MARINE CORPS BASE HAWAII

Building the Future: Mōkapu Elementary School Grand Opening Story by Lance Cpl. Nicholas Figueroa

MARINE CORPS BASE HAWAII – Marine Corps Base Hawaii – On Jan. 6, 2026, Marine Corps Base Hawaii (MCBH) marked a milestone for military families as Mōkapu Elementary School celebrated the grand opening of its newly built campus. The ceremony highlighted the opening of modern classrooms and a new administrative building, bringing together base personnel, students, faculty, staff, and community members to welcome the next chapter in the school's history.

The new school is now carrying the legacy of the former one, which served generations of students since opening in 1960. For more than six decades, the former school building has supported and taught the needs of countless children upon the installation making it a central part of the community.

"This ceremony celebrates the opening of the new Mōkapu Elementary School building and reflects our shared commitment to children and families. These new structures facilitate learning, while also enhancing the quality of the educational programming and curriculum development," said Col. Jeremy Beaven, commanding officer of MCBH. "By investing in education at Marine Corps Base Hawaii, we strengthen our community, nurture a love of learning, and build a strong foundation for our students' growth."

Cultural practitioners blessed the building before base leadership and school officials delivered remarks. The ceremony emphasized cultural and community events recognizing traditional values and moving forward to a bright future.

Students later joined hands and sang "Hawai'i Aloha" expressing deep love and pride to the Hawai'i homeland, as the ribbon was cut by Kelly Perez, an academic coordinator who has taught at the school for 35 years officially marking the opening of a new chapter for Mōkapu Elementary School.

With its new doors officially open, Mōkapu Elementary School stands ready to continue a tradition of excellence while embracing the future. As students, families, and educators begin this new chapter together, Mōkapu Elementary School remains a cornerstone of the MCBH community, building a foundation of learning, resilience, and connection for generations to come. Marine Corps Marksmanship Competition-Pacific: Precision Under Pressure Story by Lance Cpl. Tania Guerrero

MARINE CORPS BASE HAWAII – Marine Corps Base Hawaii – U.S. Marines, service members and civilians from across Hawai'i competed in the Marine Corps Marksmanship Competition-Pacific (MCMC-P), putting their skills to the test through a series of timed and precision-based events at Marine Corps Base Hawaii (MCBH), from January 5th-17th, 2026.

The MCMC-P is an essential event under the Competition-In-Arms Program (CIAP), which has supported marksmanship excellence for 115 years, bringing together Marines from across the Pacific to refine shooting skills, and assess proficiency in accordance with Marine Corps standards. The competition plays a vital role in developing lethality and creating an opportunity to compete in higher level marksmanship competitions.

"One of the biggest challenges was the mental aspect," said competitor Sgt. Robert Banks, a supply chain manager with Littoral Logistics Battalion, 3rd Marine Littoral Regiment. "Shooting under time while staying focused and maintaining accurate hits required discipline and control."

Throughout the event, Marines were evaluated on their ability to perform under stress by maintaining consistent accuracy, highlighting the mental demands of marksmanship. The competition was made up of a series of matches: Pistol, Rifle, Rifle Night, Precision Marksman, Team Rifle and Team Pistol match. Each of these had their individual dynamic stages with timed scenarios that emphasized accuracy, weapons handling and decision-making, reinforcing the skills required for combat readiness.

Among the top honors awarded were the Gunner Trophy, Rifle Team Trophy, Pistol Team Trophy, and individual rifle and pistol Excellence-in-Competition Badges, highlighting both individual and team cohesion. Marines may also earn the prestigious Distinguished Marksman Badge, and Distinguished Pistol Shot Badge. These badges are awarded once a Marine accumulates the required points within the CIAP.
