COMMENTARY

Interesting isn't all it's cracked up to be

Well, another year is almost in the books. We should congratulate ourselves for making it through.

I didn't have another heart attack, any major surgeries, any major health problems and I didn't spend any nights in a hospital.

Geez, what a boring year.

But, like I always say, boring can be mighty good. Interesting stuff isn't all it's cracked up to be. At least with boredom, nothing bad is happening. That's my theory anyway. I mean, bad things are never boring. They always require lots of attention and make for loads of stress.

There's an ancient Chinese curse that goes, "May you live in interesting times." Man, for the last couple of years, things have been way too interesting for me.

Besides my own physical attention-getters, there's been the steady drumbeat of bad news in the world. You know how Iraq's not going well, Iran and North Korea are getting nuclear weapons, the Middle East is always in turmoil, there's genocide going on in Dafur and the Sudan, Russia and China keep making bad noises about everything, terrorists are everywhere, we're running out of oil and, oh yeah, global warming is going to kill us all. It's way interesting stuff, huh?

Like I said, bring on boring.

Right now, I'd like to make a New Year's resolution.

The Way I See It

Dan Adler,
Staff Writer

I never want to see a TV news program again. I never want to read a newspaper or magazine ever again. I never want to hear radio news either. I also don't want e-mails telling me anything either.

Of course, given the job I have, that might not turn out so well. It could be hard to write about stuff I don't know anything about. Oh sure, some people say that's what I do anyway, but what do they know, the peasants.

I really want to spend the rest of my life in what I like to call the 'Sgt. Schultz mode' (for those of you old enough to remember Hogan's Heroes).

I know you recall Schultz' famous answer to everything, "I know nothing...nothing!" Yeah, that man had the secret of a good life. I really think the less someone knows, the happier they gotta be.

Think about it. What if you didn't know about Iraq, terrorism, Iran, global warming or any of the other really interesting things that are going on? Wouldn't you be happier?

Of course, it might get kinda old living under a rock or in a cave, but hey, you gotta take the bad with the good, you know.

Well, you're probably as tired of reading this as I am of writing it, so I'll leave you with the best wish I can make.

Have a really, really boring new year.

Person of the Week

Chugach employee Mike Dame has worked on Kwajalein for more than 20 years and is the airfield ramp lead man. Anyone who has either flown the helicopter, watched Air Mobility Command aircraft being unloaded or loaded, or vehicles maneuvering on the ramp should know this guy has it under control. In this type environment it is not his job to be your friend, but to ensure everyone's safety and he does that fantastically! He yells, screams, points and does whatever is necessary to ensure the job is done right and passengers are transported safely.

Classified ads deadline

The deadline for classified ads is: For Wednesday's issue, noon on Saturday; for Saturday's issue, noon on Thursday. All ads must be limited to 50 words. Multiple ads will be combined and edited to the 50 word limit. Patio sale ads for Saturdays will be printed in Wednesday issues.

Letters to the editor

To submit a letter to the editor: Keep letters to less than 300 words, and keep comments to the issues. No personal attacks will be printed. Letters must be signed. However, names will be withheld if requested. We will edit for Associated Press style, grammar and punctuation and if you exceed the word limit, space. Limit one letter every 30 days. # Students graduate from drug prevention program

Hourglass reports

Twenty-nine 6th graders graduated from the Kwajalein Drug Abuse Resistance Education or D.A.R.E. program in December.

The course, taught annually by the Kwajalein Police Department, is a "collaborative program in which the KPD and the elementary school join together to educate students about personal and social consequences of substance abuse and violence," according to Lt. Mike Larsen from KPD and the course instructor.

"The program will provide children with the information and skills they need to avoid tobacco and alcohol, to live drug-free and violence-free lives. Abuse of ATOD [Alcohol, Tobacco and Other Drugs] can lead to violence."

The D.A.R.E. program is ten lessons long with one lesson a week for ten weeks.

