167AW WING COMMAND CHIEF
Command Chief Master Sgt. Mark Snyder

Team 167th,

The Outstanding Airmen of the Year ceremony Saturday was a great opportunity to recognize three of the finest Airmen in the 167th. I am a firm believer that the 167th has some of the best Airmen in the air force and that every Airman contributes to the success of our strategic airlift mission, regardless of their AFSC.

The 167th is currently #1 for manning out of the entire Air National Guard which consists of ninety wings. Our recruiters have the luxury of being more selective than many units which inherently gives us the advantage in quality Airmen from the start. Adding to this, our unit has also earned a top reputation throughout the air force which leads to retention since members want to be a part of a winning team. Our retention of talent results in experienced Chiefs throughout the wing. With this cycle of recruiting quality Airmen and retaining them through the rank of CMSgt, it is hard to go wrong in the middle.

Airmen in the 167th contribute to our strategic airlift mission in many ways. One way that is easy to overlook is the role Airmen play in upholding high standards. Officers and commanders often feel it is their responsibility to set high standards but that is also true for Airmen. I assure you, when Airmen are setting a high standard, it holds officers and commanders more accountable.

Last month I had the opportunity to brief at our Newcomers Orientation. I randomly picked members and asked them what section they are working in. I then explained to them how they tie in to successfully accomplishing our worldwide mission. I wasn't stumped by any sections, and I don't anticipate being stumped in future Newcomers Orientation briefings. I know that our Airmen are contributing to mission success, from the salute at the gate, through the salute as an aircraft is marshalled out for a flight.

Congratulations to all of our outstanding Airmen. Keep setting a high standard and contributing to our unit's mission success.

Very respectfully,
Sig

Team 167,

This UTA was brought in with some rain and more rain. That didn't stop us from celebrating our 2025 Outstanding Airmen of the Year. Here are a few (but not all) of their accomplishments: In our AMN category winner, A1C Tyler Barney was an interim scheduler and coordinated a multitude of operational missions, local training missions, and over 500 simulator events. He managed 1,740 training days and $235K in travel funds. As a loadmaster he flew 186 hours on 62 sorties and contributed to operations FREEDOM'S SENTINEL and INHERENT RESOLVE. In the NCO category, MSgt (then TSgt) Alex Barb, was the WV ANG rep for SECAF's international affair office and played a key role in diplomatic relations with our new State Partner Gabon. He advocated for E-6 and below ranks for the career enlisted aviator grade review which secured appropriate rank structures for 2,900 aviators. He was also a key stake holder in the Ops Group's $10.5 Million maintenance operations project. He also participated in numerous operational missions and exercises. Finally, in our SNCO category, MSgt Sara Church had dual roles as a services superintendent and installation personnel readiness NCOIC. She processed 314 members for critical missions while leading a flight of 25 Airmen. Sara played a vital role in personnel readiness by verifying eligibility for 336 members and issuing 175 deployment orders while streamlining processes for the 2024 Sentry Unicorn REV. She also oversaw $20k in DFAC repairs and spearheaded a cashless DFAC transition all while managing a $114K lodging budget and saving the unit $15K sourcing MRE's. All of our winners also supported their fellow Airmen and their community in various ways throughout the year. Congratulations winners and keep up the great work!

Last week the wing had a great opportunity to meet one of the first 167th Aeromedical Evacuation (AE) airmen. Janet Hughes joined the wing in 1958 and served for four years. She was an inspiration on many levels. She currently holds the World Record in the 800m and one mile. She set those aged based records at age 85 running the mile in nine minutes. She was excited to be here and see all the changes, but the wing was equally excited to host her. A photo of her and the original AE personnel is in the heritage room in Bld 120.

Finally, I want to congratulate SMSgt Michael Seavolt from the Security Forces Squadron, who was recently promoted to SMSgt. I also want to give a big congrats to Lt Col Kevin Marmillion from the Operations Group and TSgt Rebekah Duvall from MSG on their retirements after decades of service..

As we move into spring, take time to soak in some time outside in the sun and enjoy friends and family, but always remember to #FearTheUnicorn!

167th Airlift Wing's Outstanding Airmen of the Year recognized during ceremony

by Senior Master Sgt. Emily Beightol-Deyerle

The 167th Airlift Wing's Outstanding Airmen of the Year were recognized during a ceremony in the wing's dining facility, May 3.

