Third TRAEX Group Led By Col. Nees

Colonel Charles M. Nees, commanding officer of the 4th Marines, has been designated commander of Force 45.2, the third group of the TRAEX-54 series at Camp Lejeune for maneuvers in the Vieques and Caribbean areas.

Col. Nees is the first colonel to lead the post of commander of a TRAEX group. Previous posts have been occupied by officers of general rank.

A 4,000-man force which will work Feb. 18 will be composed of the 6th Marine Regt. reinforced and has been designated as the 1st Training Group 3-45.

In line with the Marine Corps program and without curg the intensive training scheduled TRAEX 3-45 will conduct an experiment in the "One Staff" system.

Former TRAEX maneuvers employed a two-staff system on a regimental level one termed the TRAEX staff. This is the first time a single staff has headed both regiment and TRAEX.

Nees said this week that the one-staff system will not affect the efficiency or lessen the intensity of intensive training planned. It is an attempt to rely on staff personnel in such situations.

Existing Commander Nees and his holding two jobs are: Lt. Col. F. Robertshaw, executive officer; Capt. A. V. Ingram, S-1; Robert M. Schneider, S-2; Harvey E. Spielman, S-3; and Harland E. Troy, S-4. All are the 6th Marines.

Because of military necessity Lgman Road will be closed to all traffic today between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. and between 6 p.m. and 12 p.m.

WHAT IS YOUR PET PEEVE AS A DRIVER?

TSGT. N. H. BELEW, M.P. C., MCB — My first peeve is that there is not enough highway space for the number of autos on the road.

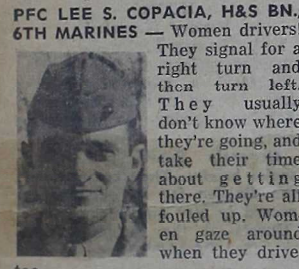

The second one is that most license bureau examiners are not strict enough with applicants when giving the test for a driver's license.

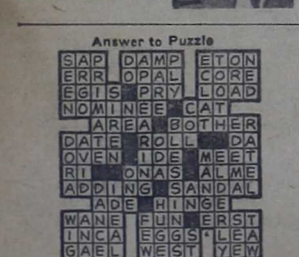

1ST. LT. H. C. MESHANE, SUPPLY DEPOT — The thing that angers me the most when I'm driving is when people follow too close behind my car. I think that this is the cause for a high percentage of accidents on the road today. People should judge their distance better when they are driving.

SSGT. JAMES J. OGGERINO, HQ. CO., MCB — Some women drivers! They're either too fast or too slow. They fight to get on the right side on a three-lane highway and then cut in front of you to make a left turn. They ignore stop signs, and the only thing you can be sure of when they make a hand signal is that the window is down.

SGT. HAROLD H. CAREY, CAMP MOTOR TRANSPORT CO. — I'm a school bus driver, and the pet peeve I have is that car drivers won't give us the right of way when we have it. They won't stop like they should when we stop and then go right on by us in both lanes. Children could be hit because they don't stop.

PFC LEE S. COPACIA, H&S BN., 6TH MARINES — Women drivers! They signal for a right turn and then turn left. They usually don't know where they're going, and take their time about getting there. They're all fouled up. Women gaze around when they drive, too.

SGT. WILLIAM MURRAY, H&S BN., MCB — What really tees me off are people who follow too close. It makes me nervous and distracts me to see someone right on my tail all the time. Not signaling for a turn is another thing that irritates me.

2nd Air Naval Gunfire Liaison Company Controls Supporting Arms In Combat

Here is the story of a Marine unit that supplies Navy gun power and air power to the Army.

It's the story of ANGLICO, a lot of abbreviation that stands for the 2nd Air Naval Gunfire Liaison Company, a Force Troops unit stationed at Camp Geiger.

The highly unified unit grew out of World War II problems and experiences in coordinating and controlling supporting arms for assault troops.

ANGLICO's primary mission is to cooperate with Army and foreign units in combat. It is commanded by Col. Wilbur R. Helmer. The company is composed of 48 Naval gunfire officers and Marine pilots and over 300 enlisted technicians, who maintain and operate an air platoon and a Naval gunfire platoon.

