NSA PERSONNEL DIGEST

Observance of Veterans' Day

Veterans' Day, Nov. 11, is a legal holiday. Employees will be excused in observance of the holiday in accordance with the provisions of Section V, PMM 24. Eligible employees working a regular 40-hour week, Monday through Friday, will be excused on Friday, Nov. 10; eligible employees working other than Monday through Friday will be excused in accordance with the applicable provisions of chapter 24, PMM.

Administrative Leave In Connection With PCS

Personnel Letter 33-1967, Aug. 31, 1967, has been issued to announce that an employee can be granted administrative leave for absences necessary to fulfill official requirements imposed because of permanent change of duty station. Absences may be necessitated by a need for physical examinations or immunizations, to arrange for passports or government bills of lading for the shipment of household goods, etc.

In addition, an employee may be granted administrative leave to conduct personal business directly related to his PCS provided such business cannot be transacted outside regular working hours. Such business might include overseeing the loading or unloading of household goods, seeking appropriate housing in a new area, or registering an automobile.

Employee Access to Personnel Offices and Management Officials

Personnel Letter Number 34-1967, Sept. 20, 1967, recognizes the right of every individual at NSA to have access to officials within the Personnel Management Group, to management officials within their own organizations, and to other Agency officials who work with matters that concern them, without interference or threat of reprisal. The Personnel Letter lists the offices accessible to Agency personnel.

When feasible, individuals should make an appointment with the appropriate person in the organization that has primary responsibility for the area of concern. For example, retirement questions can often be resolved expeditiously after discussion directly between the questioner and a member of the Personnel Relations Division, M33. If an individual is uncertain about which organization has the responsibility for a particular subject, he may ask the Personnel Administration Division, M35.

An employee may visit the Agency Equal Employment Opportunity Officer or his deputy, a supervisor or management official within his organization at a level higher than that of his immediate supervisor, and the Agency General Counsel regarding possible conflict of interest and other matters concerning ethical standards. After other administrative channels have been pursued, an individual may take complaints or grievances to the Inspector General.

The Personnel Letter is not intended to discourage consultation between an employee and his immediate supervisor; it is preferred that problems be discussed at this level. However, if an employee has reason to believe that someone on a higher level, or in the Personnel Management Group, should be consulted, it is not necessary for him to discuss the specifics of the problem with his immediate supervisor. However, an employee must ask his immediate supervisor to indicate a convenient time for him to be excused from his job to see another official.

The rights of the individual explained in the Personnel Letter should not be considered substitutes for other established methods of filing complaints, grievances or appeals. Regulations governing such cases will prevail, and procedures established in appropriate chapters of the NSA PMM must be followed.

Contributions to this column are invited from all Newsletter readers. The editor reserves the right to edit or condense letters submitted. Letters should be brief and concise. Dear Sir:

NSA personnel are frequently volunteering their time and effort to worthy causes. The evening of August 30th was no exception, as Jacob Gurin and the NSA Jazz Band, and Misses Judy Ford and Joyce Murray answered a call for help for a barbecue we held for wounded soldiers from Walter Reed Army Hospital.

It is rewarding to know that this spirit exists within the Agency.

—Burton R. Klein

Dear Sir:

Cedar Knoll Children's Center, located on Route 32 about ¼ mile west of NSA, has a population of about 300 juvenile delinquents, who have been committed by the courts of the District of Columbia. The center is one of those places designated by the District of Columbia as a "reform" school.

The average age of a Cedar Knoll student is about fifteen, and the center needs volunteers to tutor, teach, and sponsor these children. Tutors are needed in reading, in math, in social sciences, and in English.

The children also have a need, as individuals, to know that people are interested in them. Teach a boy to play chess and he may learn the value of foresight; teach a girl to knit and she may learn the value of being creative; share your time with a child and he may learn, by your example, that, as a member of society, he must be willing to give as well as take.

An hour a week, a five-minute ride from work and you can do something about ignorance, crime, and ghettos—and maybe even enjoy yourself doing it.

Anyone interested may contact Mrs. James Harrell by dialing interagency 166-8407, or from outside 776-7014, Ext. 407.

Director Urges NSAers to Give Generously to Annual Fund Drive

"You are the elect, the select, the priority members of this government. . . Leadership is not the cloak of comfort, but the robe of responsibility. Using these remarks made by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey during his Security Week address, Lt. Gen. Marshall S. Carter opened the 1967 Combined Federal Campaign at NSA.