"The children are very interested in the program and have expressed their interest in their final D.A.R.E. reports generated for graduation," Larsen said. "Most of the children enjoy interacting with local law enforcement and learning what law enforcement does on USAKA [U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll]."

Larsen added that the program teaches children about the dangers of ATOD, and the children have expressed their understanding how to make the right decisions about ATOD situations. "Each child provides a pledge to live drug-free and violence-free life at the end of the program. Several children have expressed that they knew about ATOD prior to the program, but did not really understand the effects it has on their lives until they attended D.A.R.E.," he said.

The youth were required to write an essay to graduate from the program. The essays were judged by Larsen.

Mary Doerries, a student in Anne Jahnke's class, won the essay competition. Carolyn Kulig, of Tara Yurovchak's class, was also recognized for her essay contributions.

"I just want to express how proud the Kwajalein Police Department is of all the students' hard work during the past ten weeks. Additionally, I want to thank Mrs. Yurovchak, Mrs. Jahnke, and the school for their help and participation in the program," Larsen said.

Mary Doerries' winning essay

This D.A.R.E. class was very different than the one I had back in the states. This time I have to write a report. Also, my old D.A.R.E. officer just told stories, but this time I learned important skills and how to recognize ordinary from the extraordinary.

I learned about alcohol and the effects it has on us. I learned how it is illegal for some ages to drink alcohol. I learned about marijuana and how it is illegal in the United States. Marijuana affects your brain and body and causes short-term memory loss. Marijuana has 50-70 percent more poisons than tobacco smoke. I learned how it is illegal for anyone to have tobacco under the age of 18 years. Tobacco has nicotine, and that causes addiction. The more tobacco you have, the more of a chance that you will get lung cancer. I learned that beer is illegal to some ages. I learned that beer companies put advertisements on toys, hats, shirts, etc. They try to make it look cool to drink when it's really not. Companies think we are going to buy their products in the future. The companies don't care if we are too young to drink, and they don't care if we get into trouble or not for drinking it. I learned how to make good decisions about problems that might happen to me. I think when my sister gets older I hope the D.A.R.E. program will still be going on, because everyone should be able to learn the effects drugs have on you. I also learned that peer pressure has a huge affect on some people. If some people want to fit in with others who do drugs or other bad things, they are going to do those things and it does not make it right. These are some of the things I learned in D.A.R.E.

My D.A.R.E. Pledge:

I pledge not to do drugs, alcohol, and tobacco and not to give into peer pressure. I will tell people that smoking and drugs are wrong, so hopefully they will not do them either.

Kwaj graduate Lauren Peters enjoying her four-year fashion study program in Florence, Italy

JJ Klein
Reporter

When Lauren Peters graduated from Kwajalein High School last June her plans for college were nailed down tight, or so she thought. Her plan was to leave the island to major in Fashion Design at Marist College, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Located just 90 miles north of Manhattan, Lauren would have the New York fashion scene within arms' reach. She could hop on the Metro-North commuter rail and be on Fashion Avenue in a heartbeat. For a young woman with design aspirations what could be better than that? How about the opportunity to attend a four-year bachelor degree program in Florence, Italy?

Lauren received a letter from Marist selecting her as a potential candidate, based on her fashion design application and academic grades, to attend its newly developed fashion design program with the Scuola Lorenzo de' Medici as a freshman.

Of course, her parents Diane and Doug Peters, still on Kwajalein, had more than a few questions and were understandably a bit trepid about sending their eldest daughter straight from Kwajalein to Italy.

"Where would Lauren live? What is the primary language of instruction at the school? If Lauren chose to return to Marist after a year would her credits transfer," Doug wondered. But high on his list was, "How is all this going to happen in two months?"

Models walk the runway at a high fashion show in Milan, Italy which is considered the fashion capital of the world.

"It was very sudden," said Lauren, "and I had very little time to make changes and prepare for such a decision."

