Country music artist Austin Snell is touring with Armed Forces Entertainment (AFE) this July, as part of their annual Heat Wave summer event series. The tour, which features three performances, will run from July 3 to 5, 2026.

Snell, a 28-year-old artist from Georgia, is a rising force in country music, blending raw, grunge-infused rock with deep country roots to create a sound all his own. With over 338 million global streams and a growing fanbase, Snell's music strikes a balance between vulnerability and power. Snell's 2025 discography shows his range as both a singer and a songwriter. He moves effortlessly from edgy rock-country to energetic party anthems and intimate, heartfelt ballads. Regardless of the style, he always delivers a hard-hitting energy that continues to push the boundaries of "grunge country." A U.S. Air Force veteran, Snell's influences range from Nickelback to Alan Jackson, shaping his distinctive style. His debut album, "Still Bleeding" (2024), explores themes of inner conflict and redemption, fusing country, rock and hip-hop in a way that resonates deeply with listeners.