"The services provided by these philanthropic agencies are vital," said the Director at the campaign's Kickoff Rally, Oct. 3. "The need is established. It exists at the community level. It exists at the national level.—Even in this country, we have degrees of poverty and hunger and these organizations move into the vacuum.

"It certainly exists at the international level." Gen. Carter described several tragic situations he had seen during tours of duty overseas.

The campaign is being conducted at NSA during October and November. Personnel may earmark their contributions to go to agencies of the United Appeal of Central Maryland, the United Givers Fund of Washington, the National Health Agencies and the International Service Agencies.

"It's a rare privilege for us to be able to give of our wealth to these people and these causes," the Director said. He went on in a lighter vein, "Last year we went over our goal by collecting $185,500. And, since this is an enlightened republic, this year our goal has been raised to $185,500.

Gen. Carter said that the system enabling NSAers to contribute through payroll deductions was most successful in 1966. "Sixty percent of the money we received was from twenty percent of the people contributing through payroll deductions," he said. "It seems to me," he went on, "if we had 60% of the people contributing through payroll deductions, we would have 120% of our goal.—Of course, I haven't checked this all out yet.

"The stature in which we stand in community works is a public indication of our stature in everything," the General said in a more serious tone. "We should all have the greatest of pride in being part of the National Security Agency. We have a compelling responsibility to keep this Agency at the head of all other agencies.—That's where we are and that's where we want to stay."

He added, "Certainly the troops in Viet Nam would rather be here contributing.—We have a responsibility to represent them in this campaign."

John A. Smith, vice chairman of the fund drive, addressing the key workers, said, "It isn't often that we are given a chance to play a role in making this world a better place to live in. We should all be privileged to be the action agents in this endeavor."

Eliot N. Pearl is the general manager of the campaign and Eugene Brown is the treasurer.

The NSA Jazz Band provided entertainment before the kick-off program. Gen. Carter said, "I think they're the greatest."

Cossum Family Recovering Following Auto Accident

David D. Cossum, Chief, NSA Operations Group, NSAPAC, his wife, Christine, and other members of his family were seriously injured in a recent automobile accident. Also injured in the same accident was Greg Herkert, the son of Robert Herkert, a member of the NSA Staff.

Dave's many friends will be happy to know that he and his family are on the road to recovery. Greg Herkert has been released from the hospital as have Dave and Chris' daughters.

Dave and his family wish to express their deep appreciation to their many friends at NSA who have been so thoughtful. The many cards and letters received by the Cossums have helped make them feel not quite so far away from home.

Mail will reach the Cossums at Castle Memorial Hospital, Kailua, Hawaii 96734, or at their home, 520 Papalani St., Kailua.

Vice President Delivers Keynote Address

Visit of Vice President Humphrey Highlights Security Week 1967

The troops of the U. S. Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force NSA Support Groups stood smartly at attention and the First Army Band began to play the traditional honors, "Ruffles and Flourishes," when the motorcade arrived in front of the Headquarters Building the morning of Sept. 26, bringing the Vice President of the United States, Hubert H. Humphrey, Jr. It was an historic moment for NSA.

"This is great. This is the way I should start every morning." The Vice President observed as he climbed the steps to Gatehouse One with people on both sides applauding. The Vice President's two-hour visit with the people of NSA seemed to be one of mutual delight. During his tour of the Agency, groups broke into spontaneous applause whenever they spotted him—and the trim, beaming Vice President couldn't say enough good things about the NSA community.

Vice President Humphrey was officially welcomed to the Agency by Lt. Gen. Marshall S. Carter, USA, DIRNSA, upon his arrival outside the Headquarters Bldg. "It is a very great privilege to be here," the Vice President replied. "The President and I have great respect and appreciation for the work of the National Security Agency." Gen. Carter had mentioned that this was the first visit of such a high official in the Agency's history. Mr. Humphrey quipped, "As Vice President, it's always reassuring to be first in anything."

As the Vice President and General Carter left the reviewing stand, the Director introduced the Agency officials and Support Group Commanders who stood behind the reviewing stand during the welcoming ceremonies. Those introduced were: RAdm. Lester R. Schulz, USN, Assistant to the Director for the National Cryptologic Staff; Brig. Gen. William H. Price, Jr., USA, Deputy Chief, A Group; Brig. Gen. John E. Morrison, Jr., USAF, Deputy Assistant to the Director for Production; Capt. Ralph E. Cook, USN, Director of the Naval Security Group; Col. Walter L. Williams, USMC, Commanding Officer of the Marine Barracks, Ft. Meade; and Leonard P. Bienvenu, Chief, Office of Security.

