'Zero Trust' architecture could prevent adversary data theft, protect warfighters

Without the right level and right kind of cybersecurity architecture in place, adversary nations will continue to infiltrate U.S. military and partner networks, including contractors within the defense industrial base, and steal important information, which may include details on weapons systems.

Employers looking to recruit best of the best

Soldiers meet representatives from the Tulsa Police Department, who traveled from Oklahoma to be at Nutter Field House Feb. 27 for the chance to recruit service members leaving the military and looking for civilian careers. Their table was one of more than 50 at the career and education fair organized by the Transition Assistance Program and Education Services Division. A variety of career fields were represented, such as healthcare, transportation, security, environmental and law enforcement. The next career fair is set for May 22 at the Pershing Community Center.
