U.S. Pacific Fleet
Public Affairs

Adm. Harry B. Harris Jr., commander of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, directed the activation of the hospital ship USNS Mercy (T-AH 19) Nov. 13 to be ready to support ongoing disaster relief efforts in the Philippines in the wake of Typhoon Haiyan.

Berthed in San Diego, USNS Mercy has been in a reduced operating status, which is normal for a hospital ship. Harris' activation order accelerates Mercy's ability to attain full operating status to include moving necessary personnel and equipment to the ship.

If ordered to deploy, Mercy would get underway in the next several days and could arrive in the Philippines sometime in December, joining other U.S. Pacific Fleet units already supporting Operation Damayan.

On Nov. 11 Secretary of Defense Chuck Hagel ordered the aircraft carrier USS George Washington (CVN 73) and her escort ships to depart early from a liberty port in Hong Kong and make best possible speed for the Philippines.

George Washington, USS Antietam (CG 54), USS Cowpens (CG 63) and USNS Yukon (T-AO-202) will arrive off the coast of the Philippines the evening of Nov. 14 local time.

Mustin (DDG 89), USS Lassen (DDG 82), USS Emory S. Land (AS 39), and USNS Bowditch (T-AGS 62) are now on station and coordinating with the Philippine government. The U.S. Navy also has P-3 maritime aircraft already supporting the disaster relief effort led by the Government of the Philippines.

The amphibious ships USS Ashland (LSD 48) and USS Germantown (LSD 42) are departing Sasebo, Japan, Nov. 14 local time. After picking up Marines, equipment and relief supplies in Okinawa, the two ships will arrive at the Philippines in approximately one week. USS McCampbell (DDG 85) and USNS Charles Drew (T-AKE 10) are also heading to the Philippines.

This collection of ships and their complement of aircraft, to include much-needed helicopters, will provide food and water, the capability to move relief supplies to isolated areas, and to help move the badly injured for medical care.

The U.S. Navy persistently trains with numerous Pacific nations and military units, including the Armed Forces of the Philippines, to prepare for humanitarian assistance and disaster relief missions. In 2012, Mercy participated in the annual Pacific Partnership mission, which included working with Philippine authorities in the vicinity of Tacloban, the area hardest hit by Typhoon Haiyan. Because of the long-standing partnership between the two nations, the U.S., working through the Philippine government, is able to rapidly respond with critically needed capabilities and supplies in times of crisis.

The role of U.S. military forces during any foreign humanitarian assistance event is to rapidly respond to host nations' requests for support to help mitigate human suffering, prevent further loss of life and mitigate property damage. The U.S. Navy-Marine Corps team has a particularly successful history of working with international relief organizations and host nations to respond to natural disasters.

Operation Damayan is part of the broader U.S. Government effort to support the Government of the Philippines's request for humanitarian assistance. This joint team effort includes coordination by the U.S. Department of State and U.S. Agency for International Development, in constant consultation with Philippine authorities. To date, Philippine and U.S. personnel have transported more than 107,000 pounds of relief supplies. Representatives from Lend Lease (US) Public Partnerships and the U.S. Air Force celebrated the completion of Hickam Communities' $800 million community development at Ka Makani Community Center at Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam (JBPHH) on Nov. 13.

Hickam Communities is now home to more than 2,400 Airmen and their families.

Hawaii Gov. Neil Abercrombie, who has been a strong supporter of the Military Housing Privatization Initiative (MHPI) since its inception, offered remarks during the ceremony.

Col. David Kirkendall, deputy commander at JBPHH, talked about the military's partnership with Hickam Communities.

"Our partnership with Hickam Communities has been a great source of pride for us when it comes to our families as well as important Department of Defense initiatives at Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam," Kirkendall said.

"The staff understands the unique challenges of our military families, and their efforts have provided us with vibrant communities staffed by a team truly dedicated to our military team."

"Hickam Communities has demonstrated tremendous support of our energy conservation goals throughout its development and ongoing management of our communities, from the implementation of renewable energy systems to creating energy awareness among our residents to encourage conservation," he said.

Selected to be the Air Force's preferred developer in Hawaii, Lend Lease designed and constructed more than 1,200 new homes and dozens of community amenities and renovated more than 1,000 existing homes.

It included undertaking one of the largest historic restoration and rehabilitation projects in the nation. Its Onizuka Village development was the first neighborhood on an Air Force installation to achieve 100 percent LEED-certified homes.

Sustainability initiatives were implemented throughout the development from the recycling and re-use of materials during demolition and renovations to energy-efficient home design and materials.

Hickam Communities also installed rooftop photovoltaic systems capable of generating up to 4MW of power, enough to offset CO2 emissions over its lifetime and the equivalent of taking approximately 23,000 cars off the road for a year.

Though initial community development is complete, renovation work and special projects at Hickam will continue in the coming years.

The 50-year agreement is expected to offer long-term employment and development opportunities to Hawaii residents for decades to come.

Adm. Harry B. Harris Jr., commander of U.S. Pacific Fleet, commemorated Veterans Day during a sunset ceremony aboard the Battleship Missouri Memorial, thanking all Americans who served the nation in uniform.

“Our battles, our victories, indeed our very way of life, are owed not to great moments or important dates,” Harris said. “They are owed to the actions and sacrifices of individual men and women who were willing to step into the breach for their country and for the cause of freedom.

Adm. Harry B. Harris Jr., commander of U.S. Pacific Fleet, pays tribute in a Veterans Day ceremony at the Battleship Missouri Memorial to America's Nisei ("second-generation," U.S.-born Japanese American) soldiers who served in World War II.

Harris said.