Calling NSAers "patriots in the true sense of the word" in his auditorium address, the Vice President said that the Agency represents an unusual concentration of brainpower and devotion to duty. "I could even sense this as I quickly and casually visited with your personnel walking through the corridors today," he said.

"Most of you labor long and productively with little expectation of public recognition," the Vice President went on, recalling President Franklin Roosevelt's praise of civil servants as people with a passion for anonymity. "Of course," the speaker added, "President Roosevelt wasn't talking about elected officials—No elected official has a passion for anonymity."

He continued, "There are people on the highest levels of government who do know what you're doing and appreciate your efforts. I came here to tell you that and to thank you on behalf of a grateful nation."

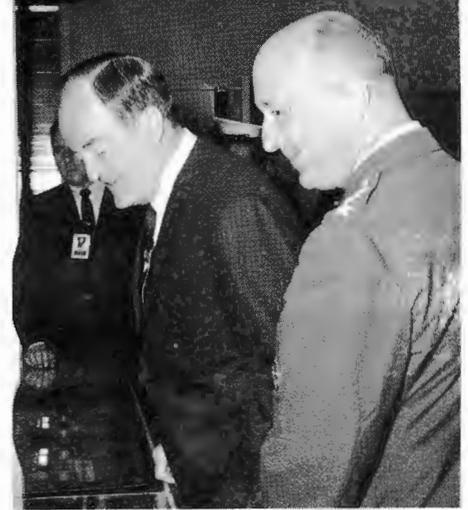

Listing some of the Agency's accomplishments, he said, "Your work demands inventiveness, creativeness and a high level of intelligence. Day after day, you produce results that represent substantial contributions to the national defense.

"Important as your operational accomplishments are," he went on, "you've also distinguished yourself in other areas." He mentioned the Agency's outstanding record in savings bond participation. "I'm interested in this," he said. "Bonds are important for the security of the nation. You went from 30% to 90% in two years.—I might add that that leaves 10% for improvement," he said, smiling. "I wouldn't want you to rest on your laurels." There were ripples of laughter in the packed auditorium.

"You have an exceptional record, Gen. Carter and members of your official family, for enlightened management," continued the Vice President. He complimented the Agency on its equal employment opportunities for all races, for women and for the handicapped—"who, by the way, are frequently some of the best you can hire.

"In the development of career systems and in the effective use of training and education to meet your special needs, you've done very well," he said. "And you have a splendid personnel recruitment program, especially in the recruitment of young people.

"I'd like to comment on the success of NSA in bringing together the civilians and the military," he continued. "NSA has proven that you can weave together the best out of both the civilian ranks and the military into a highly effective, coordinated organization."

He referred to the Agency's successful security program. "Security is, in the last analysis, a very personal matter," said the keynote Security Week speaker. "I've always felt in public life and in politics that it's not the big mistakes, but the little ones that are our undoing. The big ones are often so complex that people don't understand them anyway. And in security measures, it's the little mistakes that we must always be on guard against.

"Security precautions are onerous. They call for an extra measure of patience and good will. You must give a little more—quite a little more than those working in other areas of government.

"I think that it's dramatic testimony to the power of a free society that talented and gifted people have accepted the restraints that are a necessary part of working for NSA," said the Vice President. "You simply have to care enough about this country. The dedicated men and women of this Agency have demonstrated time and time again by their exceptional performance that they do care. You've done it in the past and I have confidence that you will continue to do so in the future."

At the close of his speech, Gen. Carter thanked the Vice President for coming to NSA. "Mr. Vice President, I know I speak for every individual in this Agency when I say that this is, without a doubt, the greatest day in the 15-year history of this Agency."

Before he went to the auditorium, Mr. Humphrey toured two operational areas and examined the Security Week exhibits. After his speech, the Vice President and the Director and party had coffee in the Director's offices. Shortly before noon, those in the welcoming party returned to Tipton Airfield, Ft. Meade, to see the Vice President off in his helicopter.

An enthusiastic group of NSAers gathered outside Gatehouse # 1 to bid farewell to the Vice President as he left NSA at the close of his historic visit.

The Vice President's Historic Visit to NSA

Vice President Comments On . . .

