MESSAGE FROM THE COMMANDING GENERAL

Columbus Day marks the anniversary of the discovery of our great nation and the celebration of a spirit of adventure, exploration and accomplishments of a perilous mission. Traditionally, we celebrate this holiday with ceremonies like parades befitting the anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America. Likewise, Soldiers, Families and Civilians celebrate the holiday by taking time out from our busy schedules to enjoy the long weekend with Family and friends.

As we enjoy our time off and celebrate, we must also take the necessary safety precautions to ensure we return to work safely. We must all be mindful of the increased risks of alcohol-related incidents, individual and group misconduct, reduced daylight hours and decreasing temperatures. If you walk or ride a bicycle or motorcycle after dark, wear reflective clothing. Trips should be planned to minimize travel in darkness. Whether riding on two or four wheels get plenty of rest prior to your travels and plan adequate rest stops.

Safety must always be a top priority. Every member of the USASMDC/ARSTRAT Family is a precious resource without whom our mission cannot be accomplished. Set the example by looking out for your "buddies," whether they are friends, Family or colleagues. Success can be ensured by the commitment of all personnel to do the right things when it comes to safety and to look out for each other's well being.

With a team effort, we can celebrate and enjoy this Columbus Day Holiday without loss of life, serious injuries or alcohol related offenses.

"SECURE THE HIGH GROUND"
— Kevin T. Campbell, Lieutenant General, USA, Commanding

THANK YOU

Values and customs in the Marshall Islands are known as manit. Manit Day or Lutok Kobban Alele is to promote and preserve the Marshallese culture and traditions. On behalf of the Marshallese Cultural Center/Society members, we would like to thank everyone who participated in the Mani Day celebration on Kwajalein. We are deeply grateful to everyone who helped bring Mani Day to life. It was truly a community event with local talent, local food, local volunteers and a mostly local audience. Mani Day brought together people, as we witnessed the power of communities working together in experiencing and teaching our younger generations and those who never witnessed Marshallese manit, the opportunity to experience the taste of local foods, the feel of weaving palm fronds, the sound of local music and the mutual respect for each other's culture.

There is not enough space here to thank everyone who deserves it, so simply put, Mani Day would not have been possible without all of you. Komol Tata for making this event possible.

— Pam Duffy-Kabua, Marshallese Culture Center/Society, President

KRS Ri'katak Lunch Program Needs Your Continuing Support

KRS provides lunch meals for 51 guest students from Ebeye (Ri'katak Lunch Program) since they do not have the opportunity to return home as the island resident students do. These meals are not provided as part of the contract, but rather they are supported by voluntary donations.

Individuals, companies and different organizations may voluntarily contribute to the program to ensure that Ri'katak students have a nutritious meal for lunch. The box lunches include deli sandwiches, baked chicken and rice, fruit, vegetables, water and cookies. All of the lunches are prepared by Café Pacific and are delivered to the schools.

The cost of each lunch for School Year 2010-2011 is $3.25 daily per student and based on a 180-day school year, the total cost per student for the entire academic year is $586.

Voluntary donations can be made in any amount up to and including a full year's worth of lunches. Anyone wishing to support this worthwhile cause may send a donation to Janette Bishop in Building 702 (KRS Corporate Office/Finance/Travel). Checks should be made out to "KRS" and annotated in the remarks section to indicate "Ri'katak Lunch Program."

THE KWAJALEIN HOURGLASS

The Kwajalein Hourglass is named for the insignia of the U.S. Army 7th Infantry Division, which liberated the island from the forces of Imperial Japan on Feb. 4, 1944.

The Kwajalein Hourglass is an authorized publication for military personnel, federal employees, contractor workers and their families assigned to U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll. Contents of The Hourglass are not necessarily official views of, or endorsed by, the U.S. Government, Department of Defense, Department of the Army or USAKA. It is published Saturdays in accordance with Army Regulation 360-1 and using a network printer by Kwajalein Range Services editorial staff.

Fire Prevention Week on Kwajalein

Each grade at George Seitz Elementary School was visited by two firefighters that spoke to them about the importance of smoke alarms, how they sound and what to do. Sparky then showed up with goodie bags and plenty of hugs to go around. Each grade was given a poster challenge. The kids at the Child Development Center were taught to the technique of "Stop, Drop and Roll" by the firefighters. They also played a game of "What is Hot, and What is Not." Of course, Sparky made his appearance and handed out fire hats and goodie bags. There was a surprise fire drill at the high school; they didn't know then but they were actually being timed. The classroom that exited to their proper destination and were accounted for first will receive a pizza lunch with the firefighters. The classroom winner will be announced tonight at the Fire Prevention Week Finale.