The event paid special tribute to the Nisei — “second-generation,” U.S.-born Japanese Americans—who served during World War II in the Army's 100th Infantry Battalion, 442nd Regimental Combat Team, Military Intelligence Service and the 1399th Engineer Construction Battalion.

With Nisei veterans in attendance onboard the ship where World War II officially ended, the ceremony also signaled the opening of a Battleship Missouri Memorial special exhibit honoring Nisei service and exploits.

“I truly stand on the shoulders of giants,” said Harris, the Navy's first Japanese-American four-star admiral.

“Despite injustice, these Japanese-Americans stood together for a truly American ideal. The many cultures resident in the immigrant experience share a common underpinning of honor, pride and perseverance that has added immeasurably to our strength as a nation. This is a powerful message and it speaks to us all, no matter our gender, religion or ethnicity.

“This is a powerful message that speaks to our adversaries as well: We are in fact stronger, together,” he said.

Harris also reflected on his parents' experiences in World War II.

“While my father was from Tennessee and wore the Navy uniform in World War II, my mother had a very different story,” Harris said.

“She's Nihonjin, from Kobe, Japan. She lost her home, her school, many of her friends in air raids during the same war that her future husband was fighting. It was from her that I learned the concept of giri—duty—which is an important part of my heritage and of who I am.”

Submarine veterans, active duty military and families and friends of the Pacific Submarine Force came together on Veterans Day to honor all Americans who have served in the military. The ceremony took place at the USS Parche Submarine Park and Memorial at Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam.

With an emphasis on submarine veterans and the veterans of World War II, the ceremony's guest speaker, Rear Adm. Phillip Sawyer, commander of Submarine Force, U.S. Pacific Fleet, spoke of honoring the fallen and thanking them for their service.

“Submarine veterans of World War II, we thank you for your courage, your honor, your commitment, your dedication, your victory. For as long as we Americans value our freedom, our liberty and our way of life, you will be remembered with honor and our deepest gratitude,” said Sawyer.

“For what you sacrificed and what you achieved – ordinary men who triumphed in an extraordinary struggle – you are indeed the stuff of legends.”

The ceremony included a posting of the 50 state flags by the Radford High School Naval Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps, postings of the colors by the National Sojourners, tolling of the bells for submarines and submariners that have been lost, and a wreath presentation by the Bowfin Base, Pearl Harbor U.S. Submarine Veterans, a special lei presentation in honor of Hawaii's state submarine, USS Growler (SSN 215), and a three-gun volley by the Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam Ceremonial Guard.

Other's in attendance included the Pacific Fleet Submarine Memorial Association, U.S. Submarine League, Aloha Chapter, and the Pearl Harbor Submarine Officers' Spouses Association.

Thanks to you, we will never forget our veterans

Rear Adm. Rick Williams

Commander, Navy Region Hawaii and Naval Surface Group Middle Pacific

Millions of Americans quietly reflected this past weekend, grateful for the service of veterans past and present. Here in the islands, thousands attended events at Punchbowl, Wahiawa, Hanapepe, Waikiki and at the joint base, among other places.

Americans in and out of uniform remembered and paid tribute during Veterans Day events.

U.S. Representative Tulsi Gabbard of Hawaii spoke at Punchbowl about the debt

Rear Adm. Rick Williams

we all have to fallen warriors and their families and to those still serving. Visitors placed flowers at gravesites and made it a point to thank service members and veterans for their service and sacrifice.

On Kauai, Mayor Carvalho joined with 150 participants at the Kauai Veterans Cemetery in Hanapepe and expressed his appreciation to veterans and their loved ones. The mayor called for a celebration of the joy of freedom matched with a commitment to remember "the great price for that freedom."

Rear Adm. Phil Sawyer, Commander, Submarine Force, U.S. Pacific Fleet, spoke at a ceremony honoring submarine veterans at the Submarine Memorial at Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam.

Marches, parades and quiet services were held around Oahu and the day was capped with an inspiring sunset ceremony sponsored by the USS Missouri Association aboard the battleship, in which Commander, U.S. Pacific Fleet Adm. Harry B. Harris gave keynote remarks, speaking of the ideals of honor, pride and perseverance.

Adm. Harris spoke about our duty — our obligation — to remember the legacy of our veterans now and forever. Here in Hawaii, where we are at the center of Pacific Fleet's lead in rebalancing to the Pacific, we are also at the center of the Navy's history, especially over the past century.

Next month we will host the 72nd Dec. 7 commemoration at the Pearl Harbor Visitor Center. Adm. Harris will speak at the event, as will Secretary of the American Battle Monuments Commission Max Cleland, former U.S. senator.

A wounded warrior from Vietnam, Cleland has said, "Wars are not over when the shooting stops. They live on in the lives of those who fight them ... No, the soldier never forgets. But neither should the rest of us."

Because of various leaders and officials here in Hawaii — at cemeteries, memorials and other venues — we demonstrate our resolution to never forget our veterans and their sacrifice.

In turn, we salute Veterans Day event planners and organizers at the Battleship Missouri Memorial; at Punchbowl; in Hanapepe, Kauai; at the USS Parche Submarine Park and Memorial; and at many other locations throughout the state.

We appreciate the strong support from the Navy League, other local business leaders, and neighbors in our communities who go out of their way to support our military and our veterans. Mahalo nui loa!

The changing face of the veteran: From the past to the future

Col. Johnny Roscoe

Commander, 15th Wing

America has evolved and so, too, will the veterans of the future embody a new reality that will differ greatly from those just a generation past.

The veterans of the future will come from a much more diverse background and be composed of a wider swath of government service than in the past. These changes are due not only to demographics, but also in terms of roles and responsibilities within the military structure.

We have evolved as a military fighting force, and the citizen's Air Force within which we now operate is composed of civilians, contractors and Guardsmen in addition to active duty Airmen.