Marines Call Shots

Lt. Cmdr. Daniel R. Hild, USNR, commands the Navy personnel liaison teams, directed by Naval officers, which monitor ship-to-shore circuits and advise supported commanders. Spotting teams of the section, under Marine officers, call the fall of shot.

Maj. John M. Dufford commands the air platoon, which is set up of Marine pilots and enlisted radio teams. Forward air controllers direct air strikes, while air liaison teams monitor these circuits and advise infantry units on the employment of close air support.

In 1949, the commandant of the Marine Corps directed that ANGLICO be organized and assigned the primary mission of providing Naval Gunfire Teams and Tactical Air Control Parties for Army units of a division or below in size when engaged in amphibious training exercises or operations.

Joint Operation

Involved from the Joint Assault Signal Company (JASCO), which also had medical evacuation and beach communications services, the present ANGLICO was set up jointly by the Navy and Marine Corps. Since that time, ANGLICO has carried out their mission with several Army units.

During the first year of the Korean war, ANGLICO, FMFLant supplied naval gunfire and forward air control units for the 7th Infantry Division. Subsequently, a separate ANGLICO was established in Hawaii.

Other sections of the company have participated in NATO operations in the Mediterranean and training operations in the Caribbean. During this time the various sections were attached to Greek, Turkish, and other foreign armies.

WIG WAG — Both visual and radio communications are used during an ANGLICO problem at Camp Geiger. Talking on the radio is Sgt. James F. Morris while Cpl. John J. Gill handles the signal flags which will bring Naval gunfire down on "enemy positions" (Official USMC Photo).

MAPPING OUT PLANS — The joint "brain trust" of Force Troops' 2nd ANGLICO studies a map of Vieques as plans are laid for training maneuvers. Conferences like this one send Naval Gunfire spotting teams or air control parties all over the world, from the Mediterranean to Culebra, Puerto Rico. The planners are, l-r, Lt. Cmdr. W. H. Oglesby, Maj. J. M. Dufford, Lt. Col. W. R. Helmer, commanding officer; Maj. W. H. Irwin, and Lt. Cmdr. D. R. Hild (Official USMC Photo).

By PFC BOB RYFFEL

"Do you know what it means to lead a dog's life? Corp. Guzzi does!"

Just beyond the Drive-In theater and between and behind buildings PT1 and PT2 lies "Dogdom." Here Vincenzo Guzzi rules as master over shaggy subjects.

Guzzi, dog catcher for the Provost Marshal's Office, finds there is more to his job than the title implies. Dogs, like humans, fall to different categories and require individual attention. The Corp. says, "I keep a log on dogs separate them into groups."

Guzzi's first duty is that of maintaining "Canine Law Order." In his own words, "I report dogs that are causing disturbances. If the dog is a stray, I usually warn the owner before taking it in." Any uncontrolled mongrel should have a bone to pick with its master, not heeding Guzzi's warnings.

Rowdy curs are usually handled with leather gloves when locked up. However, the Corp. sometimes can't be choosy keeping man's best friend a mouthful of Guzzi. However, fenders are never mistreated.

Another set of the Corp's log is set for owners of the who barks of footed friends. Guzzi, tracing lost dogs, says, "I list the owner's name, address, and a description of the dog."

The new off-duty dogs are checked against the list for possible identification." His dogged determination in one search led to the return of a mutt AWOL for three months.

On the brighter side, Corp. Guzzi runs a doghouse for visiting and stray dogs. The visiting dog receives private subsistence from its owner. He introduces guests to a wide selection of daily meals where such delicacies as Pard, Big Time, and Fido are served. The stray dogs mooches through the courtesy of the butcher shop at Mess Hall.

Most of the strays are up for adoption. Guzzi keeps a list of names of people wishing to adopt dogs. Would-be owners can specify type and age. Only healthy dogs are given away.

Guzzi said that it is Corp. policy to give the dogs the best of care. The Corp. takes a special interest in the dogs who knows each by name.

Corporal Guzzi can be reached at the main gate by phoning 1234. Those wishing to see a particular dog must "go through kennel

Camp Auto Owners Earned About N.C. Motor Vehicle Act

A recently-issued Camp memorandum cautions Lejeune Personnel to two provisions of the North Carolina Motor Vehicle Safety and Financial Responsibility

Certificates of insurance companies as proof of financial responsibility in auto accidents will not be accepted by the North Carolina Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. Non-resident owners of vehicles registered outside this state are authorized to do business in the state in the auto is registered.