The Outstanding Airman of the Year award program recognizes Airmen for their superior leadership, job performance, personal achievement and community involvement.

Airman 1st Class Tyler Barney, 167th Airlift Squadron, Master Sgt. Alex Barb, 167th Operations Support Squadron and Master Sgt. Sara Church, 167th Force Support Squadron were honored as the top Airman, Non-commissioned Officer and Senior Non-commissioned Officer, respectively for the wing. Barney and Barb were also recognized as the Outstanding Airmen of the Year in their categories for the West Virginia Air National Guard.

"In this wing specifically, we have exceptional Airmen and it's especially challenging to be selected for Airman of the Year," said Col. Christopher Sigler, 167th AW commander. "When you have strong Airmen coming into the wing and a strong chief force mentoring the young Airmen, it's a great dynamic and we have a winning team."

Airman 1st Class Barney's accomplishments include the coordination of 25 operational missions, 116 local training missions and over 500 simulator events while serving as an interim operations scheduler. As a loadmaster, he flew 186 hours on 62 sorties, transporting 236 tons of cargo and 226 passengers, playing a critical role in high impact operational missions.

Recently promoted to master sergeant, Barb was the West Virginia Air National Guard's representative for the Secretary of the Air Force's international affairs office and played a key role in the diplomatic relations with Gabon, West Virginia National Guard's newest State Partnership Program partner. Additionally, he advocated for the ranks of E-6 and below for the career enlisted aviator grade review which secured appropriate rank structures for 2,900 aviators.

Master Sgt. Church, who is currently serving overseas, was recognized for outstanding leadership and operational efficiency in her dual role as the services superintendent and installation personnel readiness non-commissioned officer in charge. She processed more than 300 members for critical missions while leading a flight of 25 Airmen. She oversaw wing dining facility repairs and upgrades and managed the lodging budget, securing accommodations for 1,300 personnel.

"Airmen, you're upholding the standard of professionalism," Sigler said, "and you set a high bar. Thank you for all you do to support the mission." 🐎

Airman SPOTLIGHT

Name:

Tech. Sgt. Whitney Robinson

Hometown:

Bunker Hill, W.Va.

Job Title:

Personnel Specialist

U.S. Air Force Tech. Sgt. Whitney Robinson is a personnel specialist for the 167th Force Support Squadron and the 167th Airlift Wing Airman Spotlight for May 2025.

As a personnel specialist, Robinson is responsible for assisting Airmen with various personnel activities from reenlistment to retirement and everything in between. She conducts in and out processing, unit deployment management duties and customer service functions.

Robinson's supervisor, Master Sgt. Ricky Miller, said Robinson plays a pivotal role in the personnel function's success.

"Over the last couple months, Tech. Sgt. Robinson has really stood out to me as our unit deployment manager (UDM) and as a full-time member of the Force Support Squadron," Miller said.

As UDM, Robinson recently prepared 13 members of the force support squadron with their readiness and out-processing for deployment, while she also completed the non-commissioned officer academy course.

"Tech. Sgt. Robinson sets a great example across the wing with her willingness to help, can-do attitude, and top-notch customer service," said Miller. "She is always willing to share her innovative ideas with leadership, that have proven successful both in customer service and personnel duty processes. She is highly motivated and paving a great path for our FSS airmen to follow."

Hometown: Bunker Hill, WV

Job Title: Personnel Systems Manager/Unit Deployment Manager/Customer Service Personnel

How long have you served in the unit? I have been with FSS for about a year and a half.

My job here is important because: I assist in being the link to your entire military story. We are the last you see before heading to basic training, one of the first you see when you return. We handle your enlistments, your awards, your DD214s, your performance briefs/reports, your promotions, your separations, your retirements. We make sure that the story of your career is on paper, and you receive the benefits you're entitled to. We are supporting the mission by supporting the individual members. I had no idea before I cross-trained how para-mount FSS is, and I am so proud to be here.

Civilian job: AGR in FSS as a Personnelist

Education: Bachelor's Degree in Business Administration

Hobbies: Recreational for FUN sports, I tend to get a little too competitive either way though. I love reading and have started a book club on base, if you're interested shoot me an email. I mostly enjoy spending time outside with my family.