HIS VISIT TO NSA

I am very pleased and honored to have the privilege of visiting the National Security Agency today and to see, as I walk these corridors, the fine people that make up this splendid Agency. I've wanted to come here for a long time.

I come here for one purpose above all—to thank you on behalf of a grateful nation; to thank you on behalf of a government administration that desperately needs your unqualified devotion to duty; to thank you in the cause of freedom. . .

THE NSA COMMUNITY

I think you ought to know that there are those at the highest levels of government, who are appreciative of your service and know the true value of your accomplishments.

You are, in the best sense of the word, the patriots.

Day after day, you have produced results that represent truly substantial contributions to the long-term security of the Nation and the national defense.

. . . the Nation is fortunate to have the vital missions of the National Security Agency in the hands of such dedicated, truly accomplished men and women.

I know that this work demands inventiveness, creativeness and a high level of intelligence, and that NSA represents an unusual concentration of brain power and devotion to duty in one Agency.

SECURITY AND SECURITY WEEK

You have had good success in your highly-developed, successful security programs of which this Security Week is a part. Now, I'm sort of a crank on these weeks.—The only purpose of a week is to make you get the other fifty-one weeks of the year as good as the one week. . . . It doesn't do any good to have a Security Week if you have a lapse of security the next week. In fact, it makes it all the worse, because it only shows what you could have done if you had continued to do it.

To fulfill your security obligations at NSA, you must, each day, give a little more. . .

Security is, in the last analysis, a very personal matter. You simply have to care enough about this country. You simply have to care enough about this Nation and the promise of this great country. You have to care enough to want to do a good job and to do it selflessly. The dedicated men and women of this Agency have demonstrated time and again, by their exceptional performance, that they do care.

LEADERSHIP

Leadership imposes responsibility and duty, and that's true of individuals, of agencies, or of governments. To those who think our country is doing too much in the world, or trying to do too much in the world, there's an easy way out.—Just let somebody else do it. And there's somebody else around who is willing to do it; make no mistake about that. Anytime you are willing to vacate the chair of responsibility, there are at least one or two individuals, groups, persons, or nations that will plop right into the chair and take over.

. . . Leadership is not the cloak of comfort; it's the robe of responsibility.

If we fail in our responsibility; if we in the United States, with all that we have, are unable to protect the ramparts of freedom, . . . who do you think can stand guard? Who do you think will undertake this high duty and this great calling? We have so much to work with and we have so much to lose. And yet, we have so much to preserve and so much to gain.

THE OFFICE OF VICE PRESIDENT

I was flattered this morning when General Carter reminded me that I was the first Vice President to visit the Agency in fifteen years. I couldn't help but say, in both truth and jest, it's nice for the Vice President to be first in

James Willard Wins Supervisor Award

"This week is purely to remind us of the other 51," said Lt. Gen. Marshall S. Carter, USA, DIRNSA, repeating Vice President Humphrey's description of Security Week. "The security practices that we have rejuvenated this week should continue throughout the rest of the year," the Director went on in his address on the closing day of Security Week.

Gen. Carter presented the first award of its kind, a Supervisor Security Award, to James M. Willard for his outstanding achievements and initiative in the security area in his organization. "The security responsibility of the supervisor is very close to my heart," said the Director. "You cannot separate security from operational accomplishments." The runners-up in the competition, who took up a complete row in the auditorium, were identified in the audience.

"We must be convinced of the danger to our mission by a flood of little things," stressed Gen. Carter. He mentioned some of the seemingly small matters that can snowball into big problems.

The Director said that the Vice President's speech in the auditorium had been filmed and would be shown soon. "It was a great day for the Agency," he said. "We should all have a great feeling of pride and, I hope, of enthusiasm to get on with the job."

The runners-up in the Supervisor Security Contest were: Peter J. DeMarzo, William B. Giller, James C. Kennedy, Eloise G. McLellan, Harry E. Merrill, Eliot N. Pearl, Harold B. Peterson, MSgt. Donald L. Porter, USAF, Marlyn Ann Shaffer, Thomas J. Stratton, Richard L. Wille.

anything. I speak for all Vice Presidents, past and present.

CITIZENSHIP

The only way that I know to really say that you have been a good citizen is to fulfill the highest responsibility of good citizenship, which is the love of Nation, respect for the individual, and, indeed, a constant dedication to the cause of human freedom and social justice.