Insurance certificates will not be accepted as proof of responsibility unless the companies are authorized to do business in the state where the insured resides. The Camp Legal office has information on companies licensed to operate in North Carolina. Persons in autos are registered and insured in other states should write home state insurance companies to check on compliance with North Carolina regulations. The Camp Insurance officer is available for further information, memo said.

Food Supply Course Graduates Twelve; Loomis Talks

Highlighted by a commencement address by Brig. Gen. F. B. Loomis, commanding general, Force Troops, commissioning ceremonies at Montford Point theater last Friday morning saw twelve members of the first Special Food Service Officers' course receive the rank of second lieutenants.

The new officers, all former enlisted men assigned to the school through selection boards, are the second group to graduate from special courses offered by the Supply School Bn.

Following an invocation by Lt. R. J. Schneck, new assistant chaplain, Col. John E. Willey, commanding officer, Supply School, introduced General Loomis.

Colonel Willey administered the commissioning oath to the candidates, while the diplomas and commissions were presented by Gen. Loomis. Top man in the class, which began with 17 members, was Lt. William L. Maughan.

Two of the graduates, 2nd Lt. James E. Durham and Joseph E. Arnack, have already been transferred to local commands. Arnack was assigned to 1st Infantry Training Regt. and Warnock to Marine Corps Supply Department. The third special class, received commissions in the Special Motor Transporters' course.

Boy Scout Week Slated Feb. 7-13

Local scouters will join with the nation's more than 3,000,000 cub scouts, boy scouts, explorers, and adult leaders to observe the 44th birthday of the nation-wide organization during Boy Scout week Feb. 7-13. The organization was incorporated Feb. 8, 1910.

The theme for this year's observance is "Forward on Liberty's Team," the current emphasis for the movement which hopes to produce a more active membership and provide a higher quality program.

Since 1910 more than 21 million boys and men have been identified with the scouting movement. Current enrollment is 2,440,000.

The week's celebration will be climaxed with the annual nationwide NBC radio broadcast of the Boy Scout Jamboree. It will originate in the Shrine auditorium in Los Angeles on Saturday, Feb. 13, 1954. Taking part will be 7000 boy scouts and leaders and the Robert Mitchell Boy Scout chorus.

GOLDSBORO DANCE

General Waves Goodbye As 23 Marines Shove Off From Maneuvers To Go Home

Ever hear of taking leave while on maneuvers? Or better still, having a general wish you luck to boot? Well, that's what happened to 23 Lejeune Marines serving with the reinforced 2nd Marines on the current TRAEX maneuvers on Vieques island, Puerto Rico.

1st Bn. 2nd Marines Back From Cruise; Visited Five Nations

The 1st Bn., 2nd Marines began debarking yesterday after a six-month, 25000-mile cruise with the U. S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

The ship rode just a little bit deeper in the water than they did when embarking six months ago as Leathernecks returned with souvenirs, gear, and memories.

The reinforced battalion, commanded by L. Col. Julian V. Lyons, took part in NATO maneuvers with troops of five nations of the European Defense Community.

The tour included visits to France, Italy, Greece, French West Africa, Turkey, Spain, and the islands of Crete, Sardinia and Sicily.

Not only that, the Marine Corps provided them air transportation.

The men were Puerto Ricans who left home to become Leathernecks. Now that TRAEX units are near their homes the Marine Corps is giving them the chance to take leave, thus saving them almost impossible transportation charges.

The men were flown from Vieques to the Naval Station at San Juan in Marine cargo planes.

Brig. Gen. Henry R. Paige, TRAEX commander, bid them farewell before their departure from the Vieques airstrip.

"We wanted you to get this leave so you might be with your wives and family as long as possible," he said.

Meantime, other TRAEX troops were reported to be getting their share of liberty in Isabel Segunda, San Juan, and other ports.

Several liberty stops are planned during the homeward cruise in March.

New Policy Permits Officers To Resign After 4-Year Tour

Regular Marine officers and Reserve officers on active duty will be permitted to resign from the Corps after four years of active commissioned service unless otherwise obligated, according to a recent directive from Headquarters Marine Corps.