Armed with youthful energy and excitement, Lauren switched gears, changed her summer traveling plans and left for Florence at the end of August, stopping at Marist just long enough to pick up plane tickets and student visa documents.

Lauren wakes up each morning in a villa located in the Florence suburbs where she lives with 15 other Marist freshmen. From 30 to 40 minutes before her classes begin she hops on a crowded municipal bus rumbling over ancient Roman roads. A typical week for Lauren centers on her classes at Lorenzo de Medici where she is taking Introduction to the Fashion Industry, Beginning Italian, Principles of Drawing and Composition, Basic Sewing and College Writing II.

"I really do enjoy all of my classes here," she said. "None of my professors are American; my writing teacher is from England, my fashion teacher is from Germany, and all of the others are from Italy. They bring a completely different perspective into everything."

"I feel like I'm gaining a lot of extra experience both academically and personally than if I had gone straight to Marist," continued Lauren. "Academically, it's allowing me so much hands-on experience and so many different ideas to learn and study about. I also have the easy ability to travel to so many unique and interesting places."

Come the weekend and Lauren is off exploring these interesting places, taking day trips to the Tuscan cities of Lucca and Viareggio as well as excursions to Naples, Pompeii and Capri.

"I've had the opportunity to take some special trips to Milan for Fashion Week, where we were able to sneak into the Shoe Event as well as some fashion shows," confided Lauren. She also visited "Rome and Vatican City for an exclusive tour of the necropolis under St. Peter's Basilica, and Perugia for the annual Eurochocolate Festival."

The experience of living in a different culture is not lost on this fresh-faced girl from Kwajalein. Lauren recognizes that she is learning a lot of life lessons and loves how it is making her grow as a person, questioning different perspectives and broadening her world view.

"Even the simplest things here can become very complicated because I don't know the correct words to say or the correct process to go about things," she admitted. "I need lots of patience and persistence to keep indulging myself in new cultural experiences, even if they don't always turn out as expected."

"It's quite a challenge to recognize that I am the outsider, the foreigner, and that I have to adapt to a completely different lifestyle. But now that I'm doing it, I couldn't imagine it any other way," she continued.

"Whether Lauren continues another year at Lorenzo de' Medici or returns to Marist in New York, this year will be life changing," said Doug. "We would encourage any parent of a college student to pursue carefully any opportunity their child may have to experience a study abroad or international degree program. Opportunities in life should be embraced and enjoyed."

Teenager and parents are on the same page when it comes to this remarkable year abroad. Lauren agreed, "As terrified as I was to take this kind of a leap, especially for my freshman year, it's been a great experience that I wouldn't trade for anything."

The Eurochocolate festival is held annually in Perugia, Italy and is a traditional gathering for chocolate lovers from all over the world.

St. Peter's Basilica in Rome is one of the world's most magnificent buildings and is the home of the Roman Catholic Church.

Ring in the

New Year

From bouncy to bubbly, New Year's Eve is covered

Hourglass reports

Looking for something to do on New Year's Eve? There are plenty of events for those ranging in age from the milk-and-cookies set to the beer-and-bubbly group to choose from to ring in the New Year.

Bounce Mania

New Year's Eve fun begins with a children's arcade featuring a bounce house, inflatable obstacle course and jousting arena set up at the Corlett Recreation Center gym. The doors will be open from 4 to 5 p.m. for children up to second grade and 5 to 6 p.m. for grades three through six. Teens, seventh through twelfth grades, can fight it out at the jousting arena between 6-7 p.m.

Stonefish at the Pacific Club

Local favorite Stonefish will serve up an eclectic mix of dance tunes, from the Beatles to the Killers, at 6:30 p.m. at the Pacific Club. All ages are invited to dance the night away while the band plays hits from Aerosmith, The Rolling Stones and more. Kwajalein Range Services Dining Service will sell pizza, beer and soda.

