Friendly Army/Navy competition builds strong bonds

As a proud member of the United States Army, as well as a member of the Long Gray Line, I would like to extend my congratulations to the Navy and the Naval Academy on their victory several weeks ago. It was a hard-fought, well-earned victory.

Our friendly rivalry offers some great entertainment for those who never served in either the Army or Navy. From the plastering of signs proclaiming an imminent beat down in front of Col. Reed's and John Pickler's offices to the hijacking of official government equipment in order to broadcast unofficial announcements (by the way, a bill with a load factor is forthcoming), the spirit of the rivalry is truly one-of-kind.

Also, I am sure there are many who do not really care.

In all this, there are some salient points I would like to share. First, the young men who play for Army and Navy will almost certainly never play professionally. In fact, only three Navy players (and no Army players) have ever played football in the NFL. They play for the love of the game and nothing more. Most, if not all, will find themselves in Southwest Asia in the next few years fighting a foe that is much more dangerous. But in the interim, they play a game that teaches them leadership, discipline and, most importantly, the pain of loss. Second, the rivalry is not about winning or losing championships. Neither team will ever compete for a national championship in the future. It is about building bonds through fierce but friendly competition. As you can tell from the island shenanigans, men and women well into their middle age are willing to act like giddy teenagers just to get the goat (no pun intended) of their rival. Finally, while the Army-Navy game is played by members of the Military and Naval Academies, it is really an event that advertises the fact that we have young men and women, officers and enlisted, serving in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, and Coast Guard across the globe, standing watch for us in very dangerous places, willingly sacrificing themselves for the principles our country holds dear.

In closing, I would like to share with you a quote from General of the Army Douglas MacArthur that best encapsulates why this game represents such an important place in the hearts of those of us who value this particular rivalry: "Upon the fields of friendly strife are sown the seeds that, upon other fields, on other days, will bear the fruits of victory."

USAKA

Person of the Week

Johnson is a Recreation Aide at the Corlett Recreation Center, and while he has always done a very good job, he has done an incredible job during his supervisor's home leave absence. Johnson has been in charge of the CRC/CAC operations, theater scheduling and staffing, and ARC for the past month. One key duty he is responsible for is the reservations for tables, tents and chairs. This is not an easy task, and it's very important to the customers who request this service. Johnson's customer service skills are excellent, and his accuracy and dependability are stellar. He takes ownership in his work and makes sure reservation requirements are met, including carefully adjusting reservations so as many people as possible can use the equipment during busy times. Additionally, Johnson works at the CRC/CAC daily and makes sure all preparations are made for meetings and room reservations. Johnson is extremely pleasant to work with and his enthusiastic and helpful demeanor with the customers is greatly appreciated.

In Memoriam

Justin deBrum

The Honorable Senator Justin deBrum died Monday in Majuro of an apparent heart attack. deBrum had close connections to the Kwajalein community as he was a former Republic of the Marshall Islands Representative to the U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll and was currently serving as one of the three Senators from Kwajalein Atoll. In his long career with the RMI government, deBrum served as a Senator from Ujae, the Minister of Education as well as the Kwajalein Negotiation Commission Secretary. He is survived by his wife, Miriam, eight children and 12 grandchildren. His presence will be sorely missed by all.

THE KWAJALEIN HOURLASS

The Kwajalein Hourglass is named for the insignia of the U.S. Army 7th Infantry Division, which liberated the island from the forces of Imperial Japan on Feb. 4, 1944.

The Kwajalein Hourglass is an authorized publication for military personnel, federal employees, contractor workers and their families assigned to U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll. Contents of the Hourglass are not necessarily official views of,

Season's greetings

Christmas drops bring cheer to Ebaddon, Majetto

By Lee Craker

The women of the Yokwe Yuk Women's Club Christmas Drop program spent an afternoon last week checking their lists, going over them twice, and now know, without a doubt, who of the children of Ebaddon and Majetto have been naughty or nice. The good news is that no naughty children were found.

On Thursday two helicopters loaded with toys departed Kwajalein for Ebaddon and Majetto, the furthest and most remote of the islands in the Kwajalein Atoll, bringing Christmas goodies to these children. This journey of goodwill and Christmas cheer was a joint effort of the U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll and the YYWC.

As the helicopters landed the people of the island gathered in a central area, the school grounds. The women had leis to hang around the necks of the volunteers, and the children were waiting, each holding a shell to give as a simple, but precious gift.

YYWC and USAKA volunteers lined up the children by age, and passed out the gifts, then passed out fruit and rice to the adults in the communities.

"All the children received a T-shirt, flip-flops, underwear, toothbrush, toothpaste, washcloth, soap, a candy cane and backpack or tote bag," said Paula Cummings, co-chair, with Denise Dorn, of the YYWC Outer-Island Christmas Drop. "Depending on the age and gender they received hair accessories, stuffed animals, games, scissors, construction paper/doodle pads, sand toys, ball and hot wheels car.