COL Shanahan, COL Jones tour operations on Roi-Namur, Kwajalein

Within the first 90 days of taking command, units within the Space and Missile Defense Command conduct a command inspection of all departments and operations. With COL Joseph Gaines coming up close to his 90 day mark here at U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll, an inspection team arrived Tuesday to perform the examination of departments on both Kwajalein and Roi-Namur.

COL Daniel Shanahan, Chief of Staff, U.S. Army Space and Missile Defense Command/Army Forces Strategic Command, and COL Harvey Jones, Deputy Chief of Staff for Engineering, SMDC/ARSTRAT, led the inspection team and toured facilities at both Kwajalein and Roi-Namur.

Shanahan toured Roi-Namur on Wednesday and was given an aerial tour of the west reef. Accompanying him were LTC John Eggert, RTS Director, Mike Sakaio, Host Nations Representative, and Dr. Timothy Hall from MIT. Hall pointed out the deep water pass through Ninni and Gia; he explained that is where ships come through when going to Kwajalein. Hall then explained the various telemetry and optics sensors and instrumentation on the various islands. Hall discussed the capabilities and maintenance of each system; Shanahan commented that it looked as though the equipment was well-maintained. Hall explained the radio frequency hazard posed by the radars on Roi-Namur, especially while flying, and went over the procedures and precautions taken to keep workers and passengers safe. Hall also discussed which outer islands were inhabited and how many Marshallese live on each. He explained procedures for clearing the islands in the mid-atoll corridor before any missions. Eggert disclosed that RTS performs 6-8 missions per year. "That may not sound like much," Eggert explained, "but these are one-of-a-kind missions that the Nation invests millions of dollars executing."

Once landed on Roi, Dan Eggers joined the group and Shanahan was given an extensive tour of Roi's facilities and operations. The first tour was given by Deb Chilcote at the waste water treatment plant. Chilcote went through operations on how they treat the water and also showed Shanahan the pumps outside and what the harsh Pacific environment can do to equipment; there was plenty of rust as evidence. Shanahan was shown the breakwater at the end of the island where the waste water discharge is. While there he witnessed the wave damage done in December 2008 and some of the interim repairs to protect the shoreline.

Shanahan was shown the Japanese historical sites from World War II. He was impressed with how well they are preserved today. He was also amazed at the palm trees still standing, even with chucks taken out by bombs over 60 years ago.

Next, the group toured the water plant. Greg Heffner went through the process from beginning to end. He took them inside the plant and showed them the equipment while also explaining operations of each. He discussed how they meet Environmental Protection Agency standards and requirements. He informed them on how they balance the pH and remove microbes from the water.

Scott Maddox, power plant Supervisor, and George Wise, Lead Operator, gave Shanahan a tour of the power plant. They discussed how much energy is used on island and in particular how much energy the radars use, especially ALTAIR. Hall gave Shanahan some background on alternative energy sources that have been looked into and might be a possibility for Kwajalein and Roi to save on energy costs.

Shanahan was treated to a special visit to Enniburr Islet. He was met by Julius Lejjena, RMI Enniburr representative, who provided them with a tour of the island. He was shown the PACOM-funded projects; the new water storage facility, solar panels for the dispensary and the burn pit. Lejjena showed the group the school and explained how their elementary school system works. They toured the classroom under construction that will eventually be powered by solar panels provided by the 2009 Pacific Partnership. After touring the water catchments, Shanahan was shown the Japanese-built power plant that still stands on island. Lejjena told the story that when Roi was being bombed during WWII, the Americans didn't understand why the lights were still on; it was because they received power from the plant on Enniburr. Shanahan was again impressed with how well-preserved the structure was.

To end his tour on Enniburr, Shanahan joined a group of Marshallese youth playing baseball. About 25 children ran out into the field as Shanahan motioned for them to play with him. Shanahan pitched the ball and was delighted at how well the first player hit. After pitching a few more times, he and his team switched and went up to bat. His first attempt was a strike, but he hit the ball solid on the second throw and just barely made it to first. The children were thrilled; they were laughing and enjoying the game.

Shanahan and the group headed back to Roi and enjoyed lunch at Café Roi. After lunch Shanahan finished his trip with a visit to the fuel pier and then to four radars; ALTAIR, MMW, ALCOR and TRADEX. He was again shown the operational components of each location.

To conclude the visit this week, COL Shanahan toured key infrastructure sites at Kwajalein. Joe Moscone, USAKA Deputy to the Commander, escorted him to a broad range of resourcing, including the installation power plant, water treatment, sewage, airfield, hospital and Marshallese Cultural Center. He also toured a sampling of housing units, viewing renovation requirements. Dave Norwood, KRS President, provided background on facility planning and future projects. COL Shanahan echoed what most visitors to USAKA say when touring the sites, "You can't get a true feel of the requirements through an E-mail or chart. I'm glad I viewed these areas firsthand and in person.