On many levels it is impossible to distinguish the activities of one category from the next, and it is certainly impossible to imagine reverting and operating separately as we did in the past.

The distinguishing mark of a veteran used to be that the individual wore the military uniform. These days, I would argue that definition is much too narrow as the functions of those in uniform and our civilian partners overlap to the point that we have become a single symbiotic organism.

Likewise, not only is the military a representative of American society, America has become a reflection of generations of veterans who have protected our nation as it matured into a beacon of democracy.

Lessons learned in uniform and in the crucible of combat often defined countless veterans who have gone forward to achieve great things in all walks of life, from politics and business to sports and entertainment.

America would not be America without the sacrifices by millions upon millions of veterans who have stood as our nation's shield in times of war and in times of peace.

Some veterans' stories have been immortalized on film for deeds of heroism that seem superhuman, and others quietly performed less grandiose actions that were indispensable nonetheless.

Some were heroes to millions; others have only been seen as a hero in the eyes of their children, but all have one thing in common: They served.

Here in Hawaii, and especially at Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam, veterans have a special connection with American history, and the community at large is vividly aware of the perils of military service.

However, though the veterans of World War II are frequently at the forefront of recollection locally during Veterans Day, it is important to remember the service of all veterans—those who served in uniform and those who served in civilian clothing.

Take the time to thank our vets while they are still here. Listen to their stories, though some are told louder by their silence.

My father’s father: A short story of one veteran who served

Maj. Ben Sakrisson

15th Wing Public Affairs

It is hard to tell who is a veteran just by looking at someone on the street. Some people wear clothing that proudly displays their military affiliation; others carry the torch silently, without a word.

I never knew that my grandfather was a veteran until I returned home after my first Air Force assignment in Okinawa.

Upon first seeing me, my grandfather said, “You must be glad to be home to American girls.”

I didn’t really know what to say or really even how to respond. I had never said one cuss word around him my whole life and definitely never willfully entered the moral conversation that would surely ensue if I talked about dating.

Instead, I stood there a bit speechless as he continued, “Did you ever see Iejima island? It was right across the water from where we were over there.”

It took a minute and a few more questions to piece together that “where we were” neglected to say, as part of the Pacific island-hopping campaign during World War II.

Sure, he was about the right age, but certainly he would have said something before?

I had never even considered the possibility that my soft-spoken grandfather who spent his life dedicated to the church as a minister had ever served in the military.

We spent the next couple hours talking about his experiences as a radio operator for the Army–Air Corps during the war.

He talked about being shot at by snipers while in the chow line and waiting in Okinawa for the order to come to invade the Japanese mainland.

And then in a flash the atomic bombs ended the war with Japan and the order to invade never came.

As he waited on Okinawa, he listened on the radio as the frightened pilot of an aircraft carrying an envoy of a surrendering Japan encountered American aircraft and excitedly asked, “There’s P-51s! What do I do? What do I do?”

After what seemed like an eternity, they were finally given the order to return home, only to be crushed by a tropical storm while aboard troop carrier ships and forced to return to land with nearly everyone aboard violently seasick.

Eventually he did return to America and he began a life far removed from the military, but I have never seen him appear as young as when he talked about his time in the Pacific.

“Their excitement to operate in the Hawaiian waters and enjoy liberty ashore was both genuine and well deserved,” Castillejo said. “The tour aboard Lake Erie stimulated a productive discussion highlighting our common interests afloat—with a few sea stories, I’m sure.

With the Bangladesh navy’s capabilities expanding, they are focusing more on warfare proficiency. Of interest to the Bangladeshi sailors was the Navy’s electronic navigation and many “advanced combat capabilities” as found on the multi-mission capable Ticonderoga-class cruiser.

Residents adjust to energy rate changes

Lt. j.g. Eric Galassi

*Navy Region Hawaii
Public Affairs*

With the introduction of the electricity rate increase for Forest City residents earlier this month, families have learned to adjust their habits to minimize utility usage.

For Boatswain's Mate 1st Class Omar Navarro, this required a greater focus on the energy consumption of his family. "I've had to pay more attention to the electricity bill, as far as looking at usage, pretty much on a daily basis," said Navarro.

Starting Oct. 1, a rate increase of 123 percent was implemented for all Naval Facilities Engineering Command Hawaii energy customers, including residents of Forest City under the Resident Energy Conservation Program (RECP). Residents affected by this higher electricity rate are compared to "like-type" units within a 10 percent buffer above and below the average energy consumption levels.

Residents whose energy usage is higher than 10 percent above the average of their like-type group (LTG) are charged for the extra electricity, while those who use greater than 10 percent below the average receive a rebate.

Forest City residents are not alone in this new electricity rate structure. Other Department of Defense communities in Hawaii are also affected by new rates on power consumption.

For some customers, this has required some changes in lifestyle to adapt to the new system. "Before, I was above the buffer pretty much on an average basis," said Navarro, "But last month, I was actually five dollars below. I'm pretty happy about that."

When asked about how usage compared before and after the rate increase, Navarro answered, "I've seen a big difference, especially coming from San Diego, where you ran the air conditioner 24 hours and it didn't really matter."

While aware of his family's power bill after moving to Hawaii, he has become more mindful of it since the announcement of the rate increase, Navarro explained that since the rate increase he and his family now buy groceries more frequently but in smaller quantities to lower the power consumption of the refrigerator.

"I'd rather come to the commissary, shop for food while it's still fresh, and save myself the space so the refrigerator's not running so high," he continued.

Adjustments such as this may have altered the way residents live their lives. However, by minimizing the use of less necessary appliances, Navarro found that he could use other appliances more for the comfort of his family.

"I turned off the water heater. The water's hot already during the day," he explained, "That allowed me to turn on the air conditioner for a good number of days."