Teen New Year's Eve Dance Extravaganza

Island teens seventh through twelfth grades can count down the New Year at a dance sponsored by Child and Youth Services. The dance is from 9 p.m. to 12:15 a.m. at the Community Activities Center Room 6.

New Year's Eve Midnight Run

The family-friendly New Year's Eve Midnight run, hosted by the Kwajalein Running Club, begins at the Emon Beach Main Pavilion and follows a two-mile course through the housing area. The winner is not the first to cross the finish line, but the last person to cross before the stroke of midnight. No watches or timing devices are allowed, and runners, joggers and walkers are all welcomed. Registration is capped at 250 people.

"The 'run' turns largely into a parade of revelers, so don't be in-

Idlewild Two Prohibition-era performers determined to fend off the vicious gangsters currently attempting to gain a stake in the pair's lucrative club in this musical drama directed by longtime collaborator Bryan Barber and featuring choreography by three-time Tony award winner Hinton Battle. In the 1930s, Idlewild was the hottest speakeasy in the South. Everything changes, however, when a powerful gangster and his ruthless henchmen move in on the scene with every intention of landing a healthy portion of the club's considerable profits.

The Covenant An ancient secret threatens to unleash the powers of darkness on a group of modern prep school students when the sole survivor of a cursed bloodline returns to lay claim to the powers denied to him centuries ago in a supernatural teen thriller from director Renny Harlin and screenwriter J.S. Cardone. The story begins in 1692, when five families from the Ipswich Colony of Massachusetts formed a covenant of silence that would forever protect their remarkable powers. One family went too far, though, and as a result of their transgression they were forever banished from the land. Flash forward to the new millennium and the four Sons of Ipswich are now the student elite at the prestigious Spenser Academy. Bound by their sacred ancestry and sworn to silence, these four teens share a secret so remarkable that it has served to protect their families for hundreds of years. The past has a way of coming back when you least expect it though, and when the fifth Son of Ipswich returns seeking to harness the powers denied him in the past, the battle is on to ensure the safety of The Covenant.

Barney A cow learns to walk like a man, both literally and figuratively, in this computer-animated comedy written and directed by Steve Oedekerk, the creator of Jimmy Neutron: Boy Genius. Ben (voice of Sam Elliott) is a cow who for years has been the leader and sober voice of reason among the animals at a farm where the critters are a bit unusual.

Surfway holiday uniform tradition brings cheer to shoppers, workers

By JJ Klein
Reporter

If you dared to venture into Surfway on December 23 you may have noticed something different, and no, it wasn't the crowded aisles or the long lines of Kwajalein residents making their last minute Christmas purchases at the registers. Hitting just the right festive note of the season were the Surfway employees dressed in their holiday "uniform."

There is no mandated uniform for the 21 Surfway employees, but several times a year the cashiers, baggers, stock clerks and managers dress in matching shirts and dresses. The entire Surfway staff will be sporting its holiday attire again on New Year's Eve.

The holiday outfits are a Christmas tradition that started three years ago when a Christmas "angel" donated yards and yards of fabric for no specific reason other than "to do something nice for them."

"I've built this relationship with them that just sort of happened," said this person, who wishes to remain anonymous. "I enjoy them; they are always friendly, and I enjoy teasing with them."

"It really surprised us the first year and then to follow-up with another two years," commented Ray Denham, Surfway store manager, "we are very appreciative of what she is doing."

Shopping for the fabric begins in October with some input from the staff. This year they requested burgundy colored material, but none was found, so the donor chose a cheerful tropical print with green and burgundy palm fronds set on a beige background.

In November each employee was given the fabric, three yards for women and two yards for men, to create an outfit for the Christmas season. Staff members put their own individual style to their outfit, em-bellishing with coordinating fabric necklines or ruffles and bows. One young bagger fashioned his yardage into a vest to wear, just to be a bit different.

"She gives us a Christmas gift," said Cashier Aileen Bolkeim expressing the sentiments of the workers at the registers. "She is our friend, we really thank her for the material."

