, MCSSS running back Cpl. M. K. Cherry, in a mad dash, led 40 yards before the 6th Marines stopped him in a do-or-die effort. With a hop, skip and a jump, MCSSS running back, Lt. R. J. Crawford, showed the speed of a jack rabbit, dove over the center of 6th Marines defenders landing in the end zone. Lining up again, MCSSS bowled over the 6th Marines defense to score a two point conversion and start the game off with an 8-0 lead in the first quarter the 6th Marines, with possession of the ball, were blocked by the MCSSS defense using the famous Flea-Flicker. Running back Cpl. T. L. Hoover, upon receiving the pigskin, proceeded downfield looking for a gazelle to score for the Sixes. Unable to get the leap on MCSSS with a point conversion try the 6th Marines were denied access to the end zone and the score stayed 8-6.

It wasn't long after the start of the second quarter that MCSSS quarterback, Pfc. J. D. Wesley, cannoned a pass to wide receiver Cpl. K. D. Paige sending him in to score another easy six points putting the tally at 14-6.

On the first play after the ensuing kickoff, the Sixers quarterback Cpl. K. Foster, scrambled to make a pass but was sacked in his own end zone by a barrage of MCSSS linemen, giving MCSSS a safety and two more points making the score 16-6.

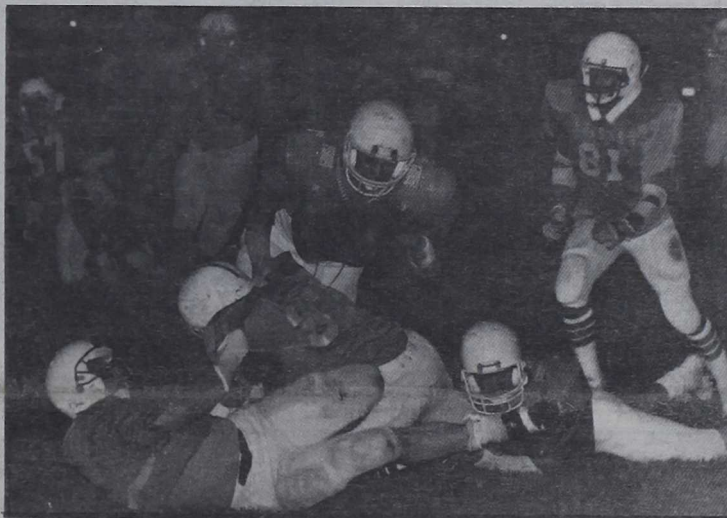

Wasting no time, MCSSS's Crawford, upon receiving a 45-yard kick ran the ball through a maze of 6th Marines players to score another TD to end the half with a score of 22-6.

Starting the third quarter off with an unbelievable 65-yard rush for a touchdown by Hoover, the 6th Marines looked like they were on the comeback trail.

With a steady and consistent drive downfield, MCSSS snagged another TD from a bull-like rush made by running back Cherry, placing the score at 28-12 and stomping out the Sixers' comeback.

It was not until late in the third quarter that MCSSS heated up the game action with a lateral from rushing Crawford to a trailing Paige who in return danced downfield to score the final TD.

Intensity lowered as a rash of careless plays, penalties, and turnovers plagued both teams in the final stanza of play.

After 6th Marines fumble the pigskin, MCSSS jumps for the recovery. Much of the game was spent on the sod in mazes of tangled pads and limbs.

Following an injury to 6th Marines' Hoover, time dwindled away in the last quarter with excessive pile-ups, giving MCSSS their crushing victory.

Other football action:

NavHosp vs. HQ Bn. Div.

A 55-yard touchdown run on the first play of the game and solid defense were enough—but not all they got—for the Naval Hospital team to rout previously unbeaten HQ Bn., 2nd MarDiv, 26-0 in intramural football action Tuesday.

The Sailors, lead offensively by the 55 and 12-yard scoring runs of ABH-3 John Stephens and the powerful defensive play of HN Jimmy Hill improved their record to 4-1 while sending the Division Marines to 4-1 as well.

Fumble recoveries in the end zone by lineman HA Zachary Fay and HN Jessie Arnold led to the other two Navy scores.

Sup.Bn., MCB vs. 2nd CEB

Lance Cpl. J.R. Jackson sprinted through the line and dashed 10-yards into the end zone on the first play in overtime to lead the Sup. Bn., MCB Marines to a 20-14 win over 2nd CEB in a game played at Camp Johnson Tuesday night. Jackson's offensive spurt coupled with impressive defensive play by the entire Sup. Bn. team improved the team's record to above the .500 mark at 3-2.

According to offensive coach Gunnery Sgt. Gregouri Moore, the key to the team's defensive thrust was the solid play by linebacker Lance Cpl. J. L. Smalls who caused a fumble and Lance Cpl. J. A. Smith who was credited with intercepting two 2nd CEB passes. The engineers drop to 1-3 in league play.