Navarro also mentioned that he has found other ways to save energy. "Instead of using hot water, I use high energy cold water detergents, and now I don't have to use hot water for clothes. I keep using cold water and that's saved me a lot more," Navarro said.

He remembered living in Antioch, Calif. several years ago. "They went through so many rolling blackouts. At 1700 we would lose power, and we wouldn't get power back until 0500. Having to go through this, what would we do? We'd go to Wal-Mart. We'd use the air conditioning there, and now what? We could go to the pool," he said.

Residents are choosing various methods to lower their power consumption.

While the rate increase and new system of comparing Forest City residents within the buffer of the LTG average has led to some adaptations, Navarro has found that it has not caused a great deal of inconvenience for his family.

With increased awareness of electricity use and some altered habits, the same quality of life has been maintained.

"Adjustments have to be made. We can all control our energy usage," Navarro said.

For more information on the RECP rate increase, visit <http://www.fcnavy.hawaii.com/recp/>.

New Navy campaign: ‘Thrive During the Holidays’

Chief of Naval Personnel

With the holiday season approaching, Navy officials announced the launch of its annual holiday stress navigation campaign.

This year's campaign, "Thrive During the Holidays," will provide Sailors and families proactive resources to get ahead of holiday chaos while focusing on building resilience for the new year. "For many of us, 'the most wonderful time of the year' is as demanding as it is joyous," said Capt. Kurt Scott, Navy resilience chief.

Navy Operational Stress Control's 2013 "Thrive During the Holidays" campaign will include collaboration between Navy's 21st Century Sailor programs and other readiness programs to offer resources on topics such as responsible alcohol use during holiday celebrations, planning and time management, budgeting, incorporating physical fitness into busy schedules, healthy eating tips, spirituality and relationship fitness and more.

"Continuing our effort to promote a sense of community, we really have something for everyone this year from families navigating the holidays with a loved one on deployment to helping Navy kids 'track Santa.'"

Engagement with the North American Aerospace Defense Command's annual "NORAD Tracks Santa" promotion is a new initiative for the OPNAV N171 annual holiday campaign this year, part of an expanded effort to reach out to Navy kids.

The "Thrive During the Holidays" campaign will continue through early January 2014. Releases can be found on Navy Operational Stress Control's blog, www.navynavstress.com, and the Navy Suicide Prevention website, www.suicide.navy.mil.

fought in places like Korea, Vietnam, Iraq Afghanistan and in other dark corners of the world "where the freedoms we cherish were not yet known."

"More than 1.3 million Americans have made the ultimate sacrifice on the field of battle in an effort to defend the freedoms that we hold so dear and while we recognize the sacrifices of our submarine force brethren here today, let us remember all Americans who have fallen on the field of battle or that made contributions to our collective security. I'm sure we can all agree that America is the land of the free because of the brave," said Sawyer.

Veterans who were in attendance spoke about honoring their fallen service members.

"I always admire this day because of the veterans of the World War II and how we are doing our part in honoring them," said retired submarine veteran Robert Brown.

Sawyer thanked the veterans on behalf of the modern submarine Sailor and commended them for their sacrifices.

"Your collective courage and sacrifice paved the way for those who follow and helped to make our submarine Navy what it is today: proud, professional, and ever-ready to defend the cause of freedom," said Sawyer.

"Be they the founding fathers who revolted against the oppression of the crown, the Nisei and other veterans who fought in World War II, those who fought in the Korean War, Vietnam War, Cold War, the wounded warriors who have returned from Iraq and Afghanistan, and those who gave the last full measure."

Harris spoke about service members standing the watch today and the importance of how being prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving the peace.

"The world is a dangerous place and it demands that we be ready 24-7, to meet any danger that threatens American citizens and our national interests," Harris said.

"This is why the Pacific Fleet today remains eternally vigilant, always ready to fight tonight. This is why as the commander, I am committed to deepening the maritime piece of our defense relationships with our allies and security partners as we lead America's rebalance to the Pacific."

NAVFAC Hawaii offers tools for managing your housing electricity bill

Lt. Cmdr.
Preston Taylor

*Naval Facilities
Engineering Command
Hawaii*

Many military housing residents in the Resident Energy Conservation Program (RECP) will either have a pleasant surprise or startling shock when they receive their electricity bill in November for October’s billing cycle.

Effective Oct. 1, Naval Facilities Engineering Command (NAVFAC) Hawaii increased its electricity rate from $0.26347 per kilowatt hour (kWh) to $0.58743 per kWh to account for Hawaiian Electric Company’s (HECO) rising electricity purchase costs and NAVFAC Hawaii losses over the past six years.

As part of the RECP, residents should understand that an average usage baseline is established each month for similar-type homes within a neighborhood and then a 10 percent buffer zone is established above and below the buffer.

If their energy usage is within the buffer zone, they will not pay anything for their electricity. If a resident’s usage is over the buffer, they are responsible for paying for the difference between their usage and the upper buffer.

Inversely, if they are below the lower buffer, they will receive a credit for the difference.

Several tools are available to help residents manage their bill. The first is the monthly paper bill mailed to each RECP participant. This bill provides residents with information on the housing group in which their house is counted, their total electrical consumption for the month in kWh, the total amount of their bill in dollars, and a graphic that compares the resident’s usage to group baseline for the month and the upper and lower buffers for the group.

On the back of the bill is a table listing energy monthly energy consumption, costs and payments or credits for the last 12-month period along with a graph showing monthly resident usage compared to the buffer zone. This table and graph are useful for observing trends in energy performance over the last 12-months that may shape energy consumption behavior.