In addition the directive stated: 1. Requests from temporary commissioned officers and temporary warrant officers for resignation or reversion to enlisted status and transfer to fleet Reserve or termination of commission and continuance on active duty in permanent grade normally will be considered favorably.

2. Retirement of officers will be covered by existing laws and regulations.

3. Officers having remaining obligated service under selective service upon resignation of regular commission or release from active duty will be required to accept or retain Reserve commissioned status until fulfillment of the obligation.

Enlisted Personnel Urged To Cooperate With Rec Committee

Enlisted personnel at Camp Lejeune are urged by a recent Enlisted Recreation committee release to take advantage of their opportunity to make recommendations to the committee.

MSgt. John M. Cheek, senior member of the committee, said enlisted personnel with comments, criticism, or suggestions regarding conduct of or additions to Camp recreation activities may contact the committee by checking Camp Memorandum 9 for names of members or by writing the committee in care of Camp Special Services, field house, MCB.

6th Marines Mark 36th Anniversary With Chapel Service

The 6th Marines celebrated their 36th birthday Sunday with a rededication service in the Camp Protestant chapel.

More than 300 marines and their families attended.

Former 6th Marine Chaplain Robert J. Schneck, newly appointed assistant camp chaplain, delivered the sermon.

His successor, Lt. Commander E. Vaughn Lyons led the prayer of rededication. The services were conducted by Assistant Regimental Chaplain Donald C. Lemester.

Col. Charles M. Nees, the regiment's commanding officer, gave a brief rundown of the regiment's history.

Regimental, battalion, and company colors decorated the altar. The Sixth was formed at Quantico on Feb. 5, 1917.

The Old Corps

Ten Years Ago This Week: Men of the 2nd Division were resting and training in Hawaii after the bloody battle at Tarawa in November of '43.

Camp Lejeune was squaring away for a visit this week by Lt. Gen. A. Vandegrift, commandant of the Marine Corps. It was to be his first visit here since he was appointed to the top Marine post and since he was relieved as commander of the 1st Division, then stationed here.

Five enlisted men got five-day passes for winning a war bond Jingle contest. Five others got 72-hour passes and five others got 48's. Sample of a five-day winning verse:

Sing a song of War Bonds,
Pocket full of dough.
Ten and twenty dollars

Camp Lejeune's Women Marines were making plans for a first anniversary celebration Feb. 13. The outfit here was then known as the Women's Reserve Battalion.

Movies slated for showing at camp theaters were: "Northwest Passage" with Spencer Tracy; "In Old Chicago" with Tyrone Power and Alice Faye; and a real thriller titled "Revenge of the Zombies" with John Carradine. (The above information was collected from the files of the GLOBE and its predecessor, "The New River Pioneer.")

Chaplain's Corner

The story is told of an old Scottish elder who was faithful in church attendance, but who was the cause of a great deal of trouble among the parishioners. He told his pastor one day that he was going to make the journey to the Holy Land.

"And when I get there," he said with a great deal of enthusiasm, "I'm going to climb to the top of Mount Sinai and read the Ten Commandments from the very pinnacle."

"I can tell you something better to do," his pastor commented. "Stay at home and keep them."

"Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only," is the exhortation of James (1:22). This is an admonition that is always needed.

With hearts aglow we hear the glorious promise of the Gospel.

With sparkling eyes we watch the Christmas pageant unfold.

With hopeful hearts, we take our places before the sepulchre to wonder at our Lord's Resurrection.

In complete agreement we nod our heads as Christ preaches us His Sermon on the Mount.

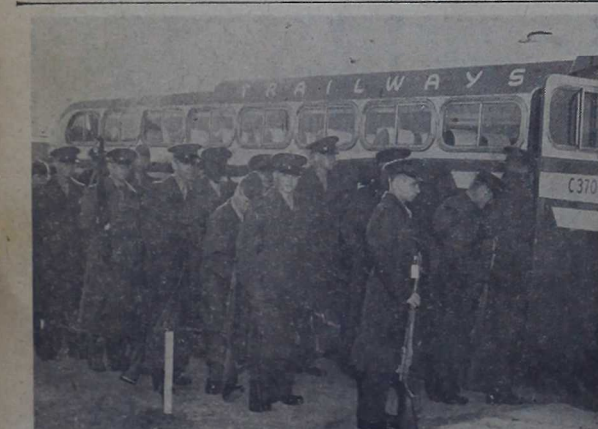

These must last longer than the moment, longer than the season. These must be translated into the deeds of our days, the utterances of our mouths, the thoughts of our minds and the exhibitions of our stewardship.