Twenty-one Students Take Part in NSA's Opportunity Program

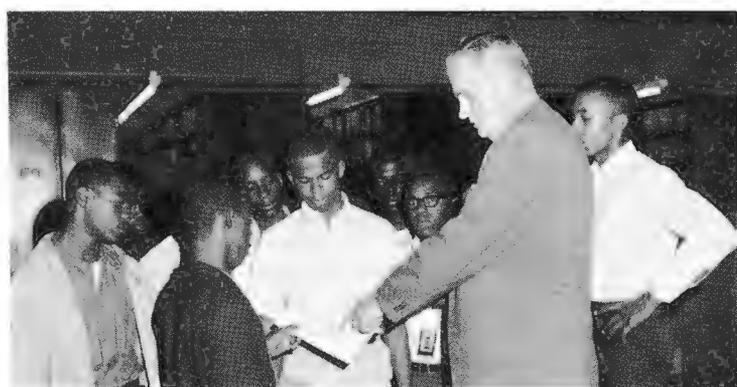

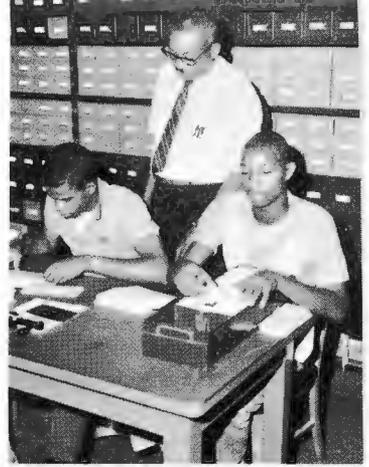

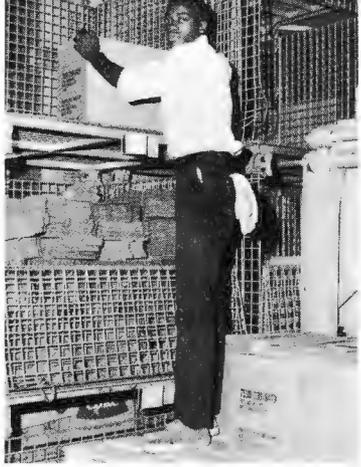

Twenty-one Baltimore high school students referred by the Baltimore Youth Opportunity Center worked at NSA last summer. The eleven young women wired electronic components and the ten young men packed, crated, invoiced, and performed other logistics functions.

Inspired by the Federal Government's Youth Opportunity Campaign, the undertaking included work assignments, training and counseling. The program was initiated and administered at NSA by the Office of Civilian Personnel and its Community Relations Staff, with other Agency employees assisting in the counseling sessions and other aspects of the project.

The sponsoring organizations were impressed with the work done by the youths and expressed hopes for a larger group next summer.

During a farewell party held Aug. 25, certificates of appreciation were presented to all 21 participants. Col. Leslie J. Bolstridge, USAF, and Capt. John M. Gore, USN, of the sponsoring organizations; A. W. Uline, Assistant Director of Civilian Personnel; Herman W. Phynes and Robert C. Woodward of the Community Relations Staff, and other Agency officials close to the project were on hand to show their appreciation to the teenagers who made the summer program a success.

Oliver R. Kirby Wins Agency's Highest Award

Oliver R. Kirby, ADP, was presented the Agency's Exceptional Civilian Service Award, NSA's highest civilian award, by General Carter at a ceremony in the Agency Conference Room.

The award was given to recognize Mr. Kirby's extraordinary accomplishments and dedication during his 24 years of cryptologic service.

At the helm of Prod for the last five years, first as Deputy Assistant Director of Production and then as Assistant Director of Production, Mr. Kirby directs programs of the greatest significance to NSA and to the nation. In 1963 he received the Department of Defense Distinguished Civilian Service Award, the highest Defense Department award for a civilian.

Mr. Kirby holds a bachelor of science degree in chemistry from the University of Illinois and he has completed the resident course at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. A native of Illinois, he lives with his family in Beltsville, Md.

EXCEPTIONAL PERFORMANCE—The Director congratulates Oliver R. Kirby, ADP, following the presentation of the Exceptional Civilian Service Award.

Oliver Mallory, Jr. Wins Citizenship Award

Oliver Mallory, Jr. was presented NSA's Citizenship Award by General Carter in recognition of his outstanding performance with the District of Columbia Metropolitan Police Department. Officer Mallory was responsible for finding the prime suspect in a murder case, the murder weapon and eyewitnesses to the shooting.