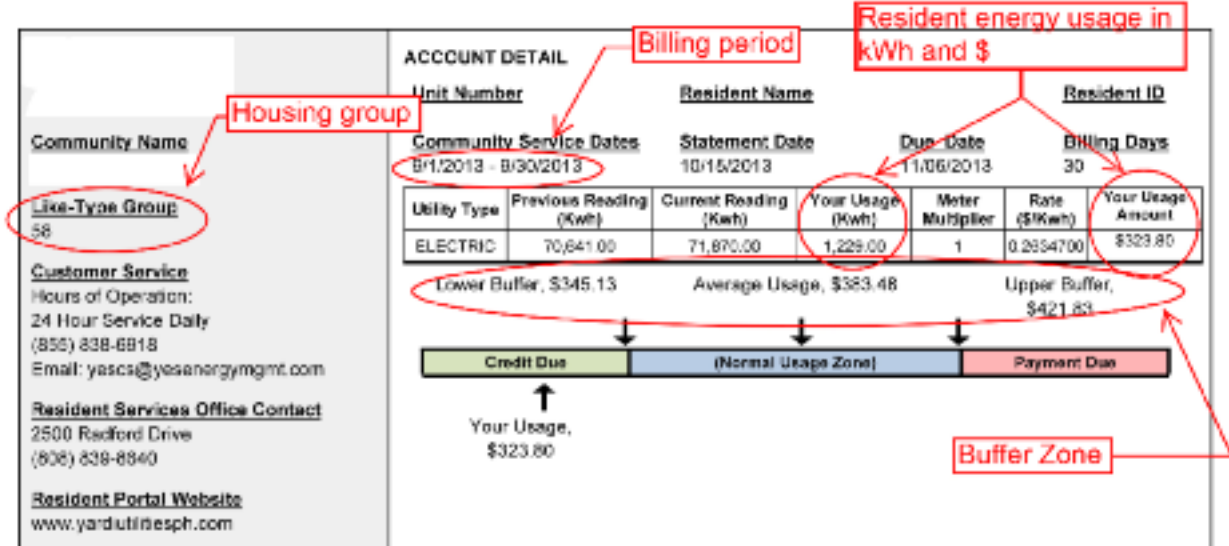

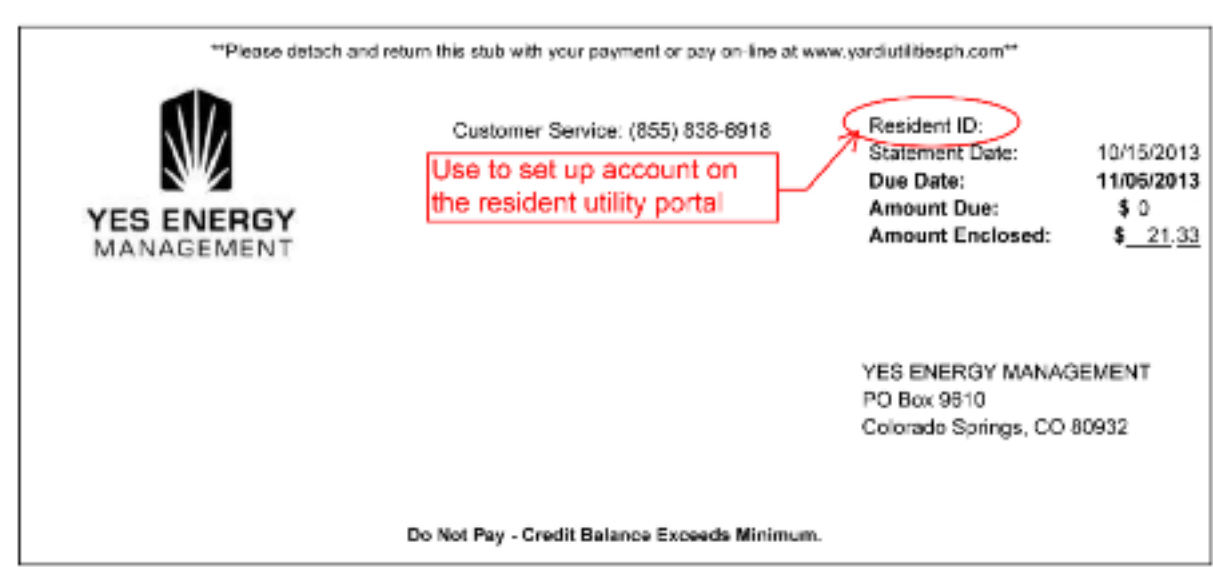

Residents may also take advantage of the Pearl Harbor Resident Utility Portal at www.yardiutilities.ph.com. They will need their resident ID and primary email address on file with the housing office to establish an account and password.

The resident ID may be found on the upper right corner of their paper statement. Once logged into the site, residents can pay their bill, view electronic copies of their paper statements, access frequently asked questions (FAQ) for RECP, and view utility usage and cost data.

The “current month” tab in this last section shows them their current actual daily electrical consumption by kWh and cost-to-date and then a projection of what their consumption and costs will be through the end of the month.

The same data is also shown for the like-type unit base line for comparison. Residents may use this data to see where they currently stand and predict how much they may owe or get credit for at the end of the month and manage their energy consumption accordingly.

Understanding a house’s “base load” is key to managing an energy bill. The best way to think of the base load is to think of what is still plugged in or hard-wired, using electricity when a resident is asleep or away from home. Typical major contributors to the base loads include the A/C, water heater and refrigerator.

Additional contributors that collectively make a significant difference include appliances with digital displays or standby power, routers, DVRs, printers, computers, alarm clocks, charging devices and lights. Here are a few tips that have proven to give the most “bang for the buck” in reducing base loads:

- Set the A/C no lower than 78 degrees and then turn the A/C off and open the windows when the outside temperature is low, such as in the morning or at night. Ceiling fans or oscillating fans during these times are a much more efficient option than running the A/C. Electricity used for air conditioning can account for as much as 40 to 50 percent of the total amount of electricity used by a resident.