Goals (military and/or civilian): My ultimate goal is to retire at CMSgt, I am still debating whether I want that to be at NGB or with the 167th. I suppose I'll let opportunity choose but I'll be making short term goals that lead to Chief until then.

I am proudest of: My family who has not only supported but encouraged my service. I was blessed with parents that provided this support, and I chose the most incredible husband as well. My daughter makes me more proud by the moment as well. I am thankful and at times undeserving, they are what keeps me going.

People may be surprised to know this about me: I may or may not have an incredible karaoke rendition of "I Wanna Dance with Somebody" by Whitney Houston at my disposal....at all times.

The most exciting thing I've done in the military is: I performed CPR on a cardiac arrest patient in Arizona while on orders and he ended up surviving. I still think about it to this day, shout out to medical.

One/Some of the most valuable lessons I've learned throughout my career: If you can't make a change to the culture, be the change to the culture. Accountability is one of the most important and honorable characteristics you can have. When you help your fellow airmen, they don't forget you when you need a hand.

My advice to the newest Airmen in the Wing: Take every opportunity you hear about, it may put a wrench in your plans but the stories, friends, and experiences you gain could change what you want to be when you grow up. I put off my degree, missed birthdays, felt homesick, etc., now I have my degree, a wealth of knowledge and experience, and a home in friends all over the world.

The best thing about working with my team is: We are a team that collaborates, encourages, and has compassion for each other. I could be having a terrible day and the next hour I am laughing to the point of tears. We work hard and show up for each other.

Electrical Safety Around Water

To stay safe around pools, hot tubs, and spas:

- Hire a qualified electrician for safe wiring.
- Use covered outdoor outlets to keep them dry.
- Install and test Ground-Fault Circuit Interrupters (GFCIs) monthly to prevent shocks.
- Keep electrical devices at least 6 feet from water—opt for battery-powered items when possible.
- Never handle electrical devices while wet.
- Ensure power lines are safely positioned over pools and diving boards.
- Stay out of the water during storms.
- Schedule regular electrical inspections.
- Know how to shut off power in emergencies.

Electrocution is deadly, and wet skin or surfaces increase the risk. Signs of electrical shock in water include tingling, muscle cramps, and paralysis. If someone is being shocked, turn off the power but do not enter the water—use a non-conductive rescue tool and call 9-1-1 immediately.

Shelter-in-place (SIP) / Lockdown / Storm Shelter

Shelter-in-Place - Use Designated SIP location

- Use: Hazmat and CBRN shelter up to 3 hours. Protects personnel from heavier vapors that accumulate at lowest elevation (ex. Chlorine gas).
- Recommended location: Room on the highest floor of the building with limited windows

Lockdown

- Use: Active Shooter incident
- Recommended location: An enclosed room with lockable door and covered windows is ideal.

Storm Shelter - Use designated location

- Use: Protection in severe weather (ex. Tornado).
- Recommended location: Lowest floor, innermost room with limited windows/bay doors.

Antiterrorism & Force Protection - Travel Security

submitted by Maj. Roderick Toms

These tips address travel security. One time when complacency can get us in trouble is when we travel. Here are a few tips that will increase your security the next time you go TDY, leave, or PCS to an OCONUS location.

- Avoid using military style bags such as A-3, B-4 or duffel bags, unless traveling Military Air.
- Remove all military logos, patches and stickers from your luggage.
- Ensure your luggage tag doesn't show your rank or military address.
- Travel in conservative civilian clothing when using commercial transportation or when traveling military airlift if you are connecting with a flight at a commercial terminal in a high risk area.
- Don't wear distinct military items such as organizational shirts, caps or issued shoes or glasses.
- Wear a long sleeved shirt if you have a visible U.S. affiliated tattoo.
- Remember to be aware of your surroundings, be suspicious and don't become the target.
- Do not use rank or duty title when registering in a hotel (if possible)
- If staying in same hotel for extended period of time, try to change rooms
- Try to get a room on the 2nd to 6th floors
- Ensure room is locked and valuables are secured (e.g., safe, take them with you)

REMEMBER: Antiterrorism and Force Protection is EVERYONE'S job.

The 167th Airlift Wing Antiterrorism Officer is Maj. Roderick Toms, 242-5084.