Remember: "It's a grand thing to know Scripture by memory, but grander to know it by heart."—Lt. Cmdr. Robert J. Schneck, Asst. Camp Chaplain.

Camp Lejeune lost its fifth straight game last Wednesday night as they bowed to the Fort eMade Generals, 95-90, at the Goettge Memorial Field House.

The defeat brought their record to seven wins and 12 defeats.

The Generals took the lead at outset and held on to it to the finish although the Leathernecks gave them a bad scare before it was over.

The locals had a rough time in the first period. They were unable to hit from the floor. At the 3:40 mark of the opening period, the Leathernecks sank their first foul shot and point, and trailed, 1-10. The period was half over before they could sink a field goal, and by then they trailed 20-6. The Generals led at the end of the first quarter, 27-10.

The Lejeune team came to life in the middle of the second as Harmeson hit for five straight field goals, Whitaker and Niego got two and Jones, Lee, and Scott each hit the cords for field goals to bring the score at the half to 38-29, Meade still leading.

Camp Lejeune High picked up their ninth conference win Tuesday last week, smothering Smyrna High, 80-56, at Goettge Memorial Field House.

Lejeune's coach Dick Lauffer's strategy of using a full court defense had the Eagles buffaloed all the way as evidenced by the 45-19 lead the Pups ran up by the end of the first half.

In the second half Smyrna switched from zone defense, which had offered no problem to Devilpups Bobby Peele and Charlie Sells, to a man-to-man defense which netted them 23 points in the third period. Lejeune eased up and also went into a man-to-man defense.

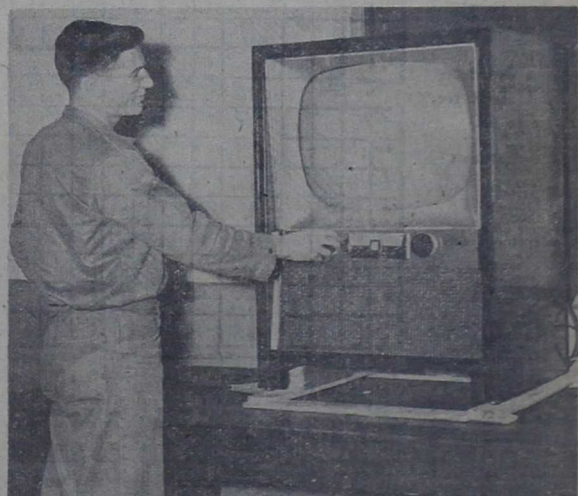

Leading scorer for Lejeune was Bobby Peele with 25 points. Next on the list were Charlie Sells with 15, Johnny Mugford with 12, and Bob Royster with 11.

General Linscott, Brig. Gen. Samuel S. Jack, General Loomis, General Horner, and Brig. Gen. Alexander W. Kreiser Jr.

General Smith departed for Washington Tuesday at noon after witnessing a parachute drop by Force Troops' 2nd Air Delivery Platoon.

Parachute Drop

The demonstration featured the safe parachuting to the ground of a three-quarter ton truck and a 105 millimeter howitzer.

The demonstration began with a light delivery drop by four "OE" type observation planes. Each plane dropped two 400-pound containers loaded with rations, medical supplies and ammunition.

This was followed by a high speed delivery in which 3,000 pounds of tank and mortar ammunition was dropped by two AD "Skyraiders" in a 225-knot glide bombing run at 500 feet.

In addition to the truck and howitzer, the heavy air delivery portions of the demonstration included the parachuting of huge platforms containing rations, ammunition, and a jeep. Using 110-foot parachutes, the unit made the heavy deliveries from three R4Q "Flying Boxcars."

Among the officers present for the demonstration other than General Smith were General Linscott, General Good, General Loomis, General Horner, and General Jack.