Both Shanahan and Jones provided an out-brief on their tours to USAKA staff Friday morning and departed that afternoon.

Deb Chilcote shows the waste water treatment operations to COL Daniel Shanahan Wednesday on Roi-Namur.

USAKA will receive upgrades to the oak distance signs located outside building 901. These upgrades are a result of a School Service Project led by Doug Hepler. Left to right, Eric Tiffany, Dustin Bonham, CW4 Peter Dancy and Danielle Rivera. David Sholar, although not pictured can also be credited for significant contributions to this project. A School Service Project is a precursor for membership to the National Honor Society. Hard work and smarts equals successful students. A job well done through teamwork.

Oktoberfest on Roi

Roi residents kicked off their Oktoberfest celebration at 6 p.m. Sunday with plenty of good food, provided by Café Roi. There were fresh baked pretzels with three different kinds of mustard, potato pancakes with sour cream, sausages and sauerkraut, wiener schnitzel with applesauce and black forest cupcakes.

There were Oktoberfest wearables for those who desired them; paper vests, plastic alpine hats, garter style armbands and small steins on a beaded necklace were provided.

The chicken dance contest had eight persons participating. Shelly Easter was the grand prize winner. She won the chicken hat that is Stephens head in the photo to the right.

With nine different types of German beer and some really great Oompa music, the party went until the small hours of the morning. Danielle DiKissere printed up a nifty little tasting guide for the beers, detailing each type of beer and its' particulars. A nice touch.

Manit Day is opportunity to celebrate, display, share Marshallese traditions

Article and photos by Sheila Bigelow

Manit Day has been celebrated on Kwajalein since 1998 when the Marshallese Cultural Center opened. The event is sponsored by the Marshallese Cultural Society with volunteers by several other organizations including the Marshall Islands Club at Kwajalein high school, Ri'katak students and the Jine Tip Tip Marshallese Women's Club; they all assisted with the planning and the execution of Manit Day on Monday at the Cultural Center.

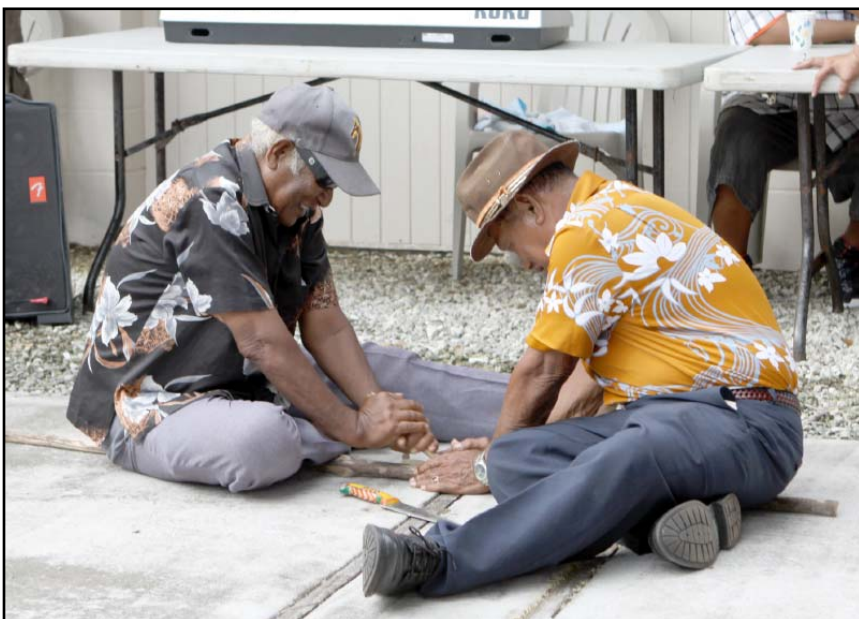

Mike Sakaio greeted the community and thanked them for attending. "We are happy you are here and we're happy you were able to take time out of your schedules to help us celebrate this Marshallese special day. I would also like to thank our neighbors on Ebeye for coming down and sharing with us their customs and their traditions. As you'll witness today they'll be showcasing a lot of their customs, their cultures through the different activities that they'll do. Although that does not fully show the extent of the culture, you will get a taste of what it is like...to learn their traditions in some form or fashion."

Ato Langkio began the day with a prayer.

COL Joseph Gaines greeted the community and thanked them for coming out to help celebrate Manit Day, or also known as 'Cultural/Custom Day.' "I want to thank both the Marshallese community and the U.S. community for participating in this great event." Gaines took a moment to recognize some distinguished visitors that attended and the traditional leaders of the Marshall Islands that allowed this event to be possible. Gaines gave special thanks to Pam Duffy-Kabua, president of the Marshallese Cultural Society, who put in a lot of work to make Mani Day happen this year. Gaines thanked our Ebeye neighbors for coming and sharing their talents and art and thanked the Ri'katak students from Kwajalein schools for their entertainment.