- Use less electricity to make domestic hot water. For homes that have one, make sure the solar hot water timer is correctly set up (<http://vimeo.com/m/29448909> shows how to set up your solar hot water system timer).

Schedule certain types of hot water usage, such as running the dishwasher, during the mid-day period when the solar hot water system will have time to recover before late afternoon when the system is no longer generating hot water from the heat of the sun.

Additionally, most energy-efficient washing machines are just as effective using cold water as hot.

- Use less electricity for plug loads such as extra freezers, entertainment systems and computer systems. Collect plug loads onto “smart” power strips that completely shut off devices when the system is not in use.

As part of Forest City’s energy smart initiative with Hawaii Energy, Hawaii Energy has made one smart power strip available to each family. Additional strips are available at the NEX and/or local building supply and hardware stores.

- Replace incandescent light bulbs with compact fluorescent light (CFL) or LED bulbs and turn them off when not in use. Use daylight as much as possible.

A fair amount of fun

Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam Morale, Welfare and Recreation

The 38th annual Hickam Fall Craft Fair and Family Fun Day took place Nov. 9 on the grounds outside the Hickam Arts & Crafts Center. The event was sponsored by Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam Morale, Welfare and Recreation.

The event at the beginning of the holiday shopping season attracted patrons looking for unique, handcrafted pieces.

More than 3,000 people attended the event which was open to the public.

Customers browsed more than 130 booths of handcrafted works from vendors across the island. Pony rides and a safe-archery booth were available for the children. Demonstrations and displays were held in each shop at the Hickam Arts & Crafts Center.

The event also featured a variety of food choices sold at vendor booths, including hot dogs, plate lunches, funnel cakes, cotton candy and shaved ice. The crowd listened to live music as they sat under the trees.

Joan Mariz, an Army spouse, attended the craft fair for the first time and said she loved what she saw.

"I like that it's shady and that there's lots of parking," Mariz said.

She said she saw information about the event on Great Life Hawaii's Facebook page and signs around the base. "It's advertised everywhere," Mariz said.

Mariz's friend Jessica Shelby, also an Army spouse, said, "It's really good. They have a lot of choices and a lot of vendors."

Shelby and Mariz said they are regular visitors at the Hickam Arts & Crafts Center. "We've had birthday parties here. We love it here," Shelby said.

"This is fantastic, to be outside under these beautiful trees, with all these extremely happy people, getting ready for the holiday season," said vendor Lorisa Rivers who sold ornaments and other items.

Rivers said customer reaction has been great.

"This has been super fun. They've given me ideas for next year, and I'm seeing what they want," Rivers added.

Another vendor, Aileen Lee, selling plants and handcrafted gifts, said this was her first time at the fall craft fair after attending the spring craft fair. "I love it. It's a well run craft fair and the crowd is good," Lee said.

Although it rained briefly at the beginning of the event, Lee said, "Well, my plants loved it."

Lisa Jacquet, an Army spouse and Hickam resident, held up her purchases and said, "This is my second haul. I was here this morning and now I'm here in the afternoon."

Lake Erie defense dominates La Jolla Thundercats

Story and photos by
Randy Dela Cruz

Sports Editor

USS Lake Erie (CG 70) used a ferocious pass rush and a ball-hawking secondary to overwhelm USS La Jolla (SSN 701) Thundercats, 25-6, Nov. 9 in an Afloat Division intramural flag football game at Ward Field, Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam.

Electronics Technician 2nd Class Bryan Madsen led the blitz with two sacks, and Ship's Serviceman Seaman Xavier Brown came up with two picks to help Lake Erie raise their record to 5-2, while the hard-luck La Jolla dropped their sixth game of the season against only one victory.

"We have a great defense," Brown said. "We come out to practice and we strive to get better. We're not going to settle."

On the La Jolla first possession, Brown immediately stepped up and stopped the Thundercats by corraling his first pick of the game to set up Lake Erie at their own 22.

Although Lake Erie was forced to punt, the team's defense went right back to work and began to attack from the trenches.

Madsen came up with back-to-back sacks and forced La Jolla to give up the ball after only four plays.

Meanwhile, Cryptologic Technician (Technical) Seaman Matt Uselton, who was filling in at QB for Gunner's Mate 2nd Class Jason Townsend and Ensign Aaron Santiago, finally got things going on offense after getting the ball in good field position at the La Jolla 26-yard line.

Two plays later, Uselton delivered a 22-yard scoring pass to Boatswain's Mate 3rd Class Thomas Burnley for a 6-0 lead.

On the ensuing series, La Jolla got right back into the game by capitalizing on a flea-flicker that traveled 55 yards from quarterback Electronics Technician 2nd Class Daniel O'Meara to Machinist's Mate Fireman Salvatore Accettullo for a game-tying touchdown.

Lake Erie wasted little time in retaking the lead as Uselton got the ball back at his own 15 and directed an eight-play drive that ended with Uselton

(Top) USS Lake Erie (CG 70) receiver Damage Controlman 2nd Class Charles Pace hangs onto a pass in the end zone for a touchdown. tossing a short pass to Damage Controlman 2nd Class Charles Pace for a 12-6 lead at halftime.

In the second half, La Jolla appeared to be on the verge of tying the game after stopping Lake Erie on downs before taking the ball into the red zone at the nine-yard line.

Facing second and goal from the nine, O'Meara dropped back and threw a pass into the end zone, but was picked off by Damage Controlman 3rd Class Michael Patterson, who brought the ball out to the 15.

"That was a huge play," Brown said. "That gave us momentum."