Mr. Mallory has engaged in District police work for the past seventeen years. He served as a Civil Defense reserve officer and, for the last seven years, has been a commissioned special police officer.

The only compensation Mr. Mallory receives for the time he spends working as a special police officer is the satisfaction of knowing that he is serving the citizens of his community.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP—Gen. Carter presents the Agency's Citizenship Award to Oliver Mallory, Jr., in recognition of the contributions he has made to his community while serving as a special police officer with the Metropolitan Police Department in Washington, D. C.

Tent-N-Trailer Club Spends Weekend At Pine Grove Furnace Campgrounds

Tent-N-trailer (T-N-T) Camping Club members gathered at Pine Grove Furnace State Park Campground Sept. 8-10 for the club's Sixth Annual Post-Labor-Day Campout and Chicken Barbecue. Twenty-four families, totaling 116 members of all ages, were present. The youngest were Christopher Krupa, four months, and Peggy Fowler, sixteen months; the oldest was not announced, but there were several prime suspects.

About 17 families were settled at the campground by Friday night and the rest arrived on Saturday. Varied activities took up Saturday morning and early afternoon. Then all turned to preparing dinner. The women put together a huge tossed salad and other goodies while the men started the fires and attended to barbecuing the chicken and roasting the potatoes. Hot buttered rolls, coffee, chocolate and fresh peaches completed the menu.

As darkness approached, a film on Expo 67 and a short film for the small fries were shown. After the movies, everyone sat around the campfire and sang songs, toasted marshmallows and sang more songs.

On Sunday morning, after a pancake breakfast, during which almost 300 flapjacks were served, a short non-denominational church service was held. After lunch, some of the group went for a walk along a path in the woods and found a pool with beautiful trout just waiting to be hooked by some lucky angler.

Annual Ski Week Will Be Observed Oct. 23-27

The Sun, Snow and Surf Club will sponsor its annual Ski Week Oct. 23-27. The primary purpose of Ski Week is to introduce and to share with others the wonderful world of skiing, the fastest growing participation sport in the U. S. today.

The Ski Club (SSS) is one of the largest clubs at NSA. More and more people are discovering that skiing is as relaxing and healthful as it is exhilarating. The members of the SSS Club extend a warm invitation to all Agency personnel to attend club meetings, especially those held during Ski Week.

Although Ski Week is aimed primarily at the non-skier, many activities are planned for both skiers and non-skiers. Ski movies will be shown Oct. 24 at 11 a.m. in the auditorium. On Oct. 25, ski trip captains will discuss skiing trips proposed for the 1967-68 season.

A representative from a local ski shop will display skiing equipment on Nov. 3, 8 p.m., at the Ft. Meade Officers Club. Ski movies will be shown in conjunction with the presentation.

On Nov. 5, the club will hold a "Dry-Land Ski School" at one of the Ft. Meade Service Clubs. Professional ski instructors will work with participants, and all necessary equipment will be provided. The cost will be approximately $2 per person.

A ski fashion show will be held Nov. 8 in the auditorium at 11 a.m.

Galen Griffin Wins Singles Title by Defeating John Hoshor, 6-1, 6-1

Galen Griffin is the NSA Men's Singles Champion for the second consecutive year. Last month, he successfully defended the title he won in 1966 by defeating newcomer John Hoshor, 6-1, 6-1, on the Ft. Meade tennis courts. Mr. Griffin won the right to play in the finals of the 1967 NSA Men's Singles Championship Tournament by defeating Dave Fuller, 6-4, 6-4, in the first round; Ken McCloskey, 6-0, 6-4, in the second round; Bob Magnan, 6-4, 6-4, in the quarterfinals; and Ken Godfrey, the number three seeded player, 6-2, 6-1, in the semifinals.

The champion played tennis in the Army and, before that, was on the Duke University varsity tennis team.

Mr. Hoshor, who was seeded number four in the tournament, played varsity tennis at the University of Hawaii. In the semi-final match, he upset Capt. Robert Shaver, USAF, the number two seeded player, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2.

This years tournament, the 11th annual sponsored by the Racquet Club, was highlighted by a record 32 entries.

