

Will Moseley Press Release

Singer, songwriter and American Idol finalist Will Moseley will be touring with Armed Forces Entertainment (AFE) this July. The tour will feature three performances on July 2, 4 and 8, 2026.

When a handful of Instagram and TikTok videos he had posted caught the attention of American Idol producers looking for talent on social media, Hazlehurst, Georgia, singer/songwriter Will Moseley's first response was, "These folks don't have anything for me; I'm not the right fit."

Eventually, he committed to the audition process. A few months after Lionel Richie said that his "voice is amazing," Katy Perry and Luke Bryan exclaimed, "Welcome to Hollywood," and gave him the coveted Golden Ticket at his live audition in Bryan's hometown of Leesburg, Georgia. Moseley was the last man standing. To his great surprise, his growing legion of fans across the country voted him through round after round, week after week, until his triumphant finish as the season 22 runner-up to Abi Carter.

In the months since Idol, Moseley has released multiple singles, which have given fans a taste of his versatility and artistic vision, blending nostalgia with a down-to-earth southern vibe and charm.

Beyond his inspiring Idol success story, perhaps the most amazing aspect of Moseley's burgeoning career is the fact that while his mom gave him his first guitar for Christmas when he was 16, he didn't start playing it till 19—and didn't start getting serious about playing and songwriting until the pandemic lockdown during his time at Georgia Southern University, to which he transferred from Maryville College, where he played Division III football. Following three serious concussions, when he wasn't studying, he shifted his focus to music and never looked back.