From there, Uselton led a 65-yard drive that ended with a short completion to Burnley for his second touchdown reception of the day.

Finally, with time winding down, Brown put the game away for good, when he stepped in front of a pass from O'Meara at around midfield, picked it off and took it all the way to the house for the final score of the day.

"Once I seen it, I had the mindset that it's my ball," he said about his second interception and pick six. "When I seen the ball, I just ran to it and I was able to capitalize off of it."

Brown acknowledged that defense wins games and when Lake Erie took the field against La Jolla, he said that he and his teammates knew exactly what had to be done.

"We were playing as one," Brown explained about the team's outstanding defensive game. "We came out with a mindset today that they weren't going to score on us and that's what we did. We came out productive."

15th MXG takes no chances in routing 141 Task Force

Story and photos by
Randy Dela Cruz

Sports Editor

Two weeks ago, the 15th Maintenance Group (15 MXG) had to scramble back to beat a team that was considerably lower in the standing.

Facing the same situation on Nov. 12, the MXG wasted no time in getting on the scoreboard to crush Commander, Naval Surface Group Middle Pacific (CNSG MIDPAC) Task Force 141, 41-0, in a Red Division intramural flag football game at Ward Field, Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam.

The win kept the MXG in the running for the top spot in the Red Division with a record of 6-1, while Task Force 141 fell to 3-5.

“From the first snap, we scored on every possession,” said MXG quarterback Airman 1st Class Aaron Maxwell, who led the way by scoring two touchdowns, passing for four more and intercepting two passes while patrolling the secondary on defense.

On the opening drive of the game, Maxwell went right to work and led a seven-play, 65-yard drive that ended on a short two-yard pass into the end zone to Senior Airman Nick Anderson.

Task Force was forced to punt on their first series, which gave the MXG a short field to work with at their own 39.

This time the MXG needed only five plays before Staff Sgt. Art Gandy connected with Maxwell on a flea-flicker for a 12-0 lead.

The converted point after touchdown (PAT) made the score 13-0.

Playing defense, Maxwell got his first pick of the game to put the ball on his own 22.

After misfiring on his first pass, Maxwell completed a toss to the middle of the field where an open Anderson made the catch and then proceeded to zigzag his way through the Task Force defense for a 58-yard catch and run to pay dirt.

Another converted PAT made the score 20-0 in favor of Maintenance Group with lots of time remaining in the first half.

Playing from behind, Task Force went for it on fourth and 17 from their own 23, but came up short.

Looking to stick a dagger in his opponent, Maxwell used just three plays to punch in another touchdown on a 23-yard pass to Grandy and a 27-0 lead at halftime.

In the second half, Task Force moved the ball to their own 39, but failed to pick up another yard to get a first down.

On the MXG’s first play from scrimmage, Maxwell completed a pass to Gandy on the right flat, who then flipped a lateral back to Airman 1st Class Calvin Saunders, who ran the rest of the way into the end zone and a 34-0 lead after the PAT.

Back on defense, Maxwell intercepted his second pass of the game to set up shop on the Task Force 39.

Three plays later, Maxwell punctuated the team’s dominant performance by completing his final touchdown pass of the game on a short toss to Gandy.

While the MXG offense was unstoppable against Task Force, the team’s defense was equally impressive.

The MXG defense stepped up and prevented Task Force from breaking midfield for the entire game.

“It’s the same thing,” Maxwell said. “Just shut down the passing game by forcing the quarterback to the opposite side.”

After the game, Maxwell said the team’s one week of rest kept the players focused against Task Force.

He added that the team would have to bring that same kind of intensity when it meets up with league-leading Joint Prisoner of War/Missing in Action Accounting Command (JPAC) in two weeks.

“The big game of the year is going to be against JPAC,” he said. “It’s definitely going to be tough the last weeks of the season.”

Tips to stay fit all year - starting with the holidays

Chief of Naval Personnel Public Affairs

MILLINGTON, Tenn. (NNS) -- For most Sailors, the physical fitness assessment (PFA) will be completed just before the holidays begin. After training hard to perform at top levels for the semi-annual physical readiness test (PRT), Sailors are encouraged to maintain fitness levels throughout the year.

“As a command fitness leader (CFL), I often see an increased number of Sailors working out and running on all installations immediately before the PRT,” said Lt. Cmdr. Austin Latour, CFL program manager. “What we want to avoid is the drop in physical fitness after the PRT is over.”

According to Latour, Sailors should always be physically fit, not just

Chief petty officer (CPO) selectees assigned to commands in the Hawaii region participate in a morning physical training (PT) session at Ford Island.

because of service requirements, but to increase resilience and maintain a healthy lifestyle.

“Sailors are responsible for their own physical fitness levels,” said Latour. “The more physically fit a Sailor is, the better they will perform at their job and at home. Being fit helps you be a better bystander when a shipmate needs you to help, on and off the job. Many Sailors think that physical fitness is about them, but that is not always the case.”

“What I want my shipmate to know from my actions and PFA results is that I will not let them down when a physically or mentally demanding job is asked of me,” said Latour. “When I am asked to perform a task by my superiors, I should always be ready.”

After the PRT, fitness levels should be maintained by continuing an exercise routine.

“You don’t have to train for a 1.5-mile run or push-ups and curl-ups after your PRT, so train for something else,” said Latour.

“Try some different exercises such as cycling, rowing, or high intensity training, all of which can be performed inside or out. Involve your family, friends and shipmates and plan workouts into your schedule,” Latour said.

According to Latour, once an exercise routine is established, it is much easier to maintain fitness levels all year long.

Visit the physical readiness program website to view some sample workouts that are beneficial for individuals and groups at www.npc.navy.mil/support/21st\_Century\_Sailor/physical.