The large number of entries, coupled with the record turnout for the Men's Intermediate Singles Championship, marks the steady increase of tennis at NSA. The successfully completed season of Women's Ladder play capped by their annual singles tournament on Sept. 23 closed the tennis year at the Agency. Results of other matches in the Men's Singles Championship:

First Round: Ken McCloskey d. Gary Klauminzer, 6-3, 6-4; Dave Fluetsch d. Dave Pasolli, 6-3, 0-6, 6-4; Bob Magnan d. Dick Neuman, 6-0, 6-1; George Fowler d. Robert Semon, 6-1, 6-2; Dave Walters d. Bill Brown, 6-1, 6-0; Dick Miller d. Jon Hebbhardt, 6-1, 6-2; Godfrey d. Pat Peterson, 6-2, 6-0; Hoshor d. Al Kubeluis, 6-0, 6-1; David Boak d. Dick O'Leary, 6-0, 6-0; Haig Tufenk d. Effective Communication Can Be the Key to Success

KING ACADEMY LEADERS—Members of the NSA Public Speaking Academy Executive Committee for 1967-68 are, left to right: Dick Yazel, secretary; Vivian Meyer, educational vice president; David Jones, administrative vice president; Leonard Irick, president; and Ed Langr, treasurer. Serving on the executive committee provides members an opportunity to exercise their leadership abilities.

One of the most important elements in many success stories is the art of persuasion. A man capable of communicating effectively is invaluable to his employers and to his community.

What enables a man to become a successful communicator? Many things—from personality to diction—contribute, but there are three fundamental requirements:

First, be a good listener. We can, of course, learn much from careful listening.

Second, be organized in your thinking. Illogical presentations lose listeners fast.

Third, develop the ability to speak with self-confidence. The members of the Public Speaking Academy believe that constant practice before an audience enables an individual to gain confidence in himself.

The Public Speaking Academy invites you to its next meeting, not to find out what you can do for speaking, but to find out what speaking can do for you. Meetings are held on the Tuesdays before civilian paydays at noon in Rm. 1N001-5.

MR. TOASTMASTER—Speaking Academy President Leonard Irick (left) introduces Dick Yazel, who served as toastmaster during a recent Academy meeting. Serving as toastmaster helps members learn the proper way to introduce speakers, and also teaches them some of the techniques used in conducting formal speaking programs.

BUSINESS SESSION—Club President Leonard Irick presides during a recent business session of the Speaking Academy. Brief business sessions are conducted at every meeting to give club officers and members an opportunity to learn correct parliamentary procedure.

NSA Bowling Association Notes

By Joe Bunda
President, NSA Bowling Association

ODDS AND ENDS Duckpins

Many duckpin bowlers wonder about the origin of the game and how it got its name. To the best of our knowledge, here is the story:

John McGraw, famous manager of the New York Giants, and Wilbert Robinson, catcher and manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who played for the old Baltimore Orioles in the early 1900's, were avid hunters and sportsmen. While looking for something to do between the baseball and hunting seasons, the two men came across some discarded, broken tenpin equipment.

After reshaping and refurbishing the tenpin equipment, McGraw and Robinson decided to make a go with the bowling business and opened a bowling establishment in Baltimore. This was the first duckpin house opened.

After restoring the cache of bowling equipment, the two men found that they had reduced the size of the pin; this meant that the size of the ball would also have to be reduced. But this was no longer tenpins, as such, and a new name for the game had to be found.

As the duck-hunting season approached, Wilbert Robinson, bowling the new game, commented, "Those pins flying in the air remind me of ducks in flight." Thus the name duckpins was born. The new name for the game stuck as duckpin bowling spread throughout the East Coast of the United States. In September, 1927, the name was officially adopted at the birth of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress.

The National Duckpin Tournament will return to Baltimore in 1968 for the first time since 1959. Fair Lanes' 40-lane establishment at Eastpoint will host this 38th annual championship tourney.

Tenpins

Some of our tenpin bowlers have inquired about the awards available from the American Bowling Congress for individual efforts. The American Congress lists their high-score awards as follows:

The Congress shall present an Award of Merit to the bowlers in each local association who have bowled the highest single game and the highest three-game total in sanctioned league or tournament play. Where the same local association member has bowled the highest single game and the highest three-game series, he will receive only one award, which will be engraved to carry both the high single game and the high three-game scores.

The single-game award of merit will only be provided in those local associations when no member has bowled a high score of 300, 299 or 298 during the season.

