This Week in History: July 8, 1957

On July 8, 1957, USS Gudgeon (SS 567) departed Pearl Harbor to begin an 8-month journey to become the first American submarine to circumnavigate the globe. After exercises at Yokosuka, Gudgeon sailed west and docked at Asian, African and European ports before a triumphal return to Pearl Harbor on Feb. 21, 1958. In eight months, the submarine and her crew would cover over 25,000 miles. Photo: USS Gudgeon's return to Pearl Harbor following her historic cruise.