More bridge repair work on Pearl Harbor Bike Path scheduled

Pearl Harbor bridge repair work has closed the Pearl Harbor Bike Path between Lehua Street and Waipio Point Access Road. The work began Nov. 13 and will continue through Nov. 22.

Bridge repair work underway along the Pearl Harbor Bike Path between McGrew Loop and Hekaha Street was completed and this portion of the bike path opened Nov. 9.

For construction updates, contact the city department of facility maintenance at 768-3630.

For other questions or comments, contact Chris Sayers, bicycle coordinator, or Craig Chung, traffic engineering division assistant chief, at the Department of Transportation Services (DTS) at 768-8321.

Naval Health Clinic Hawaii to have limited health care operations on Nov. 29

Naval Health Hawaii (NHCH) will have limited health care operations on Nov. 29, the day after Thanksgiving.

Makalapa Clinic will be open for patient care from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. All other medical/dental facilities at Branch Health Clinics Makalapa, Camp Smith, Wahiawa, Marine Corps Base Hawaii Kaneohe Bay, Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard and Pacific Missile Range Facility Barking Sands will be closed. Beneficiaries are asked to take this into consideration when scheduling care.

All clinics will re-open for regular business hours on Dec. 2. For NHCH hours of operation, visit the website at <http://www.med.navy.mil/sites/nhch>.

Beneficiaries can speak to a healthcare provider at any time the clinics are closed by calling the “provider after-hours advice line” at 473-0247, ext. 3.

For emergencies, dial 911 or go to Tripler Army Medical Center. For active duty dental emergencies, dial 864-4705.

Sesame Street characters will entertain military families on Sunday.

Sesame Street to visit joint base

Emily McNulty

Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam Morale, Welfare and Recreation

The Sesame Street/USO Experience for Military Families will hold shows at 2 and 5 p.m. Sunday at Hickam Fitness Center Gym, Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam.

The event will include characters from Sesame Street including Elmo, Grover, Cookie Monster, Rosita and Katie, a new military character who has been designed exclusively for military families and for this show.

Doors will open 30 minutes before each show. Seating is limited and on a first come, first-served basis. No tickets are needed.

This mini show will last for 30 minutes and include prize giveaways and take-homes for parents and children. Admission is free to military ID holders and their sponsored guests.

“It’s hard to find inexpensive quality entertainment in Hawaii for military families and their young children. Thanks to the generosity of the USO and its sponsors, the military community can have a free magical experience brought to their doorstep that kids and parents will remember for a lifetime,” said Lara Katine, MWR special events director.

CAPTAIN PHILLIPS (PG-13)

Captain Phillips is a multi-layered examination of the 2009 hijacking of the U.S. container ship Maersk Alabama by a crew of Somali pirates. It is simultaneously a pulse-pounding thriller and a complex portrait of the myriad effects of globalization. The film focuses on the relationship between the Alabama's commanding officer, Captain Richard Phillips, and his Somali counterpart, Muse.

Commissaries to start scanning IDs

Defense Commissary Agency Public Affairs Division

Commissaries will soon begin scanning customers’ Department of Defense ID cards at checkouts as the Defense Commissary Agency (DeCA) continues its pursuit to deliver a 21st century benefit.

The commissary at Fort Lee, Va. became the first store to scan ID cards on Oct. 22 as the first part of an agency-wide rollout to all stores. It began Nov. 10 and will be completed by mid-January.

Commissary shoppers are used to showing their ID cards to establish their eligibility to use the commissary. By scanning the ID at checkout, DeCA will no longer need to maintain any personal information on customers in its computer systems, such as the system used for customers who write checks.

Scanning will also help improve the commissary benefit for all patrons, according to Joseph H. Jeu, DeCA director and CEO.

“In addition to verifying customers as authorized commissary patrons, we’ll gain information that will give us a better understanding of our patrons, allowing the agency to provide the commissary benefit more effectively and efficiently,” Jeu said.

Cross-referenced with other DOD data, the scan data will give DeCA useful information about patron usage, by military service, along with customer demographics that does not identify specific personal data of an individual.

This will eventually help the agency identify shopping needs and preferences – information that is essential in today’s retail business environment. It will also allow more accurate reporting to the military services on commissary usage.

The demographic information DeCA will use is strictly limited to: card ID number, rank, military status, branch of service, age, household size and zip codes of residence and duty station. DeCA will not be using any personal information such as names, addresses or phone numbers.

“The methods, processes and information we’ll use will not compromise our customers’ privacy – they can be sure of that,” Jeu said. “We’re putting technology to work to better understand our customers and ensure the commissary benefit continues to remain relevant to them now and in the future.”

MFSC announces upcoming classes

JBP HH Military and Family Support Center

The Joint Base Pearl Harbor-Hickam Military and Family Support Center (MFSC) offers free programs to help Air Force and Navy service members, their families and Department of Defense civilians to develop skills, improve relationships, and handle the military way of life.

Upcoming classes at MFSC include:

- Writing Your Best Resume workshop will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. Nov. 19 at Military and Family Support Center-Pearl Harbor. It identifies specific resume formats, important information to include, what should be excluded, and how to target the resume to the job announcement.
- Financial Awareness workshop will be held from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Nov. 20 at Military and Family Support Center-Pearl Harbor. This is a quarterly financial seminar provided by experts on various subjects of interest to retirees such as basics of estate planning, wills and trusts, protecting yourself against fraud, and long-term care.
- New Moms and Dads class will be held from 5 to 8 p.m. Nov. 20 at Military and Family Support Center-Hickam. New and soon-to-be parents (or those who are thinking about becoming parents) will learn about the roles, responsibilities, demands and joys of being parents.

Those who are interested in the classes can register online at www.greatlifeohawaii.com or call 474-1999 for more information.