"We also received donations of toys, clothes, toiletries, fishing supplies, school supplies and some medical supplies from Kwajalein community members and through a 'donation drive' at the elementary school," said Cummings. "There is also a former Kwajalein resident who cro-chets 150 hair scrunchies for the girls every year and mails them to Kwajalein in time for the annual drop."

After the gift giving, it was time for the volunteers to receive their gifts. On Ebaddon they were serenaded by a choir of 20 that sounded like a chorus of 300 and sent chills up her arm, said Dorn. On Majetto, the little boys celebrated the way little boys do best with an energetic dance for their guests.

"The spokesperson for Ebaddon told us, 'We weren't sure if you were coming, but we are so happy, because you give us joy and faith,'" recounted Dorn, becoming misty eyed as she remembered those eloquently expressed sentiments from the island residents. "It was the best Christmas ever." As the YYWC now knows without a doubt, the greatest feeling in the world is to know you have made a difference.

As the helicopters departed, there was a message for all to see from high in the air. Written in sand on a small clearing was a Christmas greeting, "Merry X-Mas to U."

Marshall Islands Club high school students, teachers bring holiday cheer, gifts, fun to Carlos

By Wannetta Corder

Children on Carlos wait with wide-eye anticipation all year for Santa and their friends from the Kwajalein Jr. and Sr. High School Marshall Islands Club to come celebrate Christmas – island style.

Students and teachers of the MIC volunteered their time, effort and money to make this year extra special for the youth on Carlos. To fund this event, KHS had jars allotted to each class to donate money for toys, treats, and necessities for the residents of Carlos. This year's donation was approximately $2,000.

The day started with eager students forming a human chain to get boxes and gifts from land to boat. "I just love how we work together," said Chi-Chi Kemem, 17, "and the teamwork to make this all happen." On the catamaran, students and teachers talked of their anticipations and expectations regarding the event. "I went last year and all the kids were 'crazy' happy," said Livy Hoskins, 17, "and they had really good fried chicken." On the other hand, Eric Nelson, a teacher at KHS and a co-organizer of the event, had different thoughts, "I know this is my first year. I am surprisingly terrified. If I mess up, I ruin Christmas!"

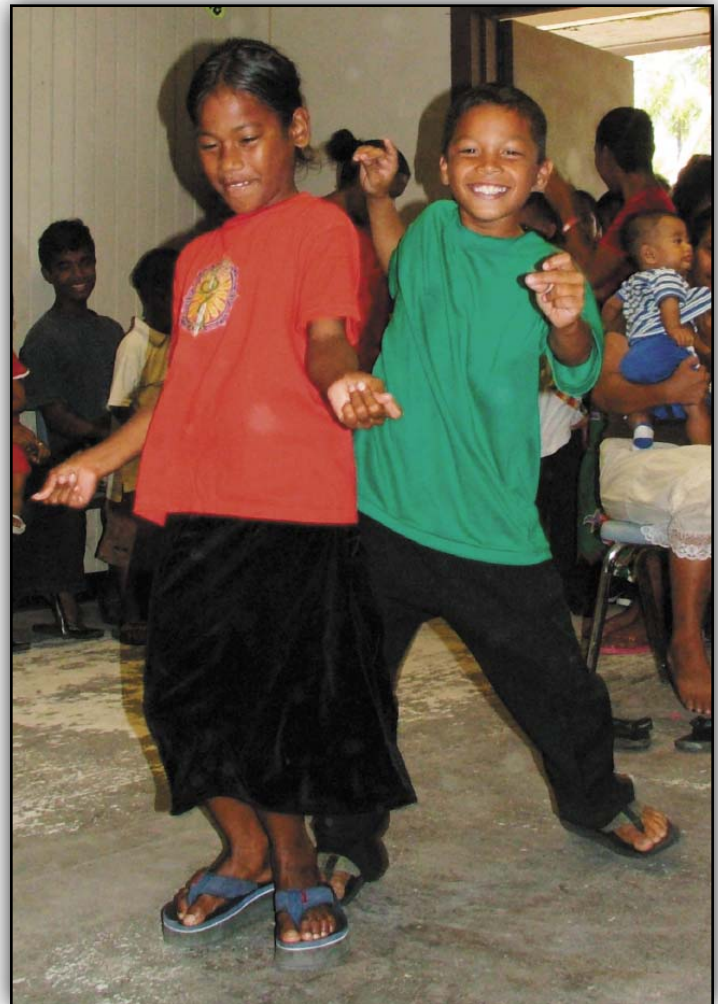

As the boat pulled up to the dock, children were standing by to greet everyone. At the Carlos school, Jefferson Bobo, 18, a senior Ri-katak, translated for Kenta Anitak, Carlos alab and landowner, as he spoke on behalf of Carlos. "Komolol nan aolep - thanks to all." MIC then presented boxes filled with canned meat, rice and necessities to the families.