Jelton Anjain, RMI representative to USAKA, took the podium and thanked the Kwajalein traditional leaders and all the groups that volunteered time and effort for the day.

Pam Duffy-Kabua spoke to the community first in Marshallese and then in English. Kabua thanked all Iroi's of Kwajalein Atoll and the traditional leaders. "Mani is actually theirs (Iroi's and leaders) and if they didn't grant this to happen, it wouldn't have happened; all these people are the backbones of [Mani] you see here today. It's actually an honor for us to be able to witness Marshallese tradition at work right now. The Marshallese Mani is sort of in a way like a secret society; people don't just show you their culture or their traditional medicine making because it was the trade of the day. So for them to do this, we're very honored."

Lastly, Jesse Riketa, representative for Kwajalein traditional leaders, took the podium to say a few words. Riketa spoke of how important Mani Day is, not only to the Marshallese, but to those that are present and able to learn Marshallese culture and tradition. Days like these help to enhance the already strong bond of mutual understanding and friendship between the Marshallese and American communities, he said. "We can accomplish good things together," he said, "with mutual respect, cooperation and most importantly, trust."

At that time, the elementary Ri'katak students took the main stage, (grassy field in front of Cultural Center) ready to entertain. The dance took numerous hours and bounds of energy to learn; and it sure paid off. In matching outfits, the students danced together and showcased how beautiful Marshallese dance is. At the end of their number they got a loud cheer from the crowd when two of the youngest boys stepped out for a solo dance.

Next up was the high school Ri'katak and Marshall Islands Club students. In their first number, one dancer used a whistle to signal a change in step to their next dance. The girls were beautiful and the boys were graceful. After their first number, all the students stepped into the crowd and grabbed an audience member to come on stage and learn the dance with them. USAKA staff, parents and friends both Marshallese and American joined together and had a blast amusing the audience with their dance moves.

After the dances, the booths were opened and participants were invited to walk around and enjoy all the activities Mani Day had to offer.

Under one tent, Marshallese women were weaving baskets and mats, using pandanus and coconut leaves. People stood in line anxious to get a look at all the handicrafts made. In the same tent, a demonstration was set up with information about the traditional medicinal plants of the Marshall Islands. There were photos and diagrams of some, and others were brought to Mani Day to showcase. There was information on everything from small to big trees to herbs, vines, creepers, grasses, ferns and fungi.

The Jine Tip Tip Club Marshallese Women's Club was serving samples of traditional Marshallese food. There was also a coconut husking station where you could husk the coconut yourself and then open it to drink the milk and eat the sweet meat. Families were welcomed and parents and older siblings helped the young ones so they could have a treat too.

Nijan Joseph and Ato Langkio did a Marshallese firemaking demonstration. Soon there was a large crowd around them and they watched patiently as the men worked. Soon they saw smoke and a loud cry came when they finally made fire. It was interesting and entertaining to see.

Visitors were also welcomed to tour the Marshallese Cultural Center which was filled with exhibits, photograph collections and artifacts of Marshallese history. Outside, music was provided by the Mon la Mike Band.

Mani Day is not just a cherished day for the Marshallese, but also for the American communities that get to experience and learn about their fascinating neighbors.

To the Marshallese resident from Bigej Island that returned the wallet of a Kwajalein resident when their boat capsized weeks ago; the wallet washed up on the shores of Bigej and the helpful resident dropped it at the DSC anonymously with all items secured. Kommol tata!

NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY

USAKA Draft Document of Environmental Protection for Cultural Resources

The U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll (USAKA) Environmental Standards require that the operating parameters of USAKA activities, with the potential to affect the public health and environment, must be defined in a Document of Environmental Protection (DEP). The Standards further provide that regulatory agencies and the public be allowed to review and comment on a Draft DEP.

The Draft DEP for Cultural Resources, August 2010, provides guidelines for cultural resource protection during ongoing operations, maintenance, and mission activities at USAKA and the Ronald Reagan Ballistic Missile Defense Test Site (RTS). This document focuses on guidelines for cultural resource consultation procedures.

The public is invited to review and comment on this Draft DEP. The Draft DEP and the USAKA Environmental Standards are available for review at the Grace Sherwood Library, the Roi-Namur Library, and the Alele Museum and Library. Questions regarding the Draft DEP can be directed to: Mr. Anthony Hoover, Environmental Management Office, USAKA, (805) 355-5449. Written comments can be directed to:

Commander:
U. S. Army Kwajalein Atoll
SMDC-RDTC-TEK-W (A. Hoover)
P.O. Box 26
APO, AP 96555-2526

A period of at least 30 days will be provided for public comment. Comments should be postmarked no later than November 8, 2010.