Part of this Surfway tradition is to take photographs of each member of the staff wearing his or her outfit. The employees look forward to having their photos taken, often adding a wot or handicraft flower to their hair. The photos of the "Surfway Gang" are then assembled on the wall next to the 15-items-or-less checkout register for the next year.

When it came time for Stock Clerk Masa Samual to have his photo taken, he wouldn't take the photo until the aisle he maintains was completely clean. Only then would he pose for the camera.

It's as much fun for me as it is for them," said the Christmas angel.

Military tradition to be evident at Ford funeral

By John J. Kruzel
American Forces Press Service

Military tradition will be evident throughout the events associated with the Tuesday death of former President Gerald R. Ford, as the services join the nation in bidding farewell to their former commander-in-chief. Ford's three-stage state funeral will begin tomorrow with the former president's remains lying in repose at St. Margaret's Episcopal Church in Palm Desert, Calif. He will then be honored in the nation's capital, and finally in his home state of Michigan, where he will be buried.

Ford's casket will arrive today at Andrews Air Force Base, Md. A motorcade will travel through Alexandria, Va., where Ford resided while serving as a congressman and vice president. After a pause at the World War II Memorial -- Ford served in the Navy during the war -- the motorcade will proceed to the U.S. Capitol, where the former president will lie in state.

Ford's coffin will be draped in a U.S. flag, with the blue field over his left shoulder. The custom began in the Napoleonic Wars of the late 18th and early 19th centuries, when a flag was used to cover the dead as they were taken from the battlefield on a caisson.

Graveside military honors in Michigan will include the firing of three volleys each by seven servicemembers. This commonly is confused with an entirely separate honor, the 21-gun salute. But the number of individual gun firings in both honors evolved the same way.

The three volleys came from an old battlefield custom. The two warring sides would cease hostilities to clear their dead from the battlefield, and the firing of three volleys meant that the dead had been properly cared for and the side was ready to resume the battle.

The 21-gun salute traces its roots to the Anglo-Saxon empire, when seven guns constituted a recognized naval salute, as most naval vessels had seven guns. Because gunpowder in those days could be more easily stored on land than at sea, guns on land could fire three rounds for every one that could be fired by a ship at sea.

Later, as gunpowder and storage methods improved, salutes at sea also began using 21 guns. The United States at first used one round for each state, attaining the 21-gun salute by 1818. The nation reduced its salute to 21 guns in 1841, and formally adopted the 21-gun salute at the suggestion of the British in 1875.

An "order of arms" protocol determines the number of guns to be used in a salute. A president, ex-president or foreign head of state is saluted with 21 guns. A vice president, prime minister, secretary of defense or secretary of the Army receives a 19-gun salute. Flag officers receive salutes of 11 to 17 guns, depending on their rank. The rounds are fired one at a time.

A U.S. presidential death also involves other ceremonial gun salutes and military traditions. On the day after the death of the president, a former president or president-elect -- unless this day falls on a Sunday or holiday, in which case the honor will be rendered the following day -- the commanders of Army installations with the necessary personnel and material traditionally order that one gun be fired every half hour, beginning at reveille and ending at retreat.

On the day of burial, a 21-minute gun salute traditionally is fired starting at noon at all military installations with the necessary personnel and material. Guns will be fired at one-minute intervals. Also on the day of burial, those installations will fire a 50-gun salute -- one round for each state -- at five-second intervals immediately following lowering of the flag.

The playing of "Ruffles and Flourishes" announces the arrival of a flag officer or other dignitary of honor. Drums play the ruffles, and bugles play the flourishes -- one flourish for each star of the flag officer's rank or as appropriate for the honoree's position or title. Four flourishes is the highest honor.

When played for a president, "Ruffles and Flourishes" is followed by "Hail to the Chief."

The bugle call "Taps" originated in the Civil War with the Army of the Potomac.

Ford will be buried with full military honors at his presidential museum in Grand Rapids, Mich., Wednesday.
