Active military members and dependents assigned to U.S. Naval Forces Europe,

If you have orders for a Permanent Change of Station (PCS), you may be eligible for a rental car reimbursement.

Am I eligible for a rental car reimbursement during PCS?

Military members and their dependents are eligible for rental car reimbursements when their authorized privately-owned vehicle (POV) has not arrived at their destination and it is not available for delivery on or before the designated delivery date.

In either case, the POV must be transported at the government's expense for the service member's or their dependent's use.

If the service member's POV does not arrive at the authorized destination by the designated delivery date, then the service or agency must reimburse the service member for the cost of a rental vehicle.

For DoD civilian employees and their dependents, there is no authority at this time for rental car reimbursement while awaiting POV arrival.

I'm eligible. How much am I reimbursed?

Reimbursement for a rental vehicle, by law, is limited to $30 per day with a maximum reimbursement of $210.

The service member or dependent may rent a vehicle for up to seven days beginning as early as the day after the POV's scheduled delivery date. The last reimbursable day during the seven-day period is the day before the delivery of the POV to the authorized destination.
