BGAD excels at Large-Scale Combat Operations exercise

RICHMOND, Ky. – Forklifts weaved in and out seamlessly, moving in unison, as Blue Grass Army Depot employees worked as a team during the depot's recent Transportation Engineering Agency Ammunition Deployment Study, part of the Joint Mmunition Command Outload Exercise at BGAD. The event was a large-scale combat operations exercise simulating munition distribution leading up to or during an all-out war. These exercises are crucial for preparing the Army for modern conflicts involving large, technologically advanced forces.

DOD SkillBridge Program fuels TDAAP workforce

REDSTONE ARSENAL, Ala. – As the DOD prioritizes service member readiness and long-term force sustainment, a strategic alignment is taking shape: the integration of terminals, depots, arsenals, activities and plants into the DOD SkillBridge Program. This initiative represents a powerful synergy of talent development, transition assistance and maintaining a robust national defense. Army Materiel Command stresses workforce development and recognizes SkillBridge's importance to mitigate staffing gaps and modernize the TDAAP workforce.

Sustaining the Army's legacy at 250 years

ROCK ISLAND ARSENAL, Ill. – As the Army celebrates its 250th birthday, it reflects on a legacy of resilience, innovation and commitment to national defense. Brig. Gen. John "Brad" Hinson, commanding general of Army Sustainment Command, embodies these principles through his leadership in sustainment operations, ensuring the warfighter remains ready for the future.

And the Culinary Outpost goes rolling along

CAMP HUMPHREYS, South Korea – Camp Humphreys just got a new takeout spot for breakfast and lunch, and the best part is: the food comes to you. As part of an Army-wide initiative to modernize its food service program, Eighth Army celebrated the grand opening of the Culinary Outpost food truck June 9. "This is a morale booster for our warfighters," Chief Warrant Officer 2 Darien Greene, 1st Signal Brigade Culinary Outpost officer in charge, said as he kicked off the event. "It's a reminder that even the smallest innovations can make the biggest impacts."

RIA-JMTC secures fuel hoses for critical power systems

ROCK ISLAND ARSENAL, Ill. – Rock Island Arsenal-Joint Manufacturing and Technology Center has proactively secured the supplies necessary to assemble specialized fuel hoses and provided them in support of the Battle Damage Repair and Fabrication process, ultimately mitigating lengthy delays for units at the point of need. "We're identifying and resolving readiness issues directly, leveraging our unique manufacturing and logistical capabilities to get critical BDRF parts into the hands of our warfighters," said Col. David Guida, RIA-JMTC commander.