The Congress shall present to qualified members the following Special Awards:

- For bowling 11 strikes in a row in a game where the score is 297 or less.
- For converting the 7-10 split.
- For converting the 4-6-7-10 split.
- For bowling three consecutive games of the same score in a series.
- For bowling a three-game series totaling 700-799.
- For bowling 800 or better in a three-game series.
- For bowling 100 pins over average, providing the bowler's score does not qualify him for another ABC high-game award.

The WIBC gives similar awards to women bowlers, and the local bowling establishments gives house chevrons for various bowling feats.

Some bowlers have inquired as to what legally constitutes a split. According to the ABC Playing Rules, a split is a setup of pins remaining standing after the first ball has been legally delivered, provided the headpin is down and—

- At least one pin is down between two or more pins which remain standing, as for example, 7-9 or 3-10.
- At least one pin is down immediately ahead of two pins which remain standing, as for example, 5-6.

General Talk

As the 1967-68 bowling season gets underway, we would like to remind our fellow bowlers, old and new, of one very important facet of our game—courtesy on the lanes.

Whether you are a new bowler or an old veteran, one of the most important things to remember is to make the game fun for all, and courtesy is one of the ways that this can be accomplished.

If you don't know the rules of bowling courtesy, take time to learn them.

The NSA Bowling Association will feature notes of interest on tenpin and duckpin bowling each month. League officers are encouraged to enclose notes with their monthly reports to the Association or pass the information on to the members of the Executive Council.

Hands Across the Bridge Table By Tim Hollcroft

One of NSA's leading bridge players in total number of master points is Ray Fetzner, whose list of victories in national, regional, sectional, and local events is even longer than his beard.

The following hand occurred in the recent Washington Metropolitan Master Pairs contest and resulted in a top score for Fetzner and his partner.

6NT	P	P	P

Sitting South, Fetzner's three no trump response, a fairly recent Kaplan-Sheinwold innovation, indicated a strong spade raise. Blackwooding, North became unnecessarily frantic after West's double of five diamonds implied the king-jack of that suit plus an outside ace. Not realizing that a six-spade contract would be easy because two potential diamond losers could be discarded on the ace and queen of hearts, he tried six no trump so as to make the doubler lead.

Fetzner successfully ducked the opening lead of the club seven around to his singleton ten, a daring but necessary play.

Then he led spades and called for North's club king which lost to the ace while the diamond deuce was being discarded. It would have done West no good to duck, for he would then eventually have been end played. The club jack was returned.

After winning the club queen and the top hearts and all but one of the spades, Fetzner produced the following situation: Dummy was left with the diamond ace-nine and the club eight. Declarer held the diamond queen, spade four and heart seven. West, with his king-jack of diamonds and the club nine, was squeezed when the last spade was led.

Note that even if East had started with the diamond jack he would have been forced to unguard it here on the tenth trick to keep his heart ten. In other words, though this proved to be a simple squeeze, the play of the cards allowed for the possibility of a double squeeze.

Hey! If you want to try your luck against Ray Fetzner and other NSA bridge luminaries, get yourself a partner for the annual Championship Pairs Contest on Friday, Nov. 10, at Fort Meade's Service Club # 1, 7:30 p.m. Valuable prizes and master points will be awarded. Fort Meade and NSA employees or retirees (also relatives thereof) are eligible.

In case your favorite partner is unavailable, call Ted Leahy (Ext. 6173) and he will fix you up.

NSA Courtmen Lose to Department of Interior In Second-Half Finals

The NSA tennis team and the Department of Interior tennis team met head on in the second-half finals of the Inter-Departmental Tennis A League. Both teams had records of 30 wins and 5 losses. Interior won the second-half championship by defeating NSA in three of the four matches played. A fifth match was scheduled, but could not be completed because of darkness.

NSA, one of nine government teams playing in the inter-departmental league, finished in fifth place in the first half, with a record of 20-20.

Travel Club Plans All-Hawaiian Trip

An all-Hawaiian Carnival, which includes visits to the islands of Maui and Hawaii as well as Honolulu, has been arranged by the NSA Travel Club for Nov. 5-19. Arrangements cover transportation, accommodations, meals and sightseeing tours. Further information and reservations on the $699 trip may be obtained at the Travel Club desk, elevator alcove, first floor, Operations Bldg., Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, 11 a.m.-noon, and Tuesdays and Thursdays, noon-1 p.m.

The Travel Club has recently been re-activated to plan trips for Agency personnel and their families. Ideas and assistance will be welcomed by the club officers. Visit them at the Travel Club desk.