2nd AAV vs HQ Bn MCB

The Marines of 2nd Assault Amphibian Bn. served up 20 unanswered points to break into the second half and break away from HQ Bn., MCB, enroute to a 34-12 win at Liversedge Field Tuesday night.

Two touchdowns each by Lance Cpl. W.J. Smith and Cpl. T. A. Denps in addition to single scores by Sgt. J.V. Hollis and Cpl. E. J. Yost accounted for all the 2nd AAV points as they broke away from a 14-6 halftime lead and improved their record to 3-2.

Smith led all rushers in the game with 150 yards (3-yards and 8-yards for touchdowns), while Denps was on the receiving end of TD passes of 15 and 25-yards.

The loss kept HQ Bn., MCB record intact with no wins and five losses.

Sgt. Major shares 23 years at the net in clinic

Story and photos by
Lance Cpl. M.E. McLean

As the volleyball came into his reach, the slender man with a swift and graceful movement jumped up and slammed the leathery sphere into his opponent's face.

The scene just depicted has been a common one in Sgt. Major W.A. Shelden's life for more than two decades. Shelden has spent the past 23 years playing, coaching, and perfecting his volleyball skills all over the world.

Shelden started playing volleyball in 1965 for therapeutic reasons after injuring himself while playing football. In his Marine Corps travels he has played on Navy teams in Norfolk Va., and Jacksonville Fla., on a Japanese industrial team and he even played while being stationed in Vietnam on a makeshift court made of concrete. Recently, Shelden took to the courts of some Eastern North Carolina high schools to spread some of his volleyball experience and Marine Corps goodwill. Spending his off-duty time, Shelden with the help of his All-Marine assistants Sgt. Beverley Davis and Lance Cpl. Ruth Walker traveled as far as 110 miles to give one day clinics to girls on high school volleyball teams. "Our main reason for giving these clinics is to help out the local recruiters," Shelden said. "We are trying to show the youngsters that the Marine Corps offers a lot in the way of athletics and there is more to the military than preparing to fight a war," he added.

realize we can not do it ourselves, we need assistance of some sort whether it is in sports or life," he said.

According to Shelden, the girls learn cooperation and coordination through teamwork which in turn helps them play a heck of a lot better volleyball.

After giving his one day clinic it is common for the coach and players of the team that Shelden instructs to ask for a return.

"If a team asks for my return I try my best to go back but I usually will go back and instruct the team that is having the most difficulty," Shelden said.

"I think the greatest payoff I receive is seeing one of these young ladies light up and the look of accomplishment on their face after using one of the skills I taught them," Shelden concluded.

'We are trying to show the youngsters that the Marine Corps offers a lot in the way of athletics and there is more to the military than preparing to fight a war.'

Sgt. Maj. W.A. Shelden

"I don't need or want any I can't attitudes on my court. If anyone says I can't they will find themselves doing laps around the gym," he yells.

According to Shelden, the top priority he tries to stress in his clinics is good physical conditioning. "With a strong healthy body, any goal a person sets for themselves will be that much easier to achieve."

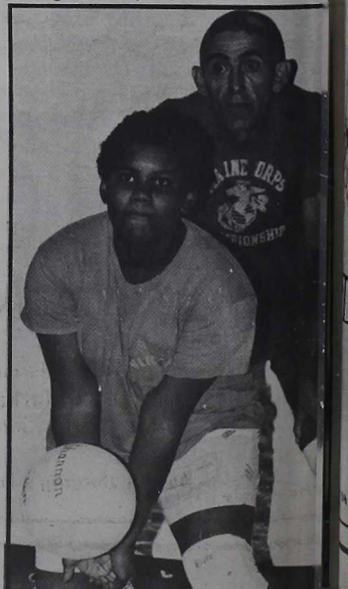

After showing the girls proper stretching and body strengthening exercises, Shelden devotes the rest of his instruction to what he calls the basic skills. According to the Sergeant Major, the basic skills consist of proper serve, bumping, passing, setting and spiking techniques as well as good sportsmanship and teamwork.

Spending 29 years as a Marine, Shelden knows the importance of teamwork and doesn't hesitate to pass that knowledge on to his pupils.

"I stress the importance of working together and fulfilling your responsibility as a team member. Everyone needs to

When it comes to medical costs, what do you call your CHAMPUS coverage?

Partial Payment.

The "balance due" is your share. And it can really add up over the course of a year. But now there is a way to offset all these mounting out-of-pocket expenses and the strain they can put on your family budget. It's called CHAMPUS AID. And it's available for as little as $15 a month* through your NCOA membership. The Non Commissioned Officers Association (NCOA) is a non-profit organization offering a wide variety of benefits including legislative representation, social improvement and consumer protection programs like CHAMPUS AID to active, separated and retired NCOs and POs worldwide.

CHAMPUS AID coverage is provided by Academy Life Insurance Company, the organization that holds exclusive endorsement from the NCOA to offer insurance products to its members. It takes as little as 56 seconds to complete our simplified application form.