As the KHS band played carols, Santa arrived with his elves to wish everyone a Merry Christmas. The children lined up for pictures with Santa, while nearby, elves were busy arranging the care package each child walked away with – flip-flops, toy, a goody bag and piece of fruit to munch on. "Look at that little one," said senior Jose DeBrum, 18. "He can barely hold it all."

Everybody then congregated in the classroom for the customary Jebta presentation. "The dancing is the best part," said Kemem, "It made me want to get out there and break it down."

The Carlos residents then served a delicious meal of rice balls, spare ribs, chicken and salad, with coconut juice to wash it down. Nearby, children lined up to participate in activities to win candy and toy prizes. Last, but not least, piñatas were hung from a tree as the boys and girls crowded around ready for their whack at the candy. "We spent more than a hundred dollars on candy," commented Christy Davis, a teacher at KHS and a co-organizer of the event, "Good thing we got them toothbrushes."

Early in the day many were bashful, but as time progressed, everyone was singing, holding hands, giving piggy-back rides and laughing. A bond was created that day between the different cultures. Hand-in-hand, the children of Carlos walked the KHS students to the pier, sad that it was time to leave. The young people on Carlos waved good-bye on the dock as the catamaran departed, and they did not turn away until the boat was out of sight. For the KHS students, Christmas on Carlos was supposed to be about giving, but many who attended would agree that they had the better end of the bargain. As senior Lani Brown, 17, put it, "If you weren't there, you really missed out."

Marshallese neighbors celebrate spirit of holiday season with Christmas in the Marshall Islands

By JJ Klein
Reporter

There is no way anyone could walk away from the Marshallese Christmas event with the “bah humbugs” on Monday evening. The lively marching, dancing and singing from the Lib Jebta and the U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll Jebta filled the Corlett Recreation Center gym with the Christmas spirit.

The jebtas, or chapters, participated in the event, sponsored by the Marshallese Cultural Society, to share how the Marshallese celebrate Christmas. “I can’t explain, you need to watch the motions that the jebta practiced especially for today and then you’ll understand how the Marshallese celebrate Christmas,” said Senator Irumne Bondrik from Lib.

Jebta singing and dancing serves two purposes according to Helbert Alfred, vice president of the Marshallese Cultural Society. The chapter members attempt to entertain their audience by showcasing their talents in songwriting and dancing. Often the songs are written within a short span of time, and many long hours are spent practicing the dances.

Most important to this Christmas tradition is an understanding of the generosity of the Marshallese people. Holiday jebtas try to impart the generosity of Christmas and the spirit of giving that is foundational to their culture, Alfred said.

The Lib Jebta was made up of 80 women and men, young and old, the majority who live on Ebeye and a small core group from the island of Lib. They began practicing for the Christmas season in October, when they determined their song selection and uniforms. Traditionally, the men and women of the jebta wear matching dresses and shirts that help distinguish them from the other chapters that perform on Christmas day.

All the songs performed by the Lib Chapter were original compositions about the birth of Christ. Singing a cappella, the members’ voices filled the CRC to the rafters with their harmonies. But not all is solemn.

There was a lot of fun, particularly in the dancing. While the chapter members danced in intricate formations, a gentleman sang teasingly that swimming around Lib was better than swimming around Kwajalein and Ebeye. The highlight of the dancing was when an individual broke away from the chapter to playfully “strut his stuff” and then jump back into formation.

The USAKA Jebta consisted of the Rikatak students, who attend school on Kwajalein, our Marshallese neighbors residing on Kwajalein and USAKA residents, some from the “island of Texas and Washington,” joked Noda Lojkar, USAKA Jebta leader.

The USAKA Jebta performed a song in Marshallese that told the story of a new canoe sailing out in the ocean spreading the love of God. Later they had a sing-a-long to Jingle Bell Rock and performed a dance where they teased the audience and made them laugh by making silly, goofy faces.

Both jebtas finished their performances by marching past the giving table where they placed the gifts they brought. Many of the gifts were Marshallese handicrafts of shell necklaces, woven fans, wuts, small purses and huge cowry shells. During this time the chapters also threw handfuls of candy into the audience. Both the gift-giving and the candy throwing signify the happiness of the Marshallese people and is their way of saying, “What I have I share with you,” said Alfred.

Kwajalein community members are invited to celebrate Christmas with our Marshallese neighbors. The jebtas performances begin around noon on Christmas day at the Protestant Church, Calvary Church and Bukot non Jesus on Ebeye. This Christmas tradition is an all day affair; be sure to bring water and a fan.
